U.S. Chamber Session Today Set to Renew New Deal War

Directors Resentful of Further Interference With Business.

Officials Critical Of Breathing Spell

New Legislative Policy Will Be Mapped at Conference.

By Felix Bruner.

More strongly opposed than ever to Government interference in business, members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States were gathering last night for their first meeting since adjournment of Congress.

Before them as they meet today will be reports on legislative trends, on the agricultural situation, on proposed new NRA legislation, and on labor legislation enacted during the last session of Congress.

Discussion will center around business legislation enacted in the last session and on the attitude that should be taken toward prospective legislation. There will be much discussion of the President's recent statement that the major part of his program was completed and that business can expect a breathing spell.

Directors Unsatisfied.

Informal reports of the directors indicated that business conditions have improved considerably, but this fact has led to disagreement rather than satisfaction with the Government program. The attitude expressed in resolutions adopted at the Chamber of Commerce convention last spring that business should be permitted to work out its own salvation was repeated.

Asked concerning the President's "breathing spell" statement, Philip Fay, of San Francisco, a Chamber vice president, said:

"Let him define it."

"Maybe all of us ought to resign and let the Government take over our jobs," he added. "The Government seems to have more knowledge of business than business men who have spent life times learning about it. They can decide everything in 24 hours."

Perhaps this is a little more blunt than the expressions that are expected to come from the directors meeting, but it is believed to indicate the trend. Whether there will be resolutions setting out the Chamber's attitude is to be decided at the meeting.

In discussing conditions on the Pacific Coast Fay said business there is good but that there is constant fear of serious disturbances resulting from expiration of the longshoremen's labor contract on September 30. He said every coast city fears a repetition of the general strike in San Francisco last year. Fay said 168 strikes had been called in spite of an arbitration agreement signed last year.

Policy to Be Mapped.

The present meeting of the Chamber directors is considered particularly important because it will outline the program of the organization, representing business throughout the country, for the coming months. On decisions reached at the meeting will depend the Chamber's attitude toward the New Deal and toward legislation in the coming session.

Changes in recently enacted legislation are expected to be urged. Special attention is expected to be directed toward the labor relations act and the Guffey-Snyder coal act. Opposition to a new NRA is expected, but there may be some statement of policy concerning business co-operation in the absence of an NRA.

The Chamber of Commerce in the early days of the New Deal was looked upon as friendly to the Administration. Chamber officials cooperated with President Roosevelt, particularly in connection with NRA legislation. During the past year the trend has been away from the Administration. This culminated in extremely critical resolutions in the convention last spring.

The chamber is particularly critical of Government expenditures and failure of the Administration to move toward balancing the budget. This subject is expected to be discussed in the meeting.

Meanwhile, the National Associ-

Alienation Charged By Takoma Woman

Mrs. Marjorie Smith Seeks $50,000 in Suit.

Mrs. Marjorie L. Smith, of 500 Aspen street, Takoma Park, filed suit in the District Supreme Court yesterday against Alda Rinker, formerly of the Valley Vista apartments, demanding $50,000 damages for alienation of the affections of her husband, Lewis C. Smith.

The Smiths were married in 1913. In her petition, Mrs. Smith accused Miss Rinker of "wilful alienation and destruction of the affections" of her husband. She did this, Mrs. Smith charged, at "divers times" in the month of September, 1933.

Mrs. Smith's attorneys are Walter C. English and John D. Fitzgerald.

Driver Exonerated In Death of Child

Albert McKenney, 2, Ran in Front of Truck, Witness Testifies; Father Tells of Struggle to Get to Body as Police Restrained Him.

Fred E. Beverly, 25, of Richmond, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday after an inquest into the death of 2-year-old Albert McKenney.

The jury returned a verdict of death from an accident after testimony revealed that the child had run into the path of Beverly's truck in front of his home, 57 New York avenue northeast.

Death was instantaneous after the truck loaded with beer had run over the child and dragged his body 27 feet.

Harry McDaniels, colored, an eye witness, told the jury that the child was playing in the yard of his home when for some reason he crawled through a hole in the fence and ran across the street. A street car was passing at the time and the boy ran behind it into the oncoming truck, he said.

"I yelled at the boy and tried to reach him, but I was too late," McDaniels testified.

The inquest was marked by the dramatic story told by Alfred's father, William H. McKenney, an engineer at the homeopathic hospital. Mr. McKenney said:

"Children came to the hospital and told me, but I didn't believe them. At last I went to see. I saw my baby lying under the wheels of the truck. The officers would not let me through until I convinced them I was the boy's father. I saw the police take measurements. The skid marks of the truck showed clearly how far the truck slid after striking my baby. That's all I know."

The truck driver told the jury he had just returned from Baltimore on his way to Richmond. The load on his truck and the brakes had been tested by the Maryland police a short time before, he said.

"When I saw the child he was about 3 feet from my front bumper. I slammed on the brakes and swerved my truck trying to avoid hitting the boy. The weight of the truck made it hard to stop and the next thing I knew I was backing the truck off the boy's body. He ran from behind a street car that was passing me in the opposite direction," Beverly testified.

WPA Permits States to Cut Hours of Work

931,703 Now Placed in Jobs; McCarl Rule Imperils Reedsville.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, yesterday compromised with union labor leaders by issuing an order permitting State administrators to fix the hours of labor on relief jobs.

Union leaders, a number of whom conferred with Hopkins yesterday, have been insisting that prevailing wages be paid. Hopkins stood firm on the security wage—ranging from $19 to $94 a month—ordered by President Roosevelt, but left the way open for so reducing the work week that hourly wages can be substantially increased.

The only restriction now on hours of work is that they must be not more than eight per day and 40 per week. There is no minimum.

Hopkins would not comment on his new order except to say that it was intended to meet varying local conditions. He insisted that there

V. F. W. Asks Congress For Gale Toll Inquiry

New Orleans, Sept. 19 (AP).—The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States in annual convention late today adopted a resolution demanding a congressional investigation to fix the blame for the "appalling loss of lives of World War veterans in the hurricane that swept the lower Florida keys September 2 and 3."

The convention tabled a motion by David Lundeen, of Minnesota, which asked the convention to go on record "censuring the President of the United States for vetoing the bonus, which caused the veterans to meet death in the Florida hurricane."

Robert Adamson Dies; Former News Executive

New York, Sept. 19 (U.P.).—Robert Adamson, 63, former Georgia newspaperman, died in his office today, apparently to heart disease. He was city editor of the Atlanta Constitution and later came to New York where he served on the World. He was fire commissioner of New York City from 1914 to 1917.

Fiend Binds Husband, Lashes And Attacks Bride in Chicago

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—A masked maniac, who forced a young bride to disrobe, lashed her with a lead-studded whip and assaulted her, was hunted by heavy police details on the far West Side tonight.

Capt. Willard Malone, of the Austin Station, ordered every available patrolman into the search with these instructions:

"Shoot to kill."

Mrs. Helen James, 21-year-old bride of three months, was the victim of the attack, police said. It was the third of its kind attributed to the madman in the last several weeks. His activities have spread terror through the district.

He confronted Mrs. James and her husband, Orlando, in their apartment early today. Brandishing a pistol in a kid-gloved hand, he bound James to a chair and gagged him with a necktie. He compelled Mrs. James to enter an adjoining room, then turned a radio to its highest pitch, drew a whip and struck her repeatedly.

"I'll be back again some night."

Malone recalled another woman had been assaulted and beaten in the same building August 17. The madman attempted a similar attack on a maid in the neighborhood August 31, but was frightened away when a doorbell rang.

Descriptions furnished by the victims tallied. The captain said the criminal is about 23, dark complexioned, and approximately 5 feet 6 inches in height. He wore gray kid gloves and carried a nickeled pistol. Malone detailed 12 men in civilian clothes to the mile-square area frequented by the fiend. He said these and other officers would patrol the district "every night until the man is caught."

Cubs Amass 16th in Row; Rout N.Y., 6-1

But Cardinals Hang On Leaders' Heels as Dean Halts Dodgers, 9-1.

By the United Press.

New York, Sept. 19.—The Chicago Cubs added another notch to one of the greatest of modern winning streaks when they captured their sixteenth consecutive game today with a 6-1 triumph over the New York Giants.

Victory in their final game of the season against an Eastern club enabled the Cubs to win every start at home against the four Eastern nines in the last invasion of the West.

It also left them five games short of tying the all-time Chicago mark of 21 straight, set back in 1880.

Cardinals Stay in Race.

The St. Louis Cardinals stayed 2½ games behind the first-place Cubs by defeating Brooklyn's Dodgers, 9 to 1.

Bill Lee held the Giants to six hits as he scored his fourth victory in the current winning streak. Carl Hubbel, New York's only pitcher who has been functioning with any consistency, was nicked for six hits and a pair of runs in the first inning when Galan singled and Herman and Lindstrom doubled. From then on, the Cubs hammered away until the seventh, when Hubbell was removed for a pinch hitter.

Dizzy Dean returned to winning form by yielding six hits to the Dodgers and striking out nine. Charley Gelbert brought in three runs with a double and two singles.

Collins Hits Home Run.

The Dodgers took a one-run lead in the second but the Cards erased it with three in the fourth and four in the fifth. J. Collins homered in the sixth with the bases empty.

The Pittsburgh Pirates closed their home season by defeating Boston, 7 to 6. In the eighth, the Pirates scored three runs on four hits. Ben Cantwell lost his twenty-third game of the season.

Paul Derringer joined the 20-game winners when he hurled the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-to-1 victory over Philadelphia. He scattered four hits and didn't yield a run until the ninth.

In the only American League game, the Boston Red Sox defeated the league-leading Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1. Lefty Grove scattered eight hits in scoring his nineteenth victory. For six innings it was a pitcher's battle between Grove and General Alvin Crowder. The Red Sox got a run in the seventh when Dahlgren's double sent Rick Ferrell home. A single by Johnson, with the bases loaded, and another by Dahlgren brought home three runs in the eighth.

The Tigers' run was scored by Greenberg, who tripled and came home as Goslin was being thrown out at first.

Ben Bernie Divorces Rose H. Anzelevitz

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—Ben Bernie, orchestra leader, won a divorce today from Rose H. Anzelevitz (Bernie's real name) in a secret hearing before Judge Rudolpph Desort.

"The old maestra" testified they were married November 23, 1915, in New York City and that his wife deserted him in September, 1931. He testified their son, Jason, 16, was in the custody of his mother.

Italy Near Zero Hour for War; Troops Await Order to Attack

Rejection of League's Peace Proposal Is Certain.

Britain Attacked For Belligerence

Rome Press Declares England Is Anxious for Conflict.

By the United Press.

Rome, Sept. 19.—Italy seethed with activity tonight as the zero hour neared for her war against Ethiopia—and any other nation which may stand in her way.

Official spokesmen asserted that the League of Nations' peace proposals were unacceptable. Premier Benito Mussolini, immersed in war preparations, was silent after his declaration to G. Ward Price, of the London Daily Mail, that the committee of five's offer was a joke.

Rejection of the Geneva offer now is certain. All that remains is the order to march. This may come tomorrow—on the fifty-fifth anniversary of the Italian "day of national unity"—or when the cabinet meets Saturday.

Troops are being sent in an unceasing procession of ships not only to Eritrea and Somaliland, but also to Libya—adjacent to Egypt and the canal.

Explains Troop Movement.

The foreign office spokesman tonight explained Italy's movement of troops to Libya as "replacement of natives with Italian troops." He asserted the situation absolutely does not justify the British fleet concentration in the eastern Mediterranean.

"Italy never menaced and is not menacing any European power," he said. The spokesman said foreign reports of Italy's Libya actions were exaggerated.

The press is preparing the popular mind. Editor Virginio Gayda of Giornale D'Italia, who is close to Mussolini, charged today that recent utterances of the British press are "manifestations of a deliberate determination to fight Italy." Gayda asserted that British references to closing the Suez Canal and the Straits of Gibraltar and to Italy's supposed inability to withstand the British fleet, are evidence of "the incredible yet true fact" that Britain is "provocative and threatening" and has shown a "deliberate expression of a will to fight."

Rumors were circulated today that British officials had advised their subjects to leave Italy as soon as possible. The reports were denied by British diplomatic officials but were evidence of the tension which exists in Anglo-Italian relations.

Summons Awaited.

The public, whipped to an almost religious fervor for war, was on edge awaiting the summons from Mussolini for a test mobilization of more than 10,000,000 Fascist men, women and children.

The call is expected to come within 24 hours, and many believe it will coincide with the "forward march" order which will send Italy's motorized legions streaming across the Ethiopian frontier.

The public is satisfied that Italy has no chance of obtaining satisfaction at Geneva.

Official spokesmen made it clear that the plan of the committee of five falls far short of meeting Italy's "legitimate colonial aspirations." The proposals fail to give Italy complete military and economic control of Ethiopia, which Mussolini consistently has demanded. They entail compromise, and Il

U. S. Captures Nation's Chief Counterfeiter

Secret Service Calls Arrest in N. J. Most Important in Ten Years.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 19.—The Government Secret Service tonight scored what it considered its most important capture in a decade with the arrest of thin, bald William Watts, former Nebraska drugstore clerk, whose talent for engraving lifted him to the Government's designation of master counterfeiter of the modern underworld.

Watts, arrested yesterday in a counterfeiting-equipped apartment in Union City, N. J., was held under $50,000 bond.

The former druggist was accused by Secret Service agents of being the "brains" and master designer of counterfeit money operations which have demoralized race track bookies at Saratoga with a flood of spurious and expertly designed bills.

Worked With "Count."

Watts, agents said, worked with the elusive Robert Miller, the much-sought "Count Lustig," who recently departed from the Federal detention prison via a rope of knotted bed sheets at high noon and in full view of some hundreds of passersby.

"The count" was arrested several weeks ago on counterfeiting charges. Agents said he distributed the spurious money turned out by Watts. He concentrated on race tracks in the New York area.

In Watts' apartment, where he lived alone, agents reported finding a complete counterfeiting outfit, $11,000 of expertly made $100 notes

Hull Calls Munitions Board As African Peace Hopes Fade

Conference Set Tuesday for Group Created by Neutrality Act to Enforce Licensing of Manufacturers of War Materials.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

As foreign observers lost hope that the Italo-Ethiopian war could be averted, Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday summoned the National Munitions Control Board, established by the recently adopted neutrality act, to meet with him Tuesday.

Secretary Hull is chairman of the board, which also includes the secretaries of the Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce. The duty of the board is to administer a provision of the act making it unlawful to manufacture, export or import arms, ammunition or implements of war after November 30 without a license.

The work of this board has nothing to do directly with the proposed neutrality provisions of the legislation, although in time the board may become an effective means of enforcing any arms embargo the President is called upon to decree.

Hull's action in issuing a call for the first meeting of the board at this time, however, was regarded as significant in view of the darkening war clouds over Europe and the general pessimism over the outcome of the Italo-Ethiopian peace negotiations expressed in Old World capitals.

Effective November 30.

The board's regulations can not become effective until November 30, ten weeks away. Moreover, Hull seemed in no hurry Wednesday about convening his board. His sudden action, therefore, was believed to have been inspired by the developments abroad.

The reason why it may be desirable to have the board organize at this time is that while it has nothing formally to do with the placing of embargoes on arms shipments—a mandatory function of the President when conflict develops—the board must do some preliminary spadework which will be of great

Revolt Splits Long Machine; Allen in 'Spin'

Noe, Martin Announce for Governor and Senator; Caucus Wrecked.

By the Associated Press.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 19.—A political coup executed early today by Lieut. Gov. James A. Noe and Wade O. Martin, chairman of the Louisiana public service commission, apparently let down the bars in the old Long machine and it is everybody for himself.

While the Long lieutenants were squabbling over candidates for the ticket for the January election, Noe and Martin took the bull by the horns and formally announced for Governor and United States Senator, respectively.

The announcement broke like a thunderclap over the Long camp and sent the captain, Gov. O. K. Allen, into a spin. At first he would not believe it, as he had thought he had the machine under control and that a slate of candidates would be chosen in orderly fashion at a caucus.

But shortly after the announcements were made both Noe and Martin walked into the Governor's office and told him the facts. They

Iowa Farmers Ask AAA Program End

Wallace Recall Demanded at Des Moines Meeting.

By the Associated Press.

Des Moines, Sept. 19.—The Iowa Farmers Union heard the AAA denounced by two nationally known speakers today and adopted a resolution demanding that the program "be immediately halted and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace returned to private life."

"Another year has shown the general worthlessness and viciousness of the AAA. It has not only failed to bring even the semblance of farm prosperity, but has actually increased the poverty of a large section of the rural population," the union concluded in adopting the report of its resolutions committee.

Adoption of the resolutions at the State convention of the organization came after addresses by Milo Reno, of Des Moines, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, and Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia.

The holiday association leader charged the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is using "false propaganda" to mislead the public as to the financial condition of the farmer.

Gov. Talmadge attacked the Administration for the destruction of foodstuffs under the AAA program, and said the United States was forced to import products to replace those it had destroyed.

Rogers Called to Tell Inquest Of Miss Hoey's Death on Farm

Oil Fortune Heir, With Cameraman Companion, Has Been Freed on Bail Since Tragic End of Torch Singer at His Country Home.

By the Associated Press.

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 19.—Henry H. Rogers 3d, oil fortune heir in whose farm home Evelyn Hoey was shot to death last week, was summoned before a coroner's jury tonight to tell what occurred the night the torch-singing musical comedy star died.

Although authorities have said the evidence so far obtained points to suicide, the jury of six men was to hear stories of those in the brick farmhouse the night of September 11, when a pistol bullet ended Miss Hoey's life in a second-floor bedroom.

Rogers and his cameraman friend, William James Kelly, of Union City, N. J., have been under $2,500 bond each pending the inquest.

J. Paul MacElree, Rogers' attorney, today said both would testify at the inquest.

"The only thing we are interested in," he insisted, "is that Rogers' name be cleared. Rogers could stand upon his constitutional rights and decline to testify, but that would not clear up the situation."

Also summoned were Robert Wright, once manager of Rogers' farm, who was said to have disappeared shortly after Miss Hoey's death, and Claud Battin, neighboring farmer, who was in the house at the time of the shooting to collect some money due him.

Battin told authorties he saw both Rogers and Kelly in the living room at the moment the shot was heard from the upstairs bedroom.

The Japanese cook, George Yamada, was in the kitchen of the house at the time, while the chauffeur was at the garage.

Considerable drinking and a lengthy quarrel preceded the shooting, authorities learned. The dispute was climaxed with Miss Hoey's running up the stairs with the announced intention of "packing up and going home" to New York. A few moments later the shot was fired.

Two pistols were found, one on the bed, the other at Miss Hoey's feet.

Scare Wave of World Buying Sweeps Grain Up 2 to 5 Cents

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—A world-wide wave of buying, born of fresh rumors of war prospects in East Africa and possibly Europe, swept grain prices 2 to 5 cents a bushel higher today.

Abetted by reports of heavy crop losses in the Argentina wheatlands, the speculative flurry sent quotations to a five-year peak at Buenos Aires.

Wheat there was up 5 cents at one time during the day. It was the Buenos Aires market which startled the grain trade by closing 6 cents higher Monday.

The war scare was credited also with starting a feverish boom on the Japanese stock exchange today, but most other security markets failed to respond to soaring grain values. The New York market slumped and weakness developed on the stock exchanges of London, Paris and Berlin.

Chicago wheat futures reacted slightly at the close, after the May contract price had climbed to $1.02⅞, a new high for the season, and the highest future price here since last December.

Wheat in Chicago closed 2⅛ to 2⅜ above yesterday's final prices. September was 99¼ to 99½; December, 1.00¾ to 1.00⅞, and May, 1.01⅜ to 1.00⅝.

Traders in world markets bid wheat higher upon the belief that a crisis in the Italio-Ethiopia situation was impending and that if war started wheat would be in demand at the seller's price.

Winnipeg speculators flooded the market with buying orders, and prices shot up the full 3-cent limit for the second time this week.

Between You and Me

An Odd Judicial System; A Good Racket While It Lasts; The Lowdown On Franklin.

By Raymond Clapper

THERE is no intention of reflecting upon Earl F. Reed, of Pittsburgh, who is an eminent and successful member of the legal profession, and whose ethics are fully up to the standard of those of his colleagues at the bar.

It might strike some persons as strange that he should have been selected chairman of the subcommittee of the American Liberty League lawyers who were to make an impartial, objective, fact-finding judgment upon the constitutionality of the new national labor relations act when he had been counsel for the Weirton Steel Co. in the most bitterly fought case against labor sections of the old NRA and was preparing to fight the new labor law in the courts. But hardly any member of the legal profession would regard that as anything but natural. It is customary in the legal profession for an attorney to represent the interests of his client as wholly identified with the cause of justice, right, law, order and the Constitution. That is part of the game, and Mr. Reed plays the game according to the rules in practice.

However, Mr. Reed is being called as a witness on another angle of the matter. While explaining the opinion of his committee holding the national labor relations act unconstitutional, Mr. Reed was asked by newpaper reporters who are laymen and know very little about such matters, whether, since he felt the law was unconstitutional, he should advise his client, the Weirton Steel Co., to ignore the law, violate it, treat it as if it didn't exist.

Mr. Reed appeared to be sincerely surprised at such a naive question. Of course it was a lawyer's duty to advise his client to disregard the law. If it was an unconstitutional law then it was null and of no force. How else, Mr. Reed explained patiently, could you get a test of the law except to refuse to observe it?

Laymen have been taught from childhood to respect and obey the law and if they felt the law was wrong, to try to have it changed. We must have law and order. But then we are laymen.

When it was suggested here some time back that there was something about a judicial system which required a man to violate a law in order to get it tested in the courts, and that it ought to be possible for the combined legal minds of the country to work out some method whereby the Supreme Court in advance could rule upon the constitutionality of legislation before months of damage have been done while waiting for a test. Some lawyer friends, in the friendliest spirit, pointed out how impossible that was. Indeed, a quite eminent jurist, realizing that the present method was not all that it should be, regarded it as the lesser evil and saw insuperable objections to any kind of advisory opinions.

These legal friends explained, at ever such length, the practical difficulties in the way. You had to wait for an overt act, wait until somebody smacked a Federal officer in the eye, or some workingman's head to be cracked, or something, before the court could have a specific case to pass upon. Only when confronted with an overt act in violation of the law law could the nine men on the Supreme Court gather their robes about them and permit the oracle to speak.

So this writer, for one, dropped the idea and went back to writing on subjects with which he was more familiar.

Therefore you can imagine the feeling of relief at beholding the solemn pronouncement of the American Liberty League's committee of 58 lawyers, selected, it was explained, "solely because of the recognized ability and professional competency of the members of the committee to express an opinion upon questions of constitutional law."

This committee had before it the Constitution and past opinions of the Supreme Court. It had before it the text of the national labor relations act. It had within itself the best legal talent that money can buy, some of it no doubt equal to that of anyone on the Supreme Court. Indeed, some members of this committee probably would regard themselves as better lawyers than some who sit on the Supreme Court.

And—this is the point—this committee had no overt act before it. It just did what commonsense would suggest—it took the Constitution, and the past opinions of the court, and in the light of them went over the text of the new labor statute, check-it line by line. The committee of 58 eminent lawyers then joined in stating that all regarded the law as unconstitutional.

Now, maybe it is just the kind of fool question a layman would ask, but if these lawyers on the Liberty League's "unofficial supreme court" can pass on the constitutionality of an act before the ink is dry on it, why can't it be done by the lawyers on the real Supreme Court?

If the American Liberty League's stunt isn't a perfect argument for abolishing this ridiculous, wasteful, heart-breaking, ancient system of dawdling along for moths, imposing millions of dollars of taxes throwing people in jail, harassing Federal enforcement officers at their duties, spreading uncertainty and confusion all over the place and then, after months and months, finally being permitted to find out whether it was all an unconstitutional mistake or not, what would you call it?

The only real reason thus far advanced against advisory opinions is that it would throw a lot of lawyers out of work. There are 1,500 cases now in the courts, each put in by one or more lawyers, to find out whether the AAA, which was approved May 12, 1933, is constitutional. And nobody knows yet. It is a godo racket while it lasts.

From New York comes the story that Mrs. James Roosevelt, sr., mother of the president, was talking about her son at luncheon with a group of friends.

"You know," she is supposed to have said, "Franklin never was able to live within his income in his life."

Nice to Hear Pleas On Death Sentence

Utley Case to Be Reviewed in Baltimore, Oct. 4.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Sept. 19.—Gov. Nice announced today a hearing would be held October 4 on the death sentence imposed on Morris T. Utley for the murder of Charles T. Schimunek.

The Governor said those who wished to ask clemency for the condemned man would be allowed to state their cases at the hearing in his Baltimore offices. Utley's death warrant is before him, but has not been signed.

Utley, 29-year-old father of two, was convicted of murdering Schimunek during a grocery hold-up in Baltimore last February. Both men were from Baltimore. Some time after the shooting Utley was arrested in Lancaster, Pa.

Judge Samuel K. Dennis passed the death sentence in Baltimore criminal court. It was affirmed automatically on July 12, when the Court of Appeals divided evenly on the case. On March 11 Utley was sentenced to hang, the date of execution to be set by the Governor.

U. S. Chamber Set to Resume New Deal War

ation of Manufacturers, another big business organization, joined in the attack on constitutionality of New Deal legislation. John C. Gall, associate counsel of the organization, in a talk before the National Petroleum Association in Atlantic City yesterday, said that the labor relations act, the Guffey act, the agricultural adjustment act and the social security act are "plainly unconstitutional."

Gall added that there is "grave doubt" as to the validity of the railroad pension act, the public utilities holding company act and the reciprocal tariff act.

The manufacturers' spokesman warned that business men must not be lulled to sleep by the promises of a "breathing spell" from Government regulation and restriction. Calling attention to the President's proposal for a new NRA, Gall said that the President is "even now formulating a new 'must' program."

Gall said that Mr. Roosevelt's use of the phrase "substantially complete" in referring to his legislative program "will no doubt receive a political rather than a judicial interpretation when Congress meets in January."

"It is indeed a peculiar brand of humor which suggests to a man who is hog-tied and helpless that he may now have a 'breathing spell,'" he said.

Buick Prices Reduced for '36

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Detroit, Sept. 19.—A bid for a larger share of the 1936 auto market was seen today in the announcement by President H. H. Curtice that the company plans reductions of $40 to $385 in its new models, to be introduced formally on September 28.

Extensive changes reported to have been made on the cars are in line with the General Motors policy of concentrating extensive changes in one or two of its cars.

Two years ago the La Salles set the pace with radical streamlined changes, while last year Oldsmobile and Pontiac received the greatest attention. This year's Buicks were virtually unchanged from the previous models.

New plant machinery estimated to cost $14,500,000 has been installed in preparation for the change. Substantial savings from the manufacturing standpoint have been effected by reduction of the number of models from 21 to 15. The four lines will be powered by two different size engines instead of four as previously.

Buick sales have dropped off sharply since 93 when the company sold 90,873 cars, or 4.76 per cent of the total. In 1933 Buick sales amounted to only 43,809 units, or 2.93 per cent of the total, and in 1934 they were 63,067, or only 3.34 per cent of the total.

FAMOUS MAKER OF BEAUTIFUL SHOES OFFERS A NEW Extended CHARGE ACCOUNT SERVICE allows you to pay for your purchase over a period of three months

WHAT IS AN EXTENDED CHARGE SERVICE?

It is totally different than an ordinary Charge Account. With our EXTENDED Charge Service you can spread your payments over a period of three months. You yourself arrange the terms of payment with our credit manager.

HOW TO OPEN AN EXTENDED CHARGE ACCOUNT!

All you need to do is to write or phone for an application blank. It's very simple; not a complicated questionnaire. Better still, come to the I. Miller Store, select what you like and then, instead of opening your purse, simply say, "I want to open an EXTENDED Charge Account."

WHO IS ELIGIBLE TO OPEN AN EXTENDED ACCOUNT?

We welcome—very gladly offer this service to all women who are regularly employed or have a responsible, if modest means of support or income. It doesn't matter whether you ever had a Charge Account in other stores.

IS NOW A GOOD TIME TO OPEN AN ACCOUNT?

Yes. Right now we are showing our new Fall models—beautiful and so very chic and authoritatively "Costume-Right" shoes, bags and hose too, for Swagger Sports, Town Tailleur and Dressy Afternoon Costumes.

Italian Attack May Be Opened Today in Africa

Duce has said he will not compromise.

"Our answer will be a net and firm rejection," announced the semiofficial newspaper Messagero.

"The spirit which dominates the proposals makes them absolutely unacceptable to Italy," the foreign office spokesman affirmed to the United Press.

Sees Claims Recognized.

The spokesman hinted there might be counter-proposals to the committee of five solution, but the nature of these, of course, would prohibit their consideration by Geneva.

Evidence that the League recognizes Italy's thesis that Ethiopia is "wholely unable to govern itself and reveals barbaric and chaotic internal conditions there" was seen by officials in the League plan for international police and foreign governmental advisers to Emperor Haile Selassie.

Italian news agencies circulated a dispatch saying Haile Selassie had issued a proclamation to the population of Ethiopia today urging warriors to prepare to fight Italy. The dispatch bore a Djibouti, French Somaliland, dateline.

The proclamation was said to have bee nreceived by a great throng at Gondar, in the presence of armed troops while war drums were beating and flags flying. The abunda, chief priest, reportedly blessed those about to go to the font, while the chiefs shouted: "We have not forgotten our Eritrean brothers under foreign yoke.. This yoke certainly will be broken."

War Commission Named.

It was announced officially that prospective soldiers of the classes of 1911-12-13-14 who were rejected in the first examination will be recalled for further physical tests during the second half of October. Other classes are to have second examinations later, including the classes of 1901 to 1910.

A decree tonight announced establishment of a commission of 16 to supervise and handle problems arising between belligerents and neutrals in warfare.

The commission, which is responsible to Premier Mussolini, will proceed with revision of normal peacetime legislation affecting belligerents and neutrals and disciplinary measures connected therewith. It will include representatives of the cabinet and the war council, the chief of staff of the army, Navy, air militia forces and four jurists. Mussolini will appoint its president.

No. Illinois Public Service Dividend

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—Directors of the Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois today declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the 6 per cent preferred stock, and another of $.751 on the 7 per cent preferred.

No dividend was ordered on common shares.

The company reported net income of $103,991 for August, compared with $69,222 for August, 1934, before provision for preferred dividends. Net income for the first eight months of the year was reported as $2,026,721, and for the same period of 1934, $1,994,630.

Traffic Crashes Bring Suits Totaling $35,000

Two damage suits aggregating $35,000 were filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday as a result of traffic accidents.

In one, Rodger M. Doyle, 1219 E street southeast, asked for $25,000 from the Capital Transit Co. because a bus and an automobile in which he was riding collided at Eleventh and D streets southeast, last April. In the other, William H. Osburn, 1372 Quincy street northwest, demanded $10,000 from Meyer E. Weiner, 5804 Georgia avenue northwest, because of injuries received in an automobile accident at Eighth and Peabody streets northwest. Herbert P. Leeman and Ringgold Hart, attorneys, represent the plaintiffs.

had been no WPA strikes and that threats of strikes had not influenced him.

931,703 Now at Work.

At the same time, Hopkins reported that 931,703 persons were at work under the new program and insisted that he intended to have 3,500,000 at work by November 1. He added, however that if 90 per cent of these are employed by that time, he believed it would be a good job. President Roosevelt recently indicated that he expected 90 per cent of the goal to be reached.

The new figures indicated that only about 100,000 persons have been put to work since Hopkins made his last public report two weeks ago. If he is to accomplish his purpose, an average of 400,000 persons must be employed each week until November 1. Hopkins said weekly quotas had been set up but refused to reveal what they were.

Of the 931,703 now at work, 502,504 are in the CCC. A total of 343,504 are at work under the WPA, of whom about 150,000 are in New York City. The PWA appeared for the first time in the list with 400 persons employed from the new fund. Those employed by other agencies follow: Agriculture Department, 44,445; Interior, 3,295; Navy, 9,351; Treasury, 3,366; War, 22,356; Rural Resettlement, 2,924; Veterans Administration, 162. The grade crossing elimination program does not appear in the summary.

To Continue Direct Aid.

Hopkins said that in communities in which all employables on relief are not put to work by November 1 the Government will continue direct relief until they are. Out of the $4,880,000,000 fund the Government has alloted $845,000,000 for direct relief through September. Hopkins said he expected an additional $75,000,000 would carry direct relief to November 1.

Ickes announced at his press conference that he would be ready to submit a $200,000,000 PWA program to President Roosevelt when the latter returns to Washington next week. The PWA has been limited by the President to this amount.

Meanwhile, the Reedsville, W. Va., subsistence homestead project, one of whose most fervent sponsors is Mrs. Roosevelt, suffered what may prove to be a serious setback yesterday when Comptroller General McCarl declared its factory was constructed illegally.

Payments Held Up.

McCarl sustained his previous refusal to approve payment of a $400 architect's bill and issued instructions "for the disallowance of credit in the disbursing officer's accounts for the prior payment to the architect and for all payments which have been or may hereafter be made under the contract with the Truscon Steel Co.

In a letter to Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell, resettlement administrator, dated September 11 but not made public until yesterday, McCarl reviewed the circumstances under which the factory was built.

Proposed erection of the factory was first brought to the attention of the General Accounting Office when McCarl was asked to pass upon the transfer of $525,000 in NRA funds to the Postoffice Department, which would build and equip the factory as a PWA project to manufacture certain articles used by the postoffice.

When the Public Works Administration made no response to McCarl's request for further information, he returned the transfer warrant to the Treasury for cancellation.

Orders Are Ignored.

Nevertheless, the comptroller stated, the subsistence homesteads division of the Interior Department entered into contracts with Steward Wagner, architect, and the Truscon Steel Co., to design and build the factory.

McCarl addressed his decision to Dr. Tugwell because subsistence homestead activities have been transferred from the Interior Department to the Resettlement Administration.

Citing that section of the national industrial recovery act under which NRA funds were taken for the Reedsville factory, McCarl said:

"The construction of a factory does not appear to come within the scope of the activities authorized under that section which provided only for furnishing aid in the 'purchase of subsistence homesteads.'"

To obtain the money still due them, the Truscon Steel Co. and Wagner, the architect, have two avenues open. One is to appeal to Congress and the other is to take their fight to the Court of Claims.

170 to Get WPA Jobs In Maryland Monday

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—Nearly 170 men will be taken off Maryland relief rolls as the Works Progress program actually gets under way on Monday morning, Francis H. Dryden, State WPA head, said today as the Federal Government announced additional WPA grants.

The two largest projects will be in Baltimore City. Three others will be in Salisbury, Williamsport and Mardella Springs. To star them, 169 men will be called from relief on Monday. Other men will be added to these projects as the work gets under way, and other projects are expected to start this week.

Counterfeit King Of Nation Caught of the Bank of San Francisco, and approximately $55,000 in Federal Reserve notes on the Federal Reserve Banks of Dallas and Cleveland.

Arrest "Most Important."

Agents called the arrest the most important in the last ten years. At Washington, Joseph Murphy, assistant chief of the Secret Service, termed Watts the underworld's leading maker of plates and bogus notes.

He said that Watts, through his work, had been responsible for the convictions of 150 to 200 persons who were sent to prison for trying to pass counterfeit money.

Watts' arrest came yesterday, although announced only today, when an agent posed as a milk man to gain entrance into his apartment after months of patient search and investigation of a myriad of little clews.

United States Attorney John J. Manning stated at Watts' arraignment that he was indicted in Chicago and New York and that a third indictment was expected soon in New Jersey.

Foreign Markets.

London—After an uneventful morning session where in Kaffirs were the firmest section, prices on the stock exchange drooped, with a setback taking place in British funds owing to unfavorable reports regarding the Italian-Abyssinian situation, according to the Associated Press. Home and Argentine rails strengthened later, but gold mining shares weakened on Paris sales. The market closed dull.

Paris—Prices still reflected uncertainty on the bourse yesterday due to the international situation. Rentes showed a scant tendency to improve, with bank and industrial issues yielding. International shares moved irregularly. The closing tone was heavy.

value in the formulation of arms embargoes.

For instance, the neutrality act does not define the term "arms, ammunition and implements of war" which the President is directed to embargo, nor does it define the same phrase in the section which makes it unlawful to manufacture or export such articles without a license from the board.

Thus it is apparent that a list of "arms, ammunition and implements of war" must be formulated before any embargo proclamation can be issued and it is likewise apparent that the Cabinet board, which is to supervise the manufacture and export of such articles is the best agency to determine the list.

Experts Drafting List.

It is possible that long before the board officially begins to function President Roosevelt will be called on to issue a proclamation to the effect that war exists between Italy and Ethiopia, thus putting into effect an embargo on shipments to those countries of articles enumerated by him to be "arms, ammunition and implements of war."

Experts of the State Department, with the assistance of others in the War, Navy and Commerce departments, are engaged in drafting such a list. Due to the fact that the Huey Long filibuster in the closing hours of Congress prevented the appropriation of $25,000 for the expenses of this work, each department has contributed members of its regular personnel.

Incidentally, while the President must proclaim an embargo on arms shipments to those nations involved at the outbreak of a war between now and March 1, he is powerless to interfere with such shipments before hostilities start. For that reason, apparently, there is unusual activity in arms factories at this time, according to dispatches.

The Governor plainly was shocked by the rebellion within his ranks and other lieutenants expressed anger.

A few hours later candidates for lesser State offices almost fell over each other making their announcements.

The first of these was E. A. Conway, announcing for re-election as Secretary of State, saying it was Huey Long's wish that he remain in office. He was quickly followed by annoucements for re-election of L. B. Baynard, jr., State auditor, and Lucille Grace, registrar of the State land office. All stand on a Huey Long complete-the-work platform, while other lieutenants advocate dropping the Huey Long issue, since he is dead.

Ellender Shocked.

Gov. Allen has declined to make any statement. Some of his advisers have urged him to remain silent until all of the candidatorial announcing is over and then announce which ones will receive administration support.

The Noe-Martin announcements came as a shock to Allen J. Ellender, speaker of the house and an active applicant for his faction's support for Governor.

"I have not seen Lieut. Gov. Noe's statement, " he said, "but I cannot believe that such a statement comes from Mr. Noe. I am delighted at Mr. Conway's announcement."

Serious Schism Likely.

Ellender has strong backing for the governorship and is in a position to cause a serious schism in the ranks of the Long faction. The Noe followers have attempted to mollify him by asking him to join the ticket as lieutenant governor, with the promise they would support him four years hence for the governorship. But Ellender was reported as not taking kindly to the suggestion.

The row in the Long camp was being watched keenly by the anti-Longs, who were having trouble with their own slate. Representative Cleveland Dear, who leads in the talk over an anti-candidate for Governor, said they were not ready to announce their candidates yet.

Astor made real estate the basis of his income. He had a knack for making dependable investments, as well as profitable ones. It is said Astor's income was $6,000 a day.

Income from real estate comes first—but income is of secondary importance unless guarded by dependability. With Shannon & Luchs Investment Service these two major business principles govern all recommendations—first, the investment we recommend must be substantially secured — second, it must definitely yield from 10% to 15% income return to the investor.

12% YIELD WITH SAFETY

Consult one of our executives today about a Shannon & Luchs "Verified Property Value" yielding from 12% to 15% return on investments from $15,000 to $30,000.

Apple Mary — By Martha Orr

GEE, I SURE AM DUMB! FELT SO SMART ABOUT GETTING MARY'S MONEY BACK, AND THEN I TURN AROUND AND LOSE IT.
WOULDN'T BLAME HER IF SHE'D THROW ME OUT. I'LL HAVE TO FIND THOSE CROOKS WHO SWIPED THE SUITCASE WITH THE MONEY IN IT AND WHEN I DO—
THAT NIGHT IN MARY'S CHEAP LITTLE ROOM.
SOMEBODY'S AT THE DOOR. I'LL BET IT'S MR. CRAFTEE! GRAN'MA'S ASLEEP, SO IF I'M REAL QUIET, MAYBE HE'LL GO AWAY.
OUTSIDE—
THIS MAKES THE THIRD PLACE I'VE LOOKED FOR MARY. NO ONE SEEMS TO KNOW WHERE SHE'S GONE. WELL, IT'S THE PARK FOR ME TONIGHT, AND SERVES ME RIGHT.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

New York, Sept. 19.

WHAT is the reaction of a Broadway playboy who suddenly rushes away from smoke-filled night clubs and old-fashioned cocktails, hides himself in the Adirondack woods and turns hill-billy? . . . I flew to Speculator, N. Y., yesterday in a Stinson, piloted by Dick Merrill, to learn the reactions of Max Baer, reformed playboy of the Western world . . . We had read in the papers that Baer was almost hysterical in his desire to get back to Broadway . . . This a Broadway columnist could well believe . . . The last time I'd seen Baer on the stem, before his marriage, he was dancing a rhumba with a gorgeous creature at El Morocco . . . The room was filled with smoke and noise and the popping of champagne corks . . . Youthful playboys were creeping on hands and knees between the tables to apply a hot foot to unsuspecting patrons . . . It was a happy, healthy night club scene, and Baer was as happy and healthy as the rest, with bags under his eyes . . . I thought of these things as we swung through the air with the greatest of ease, and privately I mourned for the playboy who had gone hill-billy . . . I remembered how Baer and I had left a night club one night, stepped out in the fresh air and almost were felled by it, and I had a mental picture of him strangling to death in the fresh pine air of the Adirondacks.

CHATTERTON.

* * * *

At Speculator, I found the greatest physical specimen that ever trained up there, and you will remember that Gene Tunney and Max Schmeling used that spot for prepping . . . Baer, contrary to the low moans in the newspapers, is in the finest mental and physical condition of his career, and ready for what I believe will be a savagely effective fight . . . The Hermit of the Adirondacks, with a three days' growth of beard on his face, and his hands colloused and rough from swinging an ax, is rarin' to go . . . If he looks bad in boxing, trace it to his determination to come into the ring with his hands in perfect shape . . . His work on the big bag, when he flailed into it with both hands, was something to make your eyes pop out . . . I've never seen a fighter discharge his punches with equal force . . . Mentally, he is in magnificent shape . . . He talks fight, fight, fight all day long, but that is a healthy way to remove all tension . . . "I'll outrough Louis, I'll outfight him and I'll knock him out," is what he says, boiled down . . . It's hard to recognize in the Hermit of the Adirondacks the baggy-eyed playboy who cut up on Broadway . . . The Baer I saw was a rough, tough giant, with a load of venom in his eyes.

* * * *

There are 118 shows coming to Broadway stages this season . . . The greatest of these will be the Baer-Louis fight, for it has more drama packed into it than any scenario . . . The menace is Louis, a poker-faced villain that might grace any melodrama of Al H. Woods . . . The love interest is Baer, who was riding on top of the world until the stirrups slipped . . . He learned, from Braddock, the homely lesson that is taught by the hare and the tortoise, or as Cecil B. DeMille might phrase it: "The wages of sin is death" . . . But DeMille and the moralists of stage and screen also tell of the gainful joy in repentance . . . So I must string along with the repentant Hermit of the Adirondacks . . . Sinners always are pleasant companions, and having sat with Baer in smoke-filled night clubs, I cannot leave him now . . . I pick the hill-billy of El Morocco, the playboy who turned over a new leaf.

* * * *

On the roof of the Loew Building, two nights ago, a group of us previewed the Jack Benny-Eleanor Powell picture . . . As the reels unwound, I was thinking back to the week of April 13, 1934, when in that same building, Miss Powell received $500 for a week's work in my Dawn Patrol vaude act . . . She was a positive sensation on the stage of Loew's State, stopping the show at each of 28 performances . . . It was during our week's engagement that she started getting moving picture offers, and she was scared stiff that she'd be a flop in pictures . . . Now she is a Metro dancing star, a femme Astaire.

"Hot Cha," the last show Ziegfeld put on, and in which Eleanor Powell appeared, is a whole volume of "Water Under the Bridge" . . . Of that cast, Eleanor Veloz and Yolanda, and the De Marcos have talkie-clicked . . . So have June Knight, Lynne Overman, Tito Coral and Robert Gleckler, and little Theo Phane is now on the Coast . . . Of the chorus and showgirls, Lorelle McCarver, Betty Dumbriss, Joan Burgess, Iris Adrian and Sherry Pelham are married . . . I saw Mary Alice Rice at the Runyon show with Conrad Nagel . . . Little Gloria Kelly has died . . . Art Jarrett, who replaced Buddy Rogers in the lead, went into the movies and married Eleanor Holm the water champ . . . Ziegfeld's judgment of talent has been borne out in the passage of years, for "Hot Cha" was loaded with it, as 1935 proves.

* * * *

Page Apples Damaged 20 Per Cent by Rains

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Luray, Va., Sept. 18.—The Page County apple crop has been damaged 20 per cent by heavy rains. Thousands of bushels of apples have burst open. All orchards throughout the Shenandoah Valley have suffered heavy losses and grounds are covered with apples. Mountain districts have been the heaviest losers. Winesaps and Ben Davis have been the varieties most affected.

Attack Victim in Hospital.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 19.—Harold Baker, 19, is recovering at the Waynesboro Hospital, where he was taken Tuesday night by a motorist who found him lying in a dazed condition along a highway near here. According to Baker he was attacked by an unknown assailant while returning to his home here from a park. He is suffering from head injuries, but is expected to recover.

16 Apply in Petersburg For City Managership

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 19.—Thirteen out-of-town applications have been received by City Council for the position of city manager and three local men have applied. The Petersburg candidates are Edward D. Lucas, Montgomery C. Jackson, sr., and James F. Speidel.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Henry A. Yancey, who accepted a similar post in Durham, N. C.

Jobless Rolls Cut 785 In Petersburg Area

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 19.—Private employment and Federal aid have contributed largely in recent weeks tiesto relieving unemployment in Petersburg and surrounding couning. Although 8,946 persons were on the list of unemployed September 15 in Petersburg, Hopewell, Prince Georges, Chesterfield and Dinwiddie, 795 others were taken off the list through public and private employment in the period from August 1 to September 15.

The number of persons out of employment in Petersburg and registered with the National Re-employment Service is 3,225.

New Winchester Rates Save Gas Users $4,000

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 19.—Consumers of gas in this city will save $4,000 during the year starting October 1 as a result of rates which will take effect on that date, it was announced by E. C. Goss, manager of the Consumers Utility Co., upon receipt of information that the State corporation commission has approved a schedule providing reductions.

The rates will affect approximately 50 per cent of the users from the outset and the reduction will become general within a brief period, it was said.

Garden Club to Meet.

Roses, particularly the newer varieties, will be discussed Monday night at a meeting of the Takoma Horticultural Club by Dr. Whitman Cross. Members will bring blooms from their own gardens to demonstrate the newer species. Questions on fall planting and other subjects dealing with roses will be answered by Dr. Cross. The meeting will be held at the Takoma branch of the public library, Cedar and Fifth streets.

WASHINGTON'S 19 FORD DEALERS SAY---
"Thank You - This is our party"

ACCEPT THIS $10 DIVIDEND COUPON
For Making This a Record Ford V-8 Year!

Here we are—the Authorized Ford Dealers of Washington—getting together to bring you the greatest used car opportunity we have ever offered. We've put our entire stock of famous-name used cars up for quick clearance at prices that make looking further a sheer waste of time!

You know us—you know our used cars by name. You know that these names have long stood for the biggest values in Washington. Now we are giving these popular names extra meaning and value by passing back to the motorists of this city the savings made possible by Washington's record demand for the 1935 Ford V-8.

This sale lasts only till October 3, so it will pay you to choose now while the pickings are prime. We're giving highest trade-in allowances and lowest terms. Remember, your car has a higher trade-in value now than it will later on. You can save two ways by buying now. You'll never forgive yourself if you miss this opportunity! Clip the $10 Dividend Coupon and bring it now, while selection is complete.

Here's How You Get EXTRA Value!

1. A car with a trade-mark that means something—a name that has cost years of time and thousands of dollars to establish.
2. A car that's backed to the limit by your Ford Dealer's guarantee of satisfaction.
3. Easy terms made-to-measure during this sale to fit your budget or income.
4. A car that has been put in its best running order and is ready to give you 100 cents worth of performance for every dollar you invest.

EXTRA! $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES

On The Air Today

ODDS and ends of activities and rumors about the airways these days:

Al Donahue is replacing Ray Noble at Rockefeller Center's rainbow room while the English maestro is vacationing . . . It's Donahue's first engagement in Manhattan . . . Jessica Dragonette has been announced as the winner of Radio Guide's second annual "Radio Queen" listeners' contest . . . She will be crowned at the radio show in New York this week.

• • • •

Jack Benny will give his two new cohorts—Michael Bartlett and Johnny Green—plenty of opportunity to display their comedy and dramatic talents when the Benny show returns to the air on the 29th . . . Six music and radio editors, three noted singers, two motion picture executives and Eddie Duchin and Louis A. Witten will serve as judges and select the finalists in Duchin's "National Radio Open" next Thursday.

• • • •

N. B. C. has been looking for the best possible fight broadcaster and their enthusiasm produced an ingenious test. Hal Totten, Bob Brown, Sam Kaney and Warren Brown (the latter a Chicago sports writer) described what they saw as two Chicago pugs milled around in four rounds of boxing in one of N. B. C.'s Chicago studios. A recording was made of each man's description and network executives will decide who gets fisticuff assignments in the future.

• • • •

Phil Baker will sing (!) when his new show opens on the 29th. He's been nursing a secret ambition for years and now he's going to try it. It is reported that the news was conveyed to Lawrence Tibbett and Michael Bartlett and they issued a joint statement: "We view with alarm this new rival in a field of artistry peculiarly our own."

• • • •

Accompanied by Portland Hoffa and the Mighty Allen Art Players, Fred Allen returns to Town Hall Tonight October 2 . . . Rumor is going about that Paul Whiteman gave up his Thursday night Music Hall show (effective in November) because a new sponsor would pay him more money, which seems like a sensible way to view one's broadcasting activities.

A dozen telephone calls in the last day have resulted in the referring of names of many institutions to Uncle George Wasserman, who has most generously agreed to donate at least 100 radio receivers to worthy orphanages, homes for the aged, hospitals, etc. If you know of some public home or institution needing a good radio set for brightening the long winter hours, write or telephone your suggestion to Radio Editor, The Washington Post. "Uncle George" is George Wasserman, owner of George's Radio Co.

• • • •

James Melton, ace radio tenor, is expected to return to New York early in October, following a whirl at the movies, to star in several Music Box Theater productions. Melton has been making a cinema entitled "Stars Over Broadway."

• • • •

Xavier Cugat and his orchestra open today at the Earle and Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra open at the same time at the Fox. No better combination could be offered the radio-listening, theater-going public. Each maestro specializes in a type of music utterly unlike the other. And so far as my personal tastes go, the bands are aces in their fields.

• • • •

Carole Lombard guests for Hollywood Hotel, WJSV, at 8 . . . Rose Bampton sings the title role in "Carmen," Beauty Box Theater, WMAL, at 8. J. H. H.

• • • •

N. B. C. visits Joe Louis' camp this afternoon at 5 (WRC) and Max Baer's camp tomorrow afternoon at 5:35 (WMAL). A brief background of each boxer's life will be followed by discussion of the championship match next week direct from the fighters' headquarters.

State to Allot Alleghany Roa. $480,000 Fund

Program Envisages Work on McMullen Route and Highway 40.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 19.—The Maryland State Roads Commission, according to Dr. Homer E. Tabler, chairman, plans to spend $480,000 in this locality on the basis of Government grants f 45 per cent of the amount,the State contributing 55 per cent. Dr. Tabler sid that plans are in prospect for the improvement of Route 40, national highway, in and near Cumberland, and also stated that the McMullen highway between the Celanese plant and McCoole will be widened.

Members of the commission, who met with Allegany County officials, explained that they are seeking the co-operation of various county groups to reduce financial deficits, in order to carry out the improvement program. The Allegany County deficit at present, according to the State board figures, is $72,000.

Finley C. Hendrickson, attorney for Trinity Lutheran Church, which owns a summer camp near Flintstone, asked the Allegany County commissioners to have the old Hancock road maintained at its present width from the Town Creek road to the church's camp. He stated the road is being narrowed by the encroachment of bordering property owners who are constantly adding parts of it to their holdings.

The old Hancock road was a settlement trail and, records show, the first road for pack teams and wagons betwen Cumberland and Hancock before the present Baltimore turnpike was built to Cumberland. Though shown on the maps, the road is partly obliterated.

State Inquiry In Willebrandt Crash Started

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 19.—State authorities have taken charge of the investigation into the accident Tuesday night, in which the automobile driven by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant United States Attorney General, was in a collision with another car, resulting in the injury of three persons, including Mrs. Willebrandt.

State Officer H. F. Schultheis, announced he has cited Mrs. Willebrandt to appear later on a charge of failing to keep to the right of the center of the highway, but that no warrant will be issued pending the outcome of injuries suffered by Lewis H. Blair, 69, who is in Washington County Hospital.

County officers, who first investigated the accident, apparently had withdrawn from the case, as a warrant on the same charge, in the hands of Magistrate C. Edward Heard, and in the name of Deputy Sheriff Leister Isanogle, was not sworn to and therefore withheld. It was indicated yesterday by Mrs. Willebrandt's attorney, Kenneth McLaughlin, that county officials would not place a charge against Mrs. Willebrandt. The citing of Mrs. Willebrandt was said by Officer Schulteius to be a customary procedure in all accident cases in which injuries result.

The condition of Blair, who was riding with the Rev. James E. Hunton, driver of the other automobile involved, was unchanged. Mrs. W. D. Walker, of Fairfield, Pa., Mrs. Willebrandt's mothers, is improving.

Woman Dies in Crash

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 19 (AP).—Two persons injured in an automobile-truck crash that claimed the life of a young woman were recovering tonight while investigation proceeded.

An inquest into the death of Mrs. Myrtle Cooper Truitt, 16, of Willards, will be held tomorrow. She died in a hospital early today shortly after the accident.

James Messick, of Ocean City, driver of the automobile in which Mrs. Truitt was riding, and Virginia Hall, of Ocean City, a passenger, suffered cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred early today on United States route No. 13 a short distance south of here. State police said Meeick's car crashed into the rear of a truck driven by E. D. Outten, of Machipongo, Va.

Howison Rites Held in Church That He Served

Fredericksburg Presbyterian Elder Was Clerk of Session 50 Years.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 19.—Funeral services were held today at the Presbyterian Church for S. Graham Howison, who died at his home, Braehead, near here yesterday after a brief illness.

A native of Richmond and member of a prominent Virginia family, Mr. Howison had spent most of his life in this section. He was born in 1850, the son of Dr. Robert Reid Howison and Mary Graham Howison.

S. Graham Howison was an elder in the Presbyterian Church which he joined in 1870 and was for 50 years clerk of the session.

For 25 years he was official weather observer in this section for the United States Weather Bureau.

He is survived by four children, Mrs. J. Brookes Smith, of Baltimore; Miss Mary Graham Howison, of Richmond; Mrs. Wallace T. Stevens, of Fredericksburg, and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Marion M. McClung Sterrett, of Rockbridge County.

Mrs. Maggie E. Brown.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 19.—Services will be conducted tomorrow at Hodgesville M. E. Church South for Mrs. Maggie E. Brown, 71, who died at her Hedgesville home Wednesday after a two-year illness.

She was born at Orrstown, Franklin County, Pa., the daughter of Alfred K. and Martha Spencer Kyner. She moved with her parents to this county. She attended the Berkeley County schools and taught later in the school system here.

She was active in the M. E. Church South in Hodgesville, especially in Sunday school work; was president for years of Ladies' Aid of the church until ill-health forced her retirement, and was for years secretary and treasurer of the Hedgesville Cemetery Association.

She leaves two daughters and three sons, Mrs. R. K. Pearrell, Washington; Mrs. Boyd Ellis, Spring Mills, W. Va.; Howard K. Brown, this city; Robert R. Brown, this city; and J. Arthur Brown, at the Hedgesville home, and four sisters, Mrs. E. N. Rickard, Hedgesville; Mrs. H. J. Blue, Leetown, W. Va.; Mrs. J. D. Knadler, this city, and Mrs. J. C. Blue, of the county.

Burial will be in the Hedgesville Cemetery.

Howard J. Somerville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frostburg, Md., Sept. 19.—Funeral services were held today at the First Presbyterian Church here for Howard Jones Somerville, 72, sales manager for the Maltbie Chemical Co., of New York, who died Tuesday at his home in Baltimore. The Rev. Henry Little, pastor, officiated. Burial was in Allegany Cemetery.

Services in Baltimore were held at the home of his son, William J. Somerville, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Somerville's survivors include his widow, Margaret Somerville; one other son, John Howard Somerville; a daughter, Lucille, Baltimore; two brothers, Archibald T. B. Somerville, Ashland, Ky., and Albert B. Somerville, Ocean, Md., and two sisters, Mrs. Laura Brotemarkle, Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. George H. Shaw, Ocean.

Mr. Somerville was a son of the late John Somerville, superintendent of the Pickell Coal & Iron Co., Barton, Md. He left this section 35 years ago and was a resident of Newark, N. J., for a number of years, having been a member of Central Presbyterian Church, of that city.

Henry D. Williams.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 19.—Funeral services took place today for Henry D. Williams, native and lifelong resident of Fredericksburg, who died at his home here Tuesday night. Learning the trade of cigarmaker before machine-made cigars were known, Mr. Williams worked at the business for many years and at one time manufactured and marketed boxed cigars in Fredericksburg and this section of Virginia.

Mr. Williams was a nephew of John Elder, well-known artist. One sister, Miss Kate Williams, with whom he made his home, survives.

Whenever you hear anyone mention the "Result Number," he is talking about Post Classified Ads—National 4200.

WITH VITAMIN D MILK

Those first steps! How important they are. Bones must be strong enough to stand his weight and carry him through eager heedless play.

Milk, as you know, gives him the necessary bone-building minerals: calcium and phosphorus. Our Grade A Pasteurized milk is very rich in these essentials and the addition of Vitamin D (extracted from pure cod liver oil) does not change the taste in the least. It does however help him retain and utilize these bone and teeth-forming minerals.

More License Than Liberty.

If the Liberty League's report on the constitutionality of the national labor act had appeared before passage of that law, it might have been very useful to Congress. At any rate, its purpose would have been unmistakable. With the criticized legislation on the statute books, however, issuance of the report would appear to be a waste of effort, unless the idea is to stimulate threescore lawyers with labor affiliations to declare the legislation completely constitutional. Undoubtedly this could very easily be arranged.

It is, of course, desirable to secure a speedy decision from the Supreme Court on this unquestionably vulnerable law. But a final decision will not be hastened by premature rehearsal of arguments certain to be set forth at length in lawyers' briefs whenever employers challenge the constitutionality of the Wagner act. Thus one is forced to the conclusion that the report of the 58 lawyers serves no purpose except as an endeavor to discredit the Administration. And it seems a roundabout way to accomplish that end.

Chairman Desvernine, however, vigorously defends his committee against the imputation that the report is to be used as political ammunition. He emphasizes the ability and competence of the co-operating lawyers and points out that a large number of them are "persons publicly known to be Democrats." Mr. Desvernine not only protests overmuch and rather prematurely, but he displays a most unlegal naivete in implying that no Democrat would launch a political attack against the Roosevelt Administration.

The professional competence of the committee is doubtless above reproach. However, its ability is not being challenged. The question that calls for an answer has to do with the motives that induced these corporation lawyers to publish their opinions at this time, instead of waiting until a client paid them to prepare a brief on the subject. The report seems either a thinly disguised political attack, or an effort to influence the Supreme Court in a matter which the legal profession might properly regard as sub judice. And neither choice would be in keeping with the Liberty League's ostensibly reverential attitude toward the finest American traditions.

Military Adviser.

Assignment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to the post of military adviser to the Philippine Commonwealth is an appropriate birthday present for the new government. Few gifts will be more welcome at Manila than the expert services of the retiring Chief of Staff of the United States Army. No doubt the assignment is also pleasing to Gen. MacArthur, whose previous service in the Philippines won him a host of friends and the deep admiration of President Quezon.

Among the numerous responsibilities assumed by the new commonwealth government are two that demand special attention: the achievement of economic stability and the development of a national defense system that will enable the Philippines to maintain the independence now assured the islands. In working out the latter problem the services of Gen. MacArthur will be invaluable. He has just completed reorganizing the American Army along modern lines. His genius in this direction, together with his previous service on three different occasions in the Philippines, made him the logical choice for an undertaking in which he will practically start from scratch.

Since the Spanish-American War the Philippines have relied upon the United States for defense. Their nearest approach to an army is a small constabulary. When a permanent government is set up at Manila it will become responsible for the safety of 1,500 islands; and thus far it has no navy whatever. Tragic as it is that national existence is dependent to some extent upon military force, that fact must nevertheless be recognized. Even now the world is witnessing such flagrant examples of imperialistic aggression that no country without the means of self-defense can safely assume that its independence will be respected.

It is not to be supposed that the Philippine nation which is to succeed the transitory commonwealth will rely entirely upon the strength of its arms for protection against any potential foe. Yet the development of a substantial defense system will be an important part of its preparation for independent existence. Not only has the United States a great responsibility for guiding the commonwealth in this major task; it also has a vital interest in giving the Philippine nation the best possible start, so that it will be less inclined to fall back upon this country in times of emergency.

Two League Reports.

A year after the outbreak of hostilities in Manchuria the Lytton Commission, composed of British, Italian, French, American and German experts, made its famous report, containing a formula for solution of the Sino-Japanese dispute. That formula called for international co-operation in Chinese reconstruction, while emphasizing Japan's "rights and interests" in Manchuria. The careful logic and scrupulous fairness of the Lytton report won world-wide recognition. But it came to nothing because, at the time of its presentation, Japan had already entrenched herself in Manchuria, and the great powers were then unwilling to exert pressure to force an equitable settlement.

Another committee of five, also appointed by the League Council, but this time composed of Spanish, British, French, Polish and Turkish representatives, has now presented a report "capable of serving as a basis for negotiations" in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. Although the text has not yet been made public, its recommendations are known to be similar to those of the commission of inquiry headed by Lord Lytton. International assistance to modernize Ethiopia is urged and specific recognition is given to "Italy's special interests in the economic development" of the primitive East African Empire. But while the formula of settlement is similar in the two cases, one profound difference between the reports is obvious.

That difference is in the relation of the proposed settlement to the stage reached by the controversy. The current League proposal comes before, not after, the commencement of hostilities. It seeks a compromise between the disputants in advance of the creation of a fait accompli. And thereby it provides an automatic definition of the aggressor—by pinning that stigma on the party refusing to consider this "basis for negotiations." It was the absence of any such automatic definition which greatly helped Japan to baffle League efforts in the Sino-Japanese controversy.

This notable advance in League technique is partly due to the incredibly blunt diplomacy of Mussolini, in whose favor it must be said that he has never played the hypocrite about his plans. But the advance is also due to the fact that those who direct League procedure have learned from past mistakes. There was no fatal weakness in the League machinery of 1931. It was then in some ways stronger than is the case today. The machinery, however, was never squarely directed against Japan's subtle aggression. It is being very skillfully guided to thwart Italy's much more lumbering tactics.

Moreover the League, unless it is to disintegrate, cannot temporize with the peculiarly wanton character of the contemplated Italian aggression. That of Japan was equally a violation of treaty obligations. But it was a more polished assault on the structure of international law than the brazen offensive which Mussolini preaches to his regimented people. The more complete and ruthless the dictatorship, the greater its indifference not merely to domestic opinion but also to that of the world. Japan is no democracy, but at least she worked overtime to justify her actions at Geneva. Fascist Italy has scarcely attempted to defend her policy, thus forcing a showdown beyond possibility of evasion.

So that to a natural sympathy for the helpless victim, which was probably much stronger for China than for Ethiopia, is now added a developing understanding of the greater issue in the background. This is the claim of a dictator, who recognizes no law but that of force, to a Napoleonic "freedom of action." The civilized world knows that if Mussolini is allowed to establish this claim, Hitler will cite it next. The civilized world also knows that in a twentieth century world there must be some advance on nineteenth century rules. Either the modern Napoleons must be curbed by force or the cumbersome machinery of democracy, as Hitler predicts, will eventually go down before its arrogant, smashing might. We shall then revert, in economic as in political conditions, to a relatively primitive social order.

The democracies of the world have been slow to grasp the magnitude of the issues now in the balance at Geneva. Indeed many in this country, clamoring for "mandatory neutrality" in any trouble which may come, are only now beginning to realize that there is an issue far deeper than any traditional European feuds. Nor is that surprising. Fortunately for its peace of mind, mankind is not accustomed to crises in which a tip of the balance, one way or the other, will move the race a century or more, either back or forward, in its thinking and in its living.

A Healthy Stimulus.

Announcement that the United States Steel Corporation is spending $70,000,000 for the improvement of plant and equipment and expects to add another $70,000,000 to that outlay within the near future is good news. Apart from the fact that such a large addition to capital expenditures shows a revival of confidence and a renewed spirit of enterprise, it is worth noting that the outlays are designed to bring about greater economy and efficiency in operation by dismantling obsolete equipment and relocating plants to better advantage. Some money also will be spent for expanding the use of steel and discovering new outlets for its consumption.

Capital investment of this sort does not merely add to existing industrial equipment and thus intensify the problems created by already superfluous producing facilities. It replaces outworn or inefficient equipment with more economical devices. And it reaches out into new fields to find markets for cheaper products. While the United States Steel Corporation is said to be eager to regain business lost to competitors, its program of expansion will benefit the industries using steel products and currently increase demands for the output of heavy industries supplying the required equipment.

It may be hoped that the effect on stimulating employment, responding very slowly to improving industrial conditions, will also be clearly beneficial.

The Eccles Appointment.

Appointment of Marriner S. Eccles as chairman of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System is not a surprise. His continuance in office had been virtually taken for granted until delay in announcing his selection for the post gave rise to unfounded rumors that he might be contemplating retirement to private life.

During his period of service as governor of the Federal Reserve Board Mr. Eccles has actively directed the campaign for a revision of the banking laws designed to give the board effective control over credit policies. Largely through the efforts of Senator Glass, the so-called Eccles bill was extensively amended. However, the compromise measure finally enacted achieves the main objective of the Eccles program, by increasing the board's powers to control the volume of outstanding credit and dictate open-market policies.

Changes in the composition of the board, accepted at the urging of Senator Glass, provided needed safeguards against Executive domination and should enhance the board's prestige as an independent agency. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency will no longer serve as ex-officio members. Furthermore, seven appointive members, not more than four of whom may belong to the same political party, are to take the place of the six Democratic members of the present board. The lengthened term of service likewise affords greater protection against political coercion.

Governor Eccles has had practical experience as a private banker and, during his brief career as head of the Federal Reserve system, he has shown a comprehensive grasp of the theoretical problems of credit control which fall within the province of the Federal Reserve authorities. One may disagree with his views concerning the dominant role played by credit and monetary policies in assisting and guiding recovery, but it is generally conceded that the conduct of credit policy should be centralized and responsibility definitely located.

Mr. Eccles, however, is only one of the seven members of the board of governors who will be jointly responsible for directing the operations of the Reserve system. The views of a majority of the seven will determine the credit policies to be followed. Consequently, the President should exercise as great care in the selection of the remaining members of the board as in the choice of a chairman. It is more important to secure men of outstanding ability and independence to head the system than it is to perfect and strengthen the laws, rules and regulations which define their powers.

At the present time the Treasury is in a position to dominate the money market and checkmate efforts to control an undesirable expansion of credit. Courage, diplomacy and skillful maneuvering will be needed, therefore, if the board of governors should be confronted by the necessity of curbing credit excesses at a time when the Treasury's financial needs call for cheap money and liberal lending.

Jules Cambon.

In the little town of Veyey, on the Lake of Geneva, a once famous and almost always successful diplomat died yesterday at the age of 90. Friend of the elder Roosevelt and negotiator of the peace treaty which concluded the Spanish-American War, he was an ardent advocate of Franco-American friendship. During his five years as Ambassador at Washington he was as popular here as his elder brother, Paul, became during his long service at London. Yet, surprisingly scant notice is given to Jules Cambon's death.

Perhaps this was because he belonged to an order that had passed before his own life ended. He became an avocat in 1866. He served in the Franco-Prussian War, and his diplomatic career, which included the governor generalship of Algeria, began soon after Sedan. It lasted through Agadir, when he told the Germans that "in the interest of our good relations, don't multiply our common boundaries."

From his last bed of illness in Switzerland, Cambon must, indeed, have looked southward with startled eyes toward Italy, must have listened with puzzled ears to the speeches in nearby Geneva where, with new methods, new statesmen have been trying to save the peace of the world. There was much, it is true, to be said against the methods of Cambon's school. There was nothing, however, to be said against either the characters or the careers of such of its exemplars as Jules Cambon.

Il Duce tells Ward Price, of the London Daily Mail: "There is no such thing as an Ethiopian nation. What makes up Ethiopia is a dominant race of Amharas ruling over tribes which they conquered and reduced to slavery." Possibly—but, in any event, the slaves seem strongly disinclined to change masters.

You can tell when a man isn't sure of his position. He gets mad if you differ with him.

Extra, Extra! Supreme Court Decision!

Letters To The Editor.

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Maybe A Mirage.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a letter to The Post on September 18 by "Fourteenth Street" I find the following statement: "Certainly, if the combined forces of earth fail to stop Mussolini, we have had a glimpse of moral grandeur which should dissipate any pessimism as to what the world will sooner or later come to in international agreement. Again, I affirm, the League is not dead, nor will it die * * * Thanks to Mussolini that he has at least forced a crisis which has meant a revelation—to America."

Will "Fourteenth Street" kindly state for my information and that of thousands of other readers of The Post why, when Japan "forced" an exactly similar "crisis" by her invasion and conquest of Manchuria, the League utterly failed to give the world that "glimpse of moral grandeur" with which she is now dazzling America? Why "apply the boot" to Mussolini and not to Japan? Verily, "Consistency, thou art a jewel of great price!"

Is it possible that a covetous "glimpse" of the beautifully clear, green-blue waters of Lake Tana leads up to a superb exhibition of "moral grandeur!" If so, what a pity for poor China that there was no such lake in Manchuria!

CHARLES FISK TANSILL.

Theme Songs For AAA.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As most programs have theme songs, I would suggest to Mr. Wallace, with his AAA program, the following theme songs:

To finish this year, "Bye, Bye, Pork Chops."

And to start the new year, "Yes, We Have No Potatoes."

"Be Of Good Cheer."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reply to Mr. Skidmore's letter of September 11, does he recall that when Christ was on earth He told His disciples, John xvi:12: "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but be of good cheer, I have overcome the world?" In St. John xvi:12: "I have yet many things to say with you, but ye cannot hear them now."

The Christian is not promised worldly pleasures, but peace, spiritual joy and strength and grace for our needs. Christ came because we were in darkness and could not understand and we needed Him. Let us accept him.

Vindicating Dr. Wirt.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Dr. Wirt told a congressional committee that, at the famous dinner in Virginia, some of the brain trusters said that they had President Roosevelt in the middle of the stream and that he could not turn back if he would. Now Gen. Johnson points out that if Mr. Roosevelt stops spending billions on relief we will have revolt by the unemployed.

Looks as though Dr. Wirt told the truth, because the alleged conversation exactly describes just where the brain trusters and radicals in our Government put Mr. Roosevelt right at the start. OBSERVER.

The Ubiquitous W. C. T. U.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The writer has read The Post for many years and is a regular reader of it at the present time. He considers it a great newspaper and ably edited.

A recent editorial entitled "Pitcairn Gained," which is equal to a comic strip, has stirred us. The W. C. T. U. in its 61 years has raised many millions of dollars and spent it and also much blood and labor, not to support itself, nor to provide jobs for a livelihood, but to carry its benevolent influences to the remotest regions of the world. The variety of its curriculum is unequaled by any other organization on the face of the earth. Its fight against the liquor traffic is but a drop in the bucket of its activities. Its labors are sacrificial in extreme degree.

No other organization is entitled to as much credit, or discredit, if you so please to term it, of writing the eighteenth amendment into the Constitution. As an organization it is forging ahead, increasing its numbers and consolidating its forces and while you, Mr. Editor, are "brooding" over humorous incidents superficially, it will slip up on you with another nationally dry system and you will be seen going around with your tongue hanging out with thirst, and all you will find to slake it will be plain, unadulterated soft water.

Mrs. Boole was for many years president of both the national and world union. A few years ago she was succeeded in the former office by Mrs. Smith. She is still president of the world union, and so completely has it girdled the globe, that when the Island of Pitcairn was entered last year there was real news to report at Atlantic City. The members of that convention knew what they were doing when they cheered the report of this item.

W. B. WITHERSPOON.
Huntsville, Ala., Sept. 17.

"For Old Men Only."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The press of September 13 carried the story of a factory that has recently been organized in Kansas City "for old men only." These old men got tired of applying for jobs and being told "We are hiring only young men," so together they found a way to make work for themselves and the experiment is proving successful and in addition to giving these men wages, is giving them, also, new hope and new confidence and pride.

There is something almost ludicrous about all the efforts put forth by the Government and other organizations for the youth of the country when they are destined to be shelved, whether or no, just as soon as the earth has gone around the sun a certain number of times. It reminds one, somehow of the sparrow that built its nest in the rain-spout. Everyone, just because he has reached an arbitrarily imposed age limit, is not necessarily a physical fizzle, though he might as well be, as far as any incentive being held out to him to be anything else.

Hope is a very part of youth. Why not find some way to extend hope and so extend life? Incentive and stimuli should be provided for people at all times of life. Life should march to an ever greater fulfillment. Youth should be able to see ahead of it some form of advancement as long as life shall last. Any physical decline should be met with a fuller mental and spiritual life. I fail to see consistency in the Government and other organizations helping out on one end of life and not on the other.

CLARA LOUISE JOHN.
Washington, Sept. 17.

In Defense Of Defense Highway.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There has been a great exudation of consummate flapdoodle lately, in print and orally, with regard to Defense highway and its extreme "dangerousness." It has been treated as a public menace, malicious and murderous in its intentions and lethal in its activities. No purer brand of tosh has ever been promulgated.

Defense highway is just a road. It has no intentions along the line of murder and mayhem. It is a generous two-car width at every point and on curves it will take comfortable care of three carefully driven cars without the slightest threat of collision. The surface, in nearly every spot, is the nonskid sort on which any except utterly wornout tires will hold as if they were glued. Every curve is marked with a little warning arrow.

What, then, is wrong with Defense highway? Nothing whatever, except the nitwits and flutterbrains who drive cars on it. There isn't a foolproof road in the world if fools infest it.

Statistics prove that most of the motor accidents occur—not on narrow and winding roads—on straight-away, four lanes wide, in broad day light. That, if we are to accept the universal condemnation of Defense, proves that the most dangerous thing you can devise is a system of wide, straight motor roads. No road is dangerous if driven on as a road of that sort should be driven on. The curves are there, clearly indicated to anybody with eyes to warn and brain to act on the warning. Anybody who tries to arrange a three-car passage on a two-lane highway is insane and therefore unfit to drive a car.

One of the arguments against poor old Defense highway is that there are numerous places where one is likely to "get off the cement"—a slight shelf occurring at certain intervals. Well, what of that? The intelligent driver has no dread of getting off the cement. If he has his car under control or knows how to get it under control, getting off the cement is a harmless incident. If he lets the car stay off the cement until he slows down and then works it gently back on, no tragedy can happen or even threaten. The noodlehead going at 65 per hour, when he gets off from the cement, tries to swing his car back on, immediately and at the same speed. He asks for tragedy; creates tragedy, with a pitiful lack of excuse.

No road is intrinsically dangerous. Any road is safe in exact proportion to the intelligence of the motorists who drive on it. Any road is dangerous if infested with drunk or dumb drivers. I have seen addlepates on that same Defense highway follow another car for as much as two or three miles on comparatively straight road. And when a hilltop or a sharp curve was reached, the addlepate would step on the gas and buzz by.

Let's be truthful and sensible and give nobody an excuse for passing the buck to a perfectly innocent highway when he reaps the reward his own sheer folly and incompetence have begged for!

The Post Impressionist

Another Lost Illusion.

Post Office, Friday.

"SOMEBODY," it used to be said, "is always taking the joy out of life." Nowadays it is similarly declared that somebody is always debunking something—which adds an implication of thoroughness to the old adage.

It was bad enough when imperfectly read amateurs began to debunk historic heroes. It became worse when unsuccessful doctors began writing popular books to debunk love. It has reached its apogee now that the author-physicians, having nothing else left to debunk, tackle reading in bed.

The Post-Impressionist tried last night to retake the bed-reading habit—only to discover that it has been robbed of all its ancient savor. There was nothing to it—notwithstanding that the chosen book had never failed before: "The Brothers Karamazov."

To be sure, the sole copy at hand was Constance Garnett's execrable translation . . .

We firmly believe that one reason for the success of the Bolshevik Revolution (in Russia) can be traced to the low quality of the translations made into English from the classics of old Russia: they were diabolically calculated to reduce the Russian Empire's prestige abroad. We firmly believe that there was an anti-Czarist conspiracy among the ante-revolution translators of the best Russian literature.

And we know that the Garnett translation of "The Brothers Karamazov" is the Robespierre of the lot.

It misuses "mutual." It uses "nor" after "either." It says that Mitya was "stylishly dressed." It has Fyodor Pavlovitch "laughing a chuckle." If you accepted Constance Garnett, you would suppose that Dostoievski was a vulgarian in taste and almost a Dreiser in style.

But, of course, you don't accept Constance, nowadays. Dostoievski has grown great enough to survive even her.

The trouble was exterior to him, exterior to his unhappy translator, to us and to the bed.

From the days of the tallow dip, almost from the days when reading was invented, reading abed was condemned by all physicians and laymen—and was therefore practiced by all the laity and doctors. Everybody agreed that:

1. It strained the eyes;

2. It overtaxed the heart by requiring excess blood in the head at the time when the heart was weary from an eight-hour working day;

And (3) if the book were the kind of book anybody wanted to read, the habit inevitably robbed the addict of necessary sleep.

We ourselves always read in bed, and loved it, and were always going to stop it. Stopping it was one of those things which simply have to be done. So it was one of those things which ought to be done just as soon as you make the next radical change in your life.

At boarding school, we said we'd stop reading in bed as soon as we got to college. At college, we decided to stop it just as soon as we got into the graduate school. As we never got into the graduate school, we resolved to stop reading abed as soon as we got to work.

And then, after more than a few years of work, we formed an irrefrangible resolution that we'd ruthlessly conquer the habit just as soon as, if ever, we got to writing a column for The Washington Post . . .

The luxury of reading abed! The low light—the light book—the cool sheets—the done day!

But this time we made good. Essaying the asceticism of good St. Simeon Stylites of Antioch, we—well, every night we sat up in a chair and read. Sometimes we sat up and read until dawn.

* * *

Generally, we read a book. Last night, however and alas, we began with a popular magazine and an article by one of those literary doctors hereinbefore mentioned. And, with all the authority of his kind—speaking from an intensive survey of 999.5 cases—he declared that:

1. Reading abed is good for the eyes, if head and lamp are properly adjusted;

2. It lessens the strain on the heart because it extends the legs on a level therewith;

And (3), while resting the muscles it also rests the brain—almost as much as does sleep itself.

We tossed the magazine away, seized the Dostoievski and leaped in to bed—

With the sad results already recorded.

No, it was not the translator's fault. It was certainly not Dostoievski's. It was that doctor's.

We had enjoyed reading abed when it was bad for us. But the knowledge that now it was good for us made it a duty. And we still retain too much of the Puritan not to be sure that any duty is unpleasant.

Fair Enough

By

Louisiana and Mr. Farley.

REPORTS from New Orleans suggest that Seymour Weiss, the new manager of Huey Long's political machine, and Abe Shushan, one of the sub-bosses, both under indictment for alleged evasions of the income tax law, would like to make a deal with the Roosevelt Administration.

Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan are politicians of the practical type who were always concerned solely with the practical side of Huey's dictatorship as distinguished from the sentimental or popular side, which was the Share-the-Wealth movement. Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan are not the sort of men who would wish to toss their money onto a blanket and whack up with the poor people to whom Huey made his political appeal. They apparently feel much less confident of staying out of prison now that Huey has gone and would like to let bygones be bygones if Mr. Rosevelt would do as much for them.

This calls for a decision.

The offer to surrender in return for amnesty has its attraction. If Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan were to come in Mr. James Farley would have everything under control at last in Louisiana.

• • • •

YET if the indictments should be dropped or the trials put back and the prosecution should ultimately be conducted in a half-hearted way that would be a very serious reflection on the sincerity of the Administration. And, of course, it would be vile to suggest that Mr. Farley ever would consent to interfere with the orderly course of justice for reasons of political expediency, even though he sometimes leaned this way or that when he was chairman of the New York Prizefight Commission.

Huey always claimed that the income tax cases against his men and the investigation of his own income were political actions, and a failure to bear down on Mr. Weiss and Mr. Sushan would tend to prove it. That is unfortunate for Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan, because it puts it up to the Administration to go down the line with great vigor.

The defendants find themselves placed exactly in the middle by the oft-reiterated words of their late master. He was so vigorous and contemptuous in his deunuciation of these income tax cases as political prosecutions that the Administration seems obliged to tear into Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan and send them to prison if possible, even though it might be much more pleasant to accept their surrender and tear up the indictments.

• • • •

HUEY accused the Administration of using methods which were his methods, although they were not original with him. He demonstrated the peril of tax laws to political dissenters when the enforcement and interpretation were left to the discretion of the party in power. Many a Louisiana taxpayer who did not agree with the late dictator, remembering how Huey bore down on the opposition with special taxes and tax investigations, will feel that Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan in all fairness ought to be made to suffer the misfortunes of war now that the front has been broken. After all, that was the way their machine did business.

Still, Huey was always willing to accept a surrender and grant to the deserter from the other side all the benefits of existence under the dictatorship. There are many in the Long machine today who fought Huey until their principles became too expensive to be maintained further and then went over.

The woes of the Nation at large if he had lived to become dictator of the United States, with the Federal income tax law in his hands, is almost too terrible to imagine. In Louisiana when he wished to bear down he merely took the enemy's money. This hurt severely, to be sure, but Huey Long in the White House would have been in a position to take their money and send them to prison as well. And if the courts had refused to sustain indictments or had thrown out convictions on appeal Huey would have fired the judges and replaced them with reliable judges, as he did in Louisiana.

BUT even if Mr. Weiss and Mr. Shushan should have the misfortune to lose and be sent away there still would be a political smell to the whole process, and justice would gain no prestige. The fight in Louisiana was a fierce, personal fight between Huey and the Administration, and these two men were his managers.

Mr. Weiss in particular was tough, defiant and ruthless in the service of Huey Long. The Administration owes him a licking for his part in the long and painful harassment, and if he goes to prison it will be impossible to avoid the suspicion that he was punished as much for being on the wrong side as for violation of the law. He and Mr. Shushan and most of the other practical politicians in Huey's organization are no different in character than the practical politicians who tried to fight them. They just had a better leader.

There should be some way of administering the income tax law which would make it impossible for an administration to use it as a political weapon or even to be suspected of doing so. That is not the case at present.

'Autumn'

By

William Lyon Phelps

THIS time I am not referring to the season, but to a new edition of a little book so beautiful in style and temper that it should become an American classic. The name of this novel is "Autumn"—the author is the accomplished Robert Nathan, and the number of readers should be at least one hundred thousand. The book was published originally in 1921, and now in the appropriate season of the year 1935 it is reissued (Robert M. McBride & Co., publishers).

• • • •

The leading character is a schoolmaster who will remind new readers somewhat of Mr. Chips, though he lived on the printed page some years before Mr. Chips was born. But the teacher, Mr. Jeminy, is not the only one who engages the attention of the reader. Certain persons of importance in this old-fashioned American village are all interesting in their own way, and the way of every one is individual and unlike that of the others.

• • • •

The unspeakably lovely countryside forms a charming background to the story. The coloring is so beautiful and the style of the book so full of subtle harmonies that after one has finished the last page one feels as if one were looking at the afterglow in the western sky and at the same time listening to far-away music.

In short, this little book is a masterpiece of characterization and description; it is full of sentiment without being sentimental. Sympathetic insight seems to give an author a more intimate knowledge of human nature than irony or scorn or caricature.

The fact that Robert Nathan is a musician, has composed a violin sonata and songs, might almost be guessed from the musical quality of his literary style.

Collective Security Faces Test

Geneva, League Home, Scene Of Historical Transition.

By Livingston Hartley.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

TWENTY-ONE years after Serajevo we are approaching another crossroads of history. In the course of these 21 years we have gone through a war, a large-scale modern war, which has brought into the world a new fear. We also have built up a new system of international relations based upon collective security and the outlawry of aggressive war. This system is now facing its decisive test at Geneva.

The legal and political basis of the new system of international relations is the League of Nations Covenant, Article 10 of which, binding League members to "respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence" of each other, may be likened to a mutual, multilateral Monroe Doctrine. The Covenant is implemented by the Council, Assembly and permanent secretariat of the League, which together constitute the first loose stage of world political organization. Dozens of other postwar treaties, including among them the Kellogg Pact, serve as buttresses to this central structure.

The world as a whole, however, has never been more than partially "sold" on either the League of Nations or the collective security system of international relations. This new system, so radical a departure in legal, moral and political ideas from the custom of sovereign states since the Treaty of Westphalia, has suffered from the inevitable defects of the new and the untried. Like Ericson's Monitor when it first put to sea to find the Merrimac, it had to be tested under fire and it had to make good in such a test before it could secure a wider acceptance than the older order it sought to replace.

• • • •

THE League has considered and handled successfully a number of minor international disputes, and smaller powers, such as Greece in the potentially dangerous Greco-Bulgarian clash of 1925, have listened to the collective voice of Geneva and chosen the path of peace. But hundreds of millions of people, who all seem to come from Missouri in their attitude toward foreign relations, have still shaken their heads and continued to wait to be shown. Their instinctive reactions have been paralleled closely by the reasoning of the more intelligent. The new system, the League and collective security, could only be established as the cornerstone of international relations when, in some decisive clash, it had proved itself stronger than the national will of one of the great powers.

Such a clash with a great power took place in Manchuria, but the great power, Japan, did not back down. The result was a lessened faith in the League, a swing back toward the old nineteenth century practices, and an upward trend in armaments, that barometer of international danger.

The value of collective security was questioned still further after the conquest of Manchuria. The condition of its establishment, however, remained the same, victory on a clear-cut issue over a militant great power. The League of Nations itself was only partially discredited, since it was generally recognized that repressive action against Japan was paralyzed in that instance by unique circumstances that would not apply in Europe. The sanctions of the League Covenant, for example, could not have been effective against Japan without the full participation of the United States and Russia, both nonmembers of the League.

THE Ethiopian dispute constitutes another critical test of the new system built up around the League. Upon its outcome will depend the decision whether collective security is to be established once and for all as a practical working factor in international relations, or whether it must be postponed until another day.

For a number of reasons, the Ethiopian dispute offers a far more decisive test than the question of Manchuria. The storm center now lies in Europe, the continent for which the Covenant was primarily designed and where it has hitherto been applied most successfully. Mussolini has made no attempt to obscure the issue, as did the Japanese government. He has, on the contrary, stated repeatedly his determination to disregard the League and his own obligations, not even troubling to confront public opinion with some legal excuse for the invasion he announces. Even before his armies have advanced, he has placed himself and the League in such well-defined positions that the triumph of either must be clear to the world, and make or break the system of collective security as a force in world affairs today.

Furthermore, and more important from a practical standpoint, the members of the League have it well within their power to coerce Italy into withdrawal from her aggressive intentions. Consequently, if the members of the League fail this time, their failure will be due to a disregard of their own treaty obligations, faith in which forms the essential foundation of collective security. The outcome of the Ethiopian dispute, representing so clearly a clash between the old and the new in international relations, will influence profoundly our lives and our children's.

Failure of the League on this occasion may be expected to result in the eclipse rather than the destruction of collective security. It will put back the clock, but it cannot halt progress forever. The fundamental clash between the new and the old systems of international relations will continue to exist if only in latent form. Eventually, perhaps after a new European war has taught once more the awful lessons of the last, it will be generally realized that nationalistic ambitions must be made subject to control in the interests of civilization.

Observer Believes We Will Have To Learn Again War Horrors.

OUR children may achieve once more the progress that we have made, and a new League or an amended form of the present League may be constructed on what remains of the institution at Geneva. But then, as today, the same question will have to be answered, and collective security will only be won when it has proved stronger than the will of a great power.

If, on the other hand, the League should succeed in the present dispute in forcing Mussolini to back down, either by means of a settlement acceptable to both Italy and Ethiopia, or by the imposition of sanctions on Italy, we shall have passed a milestone in world progress. Collective security will have triumphed unmistakably, as it must triumph some day, over the national ambitions of any one of the great powers. Such a result would be well worth considerable sacrifice.

Many authorities hold that the provisions of the League Covenant, if faithfully observed by the members of the League, are sufficient to guarantee peace. If this machinery of collective security is proved adequate to turn back the Italian dictator, its practical value will be clear to all eyes, and an epoch-making precedent, which must eventually be made, will have been created now. In the face of such a precedent, Germany and every other great power would be hesitant to embrace a policy of force as a means to a national end.

The present decisions at Geneva will mark a turning point in history, for upon them will depend the consolidation or the postponement of that stage of progress which is represented by collective security.

No End of Books

Novels and the Paint-Brush.

FREDERICK WIGHT'S amplitudinous novel, "South" (Farrar & Rinehart, $3), gives me the neatest chance of the year to take one of my pet theories down from the shelf, shake out the mothballs, and, as it were, try it on the piano. Said theory consists, to wit, of the belief that a man's work in one art form will bear close resemblance to his work in another, that by looking at a man's sculpture you can tell the kind of music he will write, that you can decide, as paleontologists construct muscle and flesh from a few dinosaur bones—a man's poetry from his architecture, his painting from his prose, any way you will. A pretty notion, heretofore valiantly defended of a late evening, now to be dealt with by the Case System as Christopher Columbus Langdell refurbished the study of law.

For Mr. Wight—33, New York born, Cape Codder by adoption, graduate of U. of V.—is a painter, a painter of people. Into the 634 pages of this first novel are inserted the full color reproductions of five of his paintings, identical in subject with the text about them. And you can read ten pages about the broken-down millworker woman, and then stare at her portrait.

Now these paintings, if I may presume to generalize upon them, are surface things, very competent in drawing, very gorgeous in color, patterned strong as posters, pleasing for a short, child-like moment of wonder at the prettiness of things—and then, oh, so forgettable. It is—bang! the old string-tied Southerner in front of the Coca Cola signs; zowie! the striped chain-gang and the guard with the shotgun; pam! the mulatto girl in the scarlet dress; and wham! the little Negro boy staring into the street-lighted dark. One glance, and there's no use staying.

AND the story is the same, scenic, pictorial, an all-expense tour of the South in six days. Down to the town of Millington go Fred Winslow, Yankee portrait painter, and his wife, Katherine, and if there is anything possible to the South which they don't meet in their stay there, then it would take the Burns Detective Agency to rout it out. I can just see Mr. Wight making an outline: moonlight and jasmine, decayed scholar, horsey Yankees, mill-hand boss, ineffectual aesthete, heavy drinking and arty conversation, Communist, mill strike, dreadful poverty, picturesque riches, visiting marquis, Northern art collector with an El Greco, local battlefield under the ninth tee of the golf links, seduction a la Hemingway, plantation family a la Caldwell, skeleton in the closet a la Faulkner, even the process of making baled cotton into cloth. And when he got through, everything in the outline had been checked off.

Personally, I enjoyed it as a travel book—as the incredible epitome in Millington of everything one could meet in the South. The colors are strong, the pictures succeed each other clickety-click, it is very pleasing in a swift, Baedeker, nonconsidering way. Just like the paintings.

ARTHUR POUND'S painting—he may do it; he is of vast energy—would be 1880-in-America, heavy, solid, varnished, good for furniture and never a rung would be missing. When he wrote "Once a Wilderness," he was dealing with Michigan when the farm was home and fountainhead, and the faithfully painted colors were rich and hearty. Just as faithful now in "Second Growth" (Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.50), he finds less of cental joy in relating the trials of Capt. John Mark's lineage as they grow up and out into the complex, booming, industrial world that Michigan achieved with the auto. Riches and expansion and the isolated life lived on brick and paper are exciting enough; but the Mark clan has lost its pith, a fact which Mr. Pound regrets along with the reader.

He will be a good man, with his skill and his sympathy, to put his shoulder to the wheel when novels begin, as they must, to place pith back in people again.

• • • •

IN one book John M. Oskison covers the span of the two Pound novels. "Brothers Three" (MacMillan, $2.50), may deal with the old Indian Territory of Oklahoma rather than Michigan; its material may be more highly flavored, more strange and wondrous, than milch cows and auto factories; but there is the same growth up and away from the soil. The three Odell brothers split off from the pioneer farm in different directions, and out of their contrasts Mr. Oskison makes a full-blooded, satisfying, humorous and earthy story. I'll bet, if he played the fiddle, he'd be a whiz with "The Arkansaw Traveler."

And Pamela Hansford Johnson, a 22-year-old English girl, is of course, painting in thin, watercolor wash with pen outline in her delicate, airy, lively picture of life in a London suburb, "This Bed Thy Centre" (Harcourt Brace, $2). We know English characters so well—librarian, revivalist, barmaid, school teacher, our friends are all here—but they are well caught in the author's reporting, and especially good is she at recounting an adolescent love affair. These English newcomers are worth watching. But isn't it a dreadful title?

The Once Over

Boy, a Tin of Beer!

("Beer is now being put up in cans by leading brewers."—News item.)

Fetch me a can of beer, love!
(And have a can yourself!)
For now we do our drinking
From off the pantry shelf.

For years I thought of lager
As something that must come
In kegs or jugs or bottles
But I was ever dumb.

How strange I would have thought it
If, when a lad in 'teens,
I'd seen dad find his beer
Beside the Boston beans!

Or fumble in the kitchen
And make the kettles crash
When feeling for a beer
And getting succotash!

Yet, looking back intently
Across the years that trail
I can remember getting
My lager in a pail. . . .

We'd send down to McGinty's
And get the brew that way;
A dime would fill the bucket
And that was all we'd pay.

So here's to tins of lager! . . .
Reviving loud and clear
Those words once so familiar:
"Let's have a can of beer!"

Foreign Exchange.

Continued recovery in the guilder and slightly lower prices for the other gold-bloc currencies and the pound sterling were features in the foreign exchange market yesterday, the Associated Press reported.

Monetary relaxation of unrest over the outlook for Holland's fiscal problems was accompanied by a rally of .08 of a cent which carried the guilder to 67.70 cents, or about .05 of a cent above the gold-shipping point.

In New York the pound sterling was down ⅛ of a cent at $4.92½. Earlier transactions in London had seen the dollar close at the equivalent of $4.92⅞ to the pound.

New York trading in the French franc brought a decline of .00½ of a cent to 6.58¾ cents, following earlier dealings in Paris in which the dollar had closed at the equivalent of 6.588 cents to the franc.

Shippers Study Rail Rate Cuts Within Virginia

Hearing Held on Whether to Join Other States in Plea to the I. C. C.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Conflicting opinions were expressed today by representative shippers from all parts of Virginia at a hearing called by the State corporation commission to determine whether Virginia should join nine other southern States in an application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for lower rail rates in southern territory.

H. J. Wagner, of the Norfolk Port Traffic Commission, said "Virginia rate problems are different from those of any other southern State" and expressed opposition to Virginia participating in the southern rate appeal.

W. S. Campfield, secretary of the Virginia Horticultural Society, of Staunton, declared that farmers and fruit growers throughout the State would be benefitted by a lower freight rate to the South.

The Norfolk-Bristol Division of the Norfolk & Western Railway in Virginia is the border between the Southern and official classification territory, with the State having shippers in both areas.

The difference in first-class freight rates is about 39 per cent, the Southerners paying the higher rate. The average difference in all rates, class and commodity is believed to be between 15 and 25 per cent.

Invitation was extended Virginia to participate in the rate reduction move following a conference of Southern sippers and utility commissioners September 3 in Atlanta. H. E. Ketner, commerce counsel of the State corporation commission, who conducted the hearing here today, attended the Atlanta meeting but did not commit the Old Dominion to any definite course.

Donkey Baseball Game Will Benefit Milk Fund

Another donkey baseball game will be played at Griffith Stadium Tuesday for the benefit of a children's milk fund, the Kiwanis Club was informed yesterday at a Mayflower Hotel meeting.

The meeting was addressed by William E. Leahy, attorney, who said the Constitution is fully capable of meeting present emergencies.

William Reed Funeral Today At Goochland

Byrd, Peery, Pollard and Others Praise Career of Tobacco Magnate.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Arrangements to hold funeral services for William T. Reed, president of the Larus Tobacco Co., at his Goochland County home at 3 p. m. tomorrow, were made today as Senator Byrd, Gov. Peery, former Gov. Pollard and others expressed regret at his death.

The Rev. Fred V. Poag, assistant pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery.

Friends Praise Him.

Senator Harry Byrd, who was a guest at the estate last night when the Richmond capitalist and philanthropist was stricken with heart diseases at the dinner table, said:

"I have lost my dearest friend and Virginia one of her greatest and most beloved sons. Without hope or desire for reward, no man in many years has contributed so much to the welfare and progress of Virginia. Only his intimate friends know the extent of the unselfish services he has rendered.

"His life was a busy one," said Gov. Peery, "but he had time to become one of the most toutstanding citizens of Virginia—he was a man of broad philanthropy, a devoted churchman, a wise counsellor and a loyal friend."

"My friendship with Willie Reed dated back to school days," said former Gov. Pollard at his Washington office. "He had an unusually true conception of the stewardship of time, monay and talent."

State Comptroller E. R. Combs declared that "Mr. Reed was always interested in doing things for the betterment of Virginia," and Mayor J. Fulmer Bright added, "he was certainly one of the most public-spirited of men."

Mr. Reed, who was 70, was a former president of the Tobacco Manufactuers Association of the United States, a member of the war industries board during the World War and a member of a number of State commissions and buisiness directorates.

Candidates Set For Campaigns In Waynesboro

Expected Close Contests Fail to Develop in G. O. P. Primary.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Sept. 19.—As a result of party nominations in the primary election here Tuesday, victorious candidates of the Republicans and Democrats are planning their campaigns for the general election in November.

Anticipated close battles for Republican nominations for town council in the election this week proved to be a runaway. Chester Kepner defeated J. Abner Miller, incumbent, for council nomination on the Republican ticket in the First Ward. His opponent on the Democratic ticket will be Jesse Lemmon. Candidates endorsed by a "taxpayer's league" for the Republican nomination in the Second and Third Wards suffered defeat. It the Second Ward, the victorious candidate was Walter Stouffer, incumbent, who was opposed by Charles Reynolds. Stouffer's opponent on the Democratic ticket will be Edward Florence. A. Clyde Warnck defeated Huber Bock, a "taxpayers' league" candidate, for the Republican nomination to council from the Third Ward. The Democratic nominee is Harry Sulanke, who was unopposed.

A spirited contest is anticipated in an election of a justice of the peace, candidates being Elmer E. Smith, Republican, and J. L. Fries, Democrat.

School directors nominated on the Republican ticket Tuesday were Walter Y. Grove, Dr. J. C. Lohman and C. E. Heller and on the Democratic ticket, H. N. Summer, Wolfred Harbaugh and Scott Needy.

Marjorie Worthington, William Seabrook Wed

New York, Sept. 19 (AP).—Announcement of the marriage of William Seabrook, author of books of travel and adventure, to Marjorie Worthington, American novelist, was made tonight.

Seabrook's latest book, "Asylum," is the story of his eperiences in an asylum where he undertook a voluntary cure for alcoholism. Miss Worthington's novels have dealt chiefly with French life.

The date and place of the wedding were not announced.

Utility Seeks to Build Own Dam on New River as Injunction Is Asked.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 19.—The Government has made plans for flood control dams on New River and must have supervision over the waters of that stream, Huston Thompson, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, said today as the long-contested issue of the Appalachian Power Co.'s $8,000,000 power plant near Radford was revived before Judge John Paul in the U. S. Western District Court here.

Replying to the power company's claim that the New River, which feeds into the Kanawha, is not navigable at the point where the power plant is being erected, Thompson said that Congress alone can abandon the navigability of a stream. He admitted that Congress has abandoned in 1902 plans to improve the waterway, but insisted that Congress has the right to restore them.

Injunction Sought.

The arguments of Thompson, a former Federal Trade Commissioner, opened the hearing on the Government's motion to strike out the Appalachian's answer to the injunction sought by the United States to halt erection of the dam unless the utility secures a Federal license. The hearing probably will occupy two days.

The Government's plans for flood control can not be served if any one is allowed to proceed in power developments without Government supervision, Thompson said. The United States has "the right to its own water resources," and intends to "synchronize" all streams into one large flood-control system, he argued.

If a company is allowed to pick out a segment here and there from the whole of the plan, its primary purpose will be nullified, the Federal attorney asserted.

Oswald Ryan, general counsel of the Federal Power Commission, followed Thompson's arguments with a discussion of interstate commerce phases involved in the litigation which has been pending in the courts for years.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, is chief counsel for the power company in this case.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Movie Boners.

Hollywood, Sept. 19.

THE main feature of the flicker, "Page Miss Glory," the contest to find the most beautiful girl, and, according to Gertrude Kornblatt, the rules said that all pictures submitted must show the contestant in a bathing suit. Gertrude objects because Marion Davies was declared the winner in an evening gown instead of a bathing suit.

CROSBY.

Also in "Page Miss Glory"—the flicker fans are certainly attending it—Lyle Talbot puts a nickel into the telephone, a dial phone, and without dialing gets the operator. Then, says K. Bielitz, Talbot asks for long distance and makes the call.

• • • •

Continuing with the telephone, there is the flicker, "Stranded," in which John McCabe claims that Kay Francis made a hurried telephone call from the Traveler's Aid Bureau. Miss Frances lifts the receiver of a dial phone and asks the operator to get her a number without dialing the operator.

It must be that the movies have their own telephone manners, and have installed a system for getting the correct number no matter what they do. They do things with a telephone that happens "only in the movies."

• • • •

GILBERT ROLAND in "Ladies Are Dangerous," is seen standing on a terrace of the Hotel Carlton and gazing across the street, where the lights of the Avon Theater can be seen flashing on and off.

Then says Bertha Hirsh, Roland gets what is known in flickers as a hunch which, of course, will keep the story moving. The next scene distinctly shows him driving up to the theater in a taxi and handing the driver a bill. Nice of him to pay the taxi driver.

But Miss Hirsh wonders, why do actors have to take a taxi to cross the street?

Bing Crosby in "Two for Tonight," is seen dressing and putting on a tuxedo. In fact, he even asks Joan Bennett to adjust his bow tie. Then after a seltzer spraying contest, insists Peter Schneider, Crosby is arrested and the next morning he is seen in jail wearing a regular suit.

It was very nice of the police to allow Bing to make a wardrobe change before going to jail.

• • • •

In "The Affair of Susan," writes C. Rogers, Hugh O'Connell and ZaSu Pitts are at Coney Island and they decide to go swimming. Pitts objects that they do not have bathing suits, and O'Connell answers that they can rent them. They do this. The attendant is shown handing Zasu a suit and a towel.

However, when ZaSu Pitts comes on the beach, she is elegantly attired in a beach robe.

There's no telling what the movies will do. Even to Coney Island.

CLARK GABLE, Jack Oakie and Loretta Young arrive at the mine in "The Call of the Wild" after leaving Dawson City by going downstream on the river. Later, when Loretta and her husband decide to return to Dawson City, writes John Meyer, they get into their boat and go downstream also. It appears that regardless of the direction in which the person decides to go, he can reach it on that river by going downstream.

Also in the flicker, in the sequence showing Tex Rickard's saloon, the majority of liquor bottles on display have nonrefillable caps—which they didn't have during those days—except in the movies.

Cecil B. DeMille took special care to get all his historical data correct in "The Crusades," yet a girl in a mob scene completely forgot about history and thereby provided a flicker flaw. Arthur Reeves insists that in the sequence in which the war captives are released, there is a flash of an extra girl who forgot to change her high-heel shoes.

Greta Garbo in "Anna Karenina" decides to visit Freddie Bartholomew despite the fact that Basil Rathbone has told her she can't. Miss Garbo brings Freddie a number of gifts, and is seen entering his room with packages.

However, insists Clara Baron, when Greta is informed that Rathbone is on his way to the room, she hurries out and is seen carrying packages with her.

THOMPSONS DAIRY
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF. 1932

YOUR HOME Deserves This PROTECTION . . .

The "Honor Dairy Products" seal was registered by Thompson's Dairy in the U. S. Patent Office, May 1932. The idea came from our thousands of satisfied customers who for years have taken a personal pride in the frequent High Honor Ratings awarded Washington's own leading 100% Independent Dairy by the District of Columbia Health Department.

A SYMBOL FOR "CONTROLLED QUALITY"

Although in use by Thompson's Dairy for many months, it is important that you understand here is something more than a trade mark. Literally, this Seal is a proud symbol for Thompson's "controlled quality" which began with this dairy more than fifty years ago, and has protected health in Washington homes generation after generation since 1881.

"CONTROLLED QUALITY" BEGINS AT THE DAIRY FARM

So particular is Thompson's Dairy to see that you get the richest, purest bottle of Milk in the world that the milk producer who supplies us actually receives the highest cash bonus of any dairy in the entire Washington field. Think that over. It's the key to Thompson's leadership.

A FORTUNE SPENT ON THOMPSON'S MODEL DAIRY PLANT

What a satisfaction to know that your bottle of Thompson's Milk comes from a dairy plant so nearly ideal that it has repeatedly received the coveted 100% Plant Rating from the District of Columbia Health Department. Here, the watchful eye of science continues its "controlled protection" from dairy farm to your doorstep with the most advanced sanitary equipment, frequent laboratory tests, ceaseless checking and rechecking.

THOMPSON'S DAIRY HAS ALWAYS BEEN LEADER

Washington's leading 100% Independent Dairy has always pioneered in the introduction of the most advanced sanitary methods and ideas, among them being Sealkaps, (which completely protect the pouring lip of your bottle) introduced and used by Thompson's Dairy in Washington for years before same were adopted by other dairies.

THOMPSON'S HAS RECEIVED EVERY HONOR AGAIN AND AGAIN

The ceaseless care and vigilance that go hand in hand with "controlled quality" have resulted in such superior dairy products, that over a period of years Thompson's Dairy has repeatedly, consistently received every High Honor Award from the District of Columbia Health Department, admittedly among the world's most exacting health guardians.

"CONTROLLED QUALITY" MEANS CEASELESS VIGILANCE

The inspections of the critical District of Columbia Health Department are classic examples of scientific thoroughness. Yet we go to the extra expense of having Thompson's own field force check and recheck herds, buildings and equipment of every dairy farm before milk or cream is accepted.

THOMPSON'S IS READY TO SERVE YOUR HOME TODAY

If your home is not enjoying Honor Dairy Products, why not call DEcatur 1400 now and order service to begin tomorrow morning? After that leave everything to your courteous, appreciative Thompson Milkman.

Judge Humphrey Deposed by Court

Nice Appointee Disqualified on Residence Grounds.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 19.—The Circuit Court today issued a writ of mandamus vacating the appointment by Gov. Nice of Marion A. Humphreys as judge of Peoples Court on the ground he is disqualified by residence to hold the position.

Counsel for the deposed judge said they proposed to appeal the decision to the State's highest court.

The court order was issued after renewal of argument today on the petition filed several weeks ago by Lewis C. Merryman, attorney on behalf of Albert M. Walls.

During defendant's argument former Circuit Judge Joseph L. Bailey, charged that opposition to Judge Humphreys' appointment originated "within members of the Republican Party who could not agree upon a recommendation to Gov. Nice. I brand it as a quarrel with the Chief Executive of this State," Bailey shouted. "Last week the same court held the act creating the court in 1927 was constitutional."

Smoke in Bed? This Invention Insures Safety

Enjoying Cigarette in Bath Is Another Advantage of Contraption.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

ITEM FOR those who like to smoke in bed:

An ingenious gadgeteer has invented something which will save future generations from being burned to a crisp in their sheets. It is nothing less than a tricky article consisting of (a) one ashtray, with an upright attachment to hold the cigarette, and (b) a long cord at the end of which is a celluloid contraption through which one sucks the smoke. After the cigarette has burned down to the end, it is neatly and automatically dropped into the ashtray. So even if you doze over your novel, there's no danger that you and the bed will go up in flames.

Especially should this gadget please those who indulge in orgies of reading-newspapers-in-bed-on-Sunday-morning. There's no fumbling around with a cigarette in one hand and an entire section of the paper in the other, at the imminent risk of establishing disastrous contact between both.

Also, users can fulfill their dreams of smoking leisurely and luxuriously in the bathtub with one of these, for the celluloid holder doesn't care if your hands are wet or not.

Another name for this gadget is "office disorganizer." When we tried it out in our office the other day, a large and fascinated group gathered round our desk to see whether it was really us behind the clouds of smoke or some Oriental potentate puffing way at a hookah.

P. S. Unlike so many of the gadgets which have been foisted on our unsuspecting person, this one really works!

Novelty Motor Outfit.

ARE YOU planning a fall trip out West, or up North to see the flaming autumn maples at their best? If so, you'll want to equip your car with an altitude barometer, thermometer and compass. This latest novelty outfit is especially adapted to cars, so that all three parts work perfectly. If you want to know how high above sea level you are, or what the temperature registers, you have only to glance at the dashboard. If you get lost in the lonely Maine woods—and they're pretty lonely on a dark night—you can pretend you're Christopher Columbus, and depend on your trusty compass to see you through.

A Cafe for Gourmands.

ALL YOU CAN possibly eat for 60 cents! That's what you'll find at a certain restaurant recently opened here in town. A man with an understanding of gourmands has hung out his shingle, and you may believe us when we say that not only can you get as many helpings as you want of salads, soups and vegetables (second helpings of meat are extra) but also that the food is perfectly delicious.

This restaurant is called a buffeteria, meaning that you help yourself to the main course and waiters bring bread, butter and dessert. At one end of the room is a great, long table, on which is spread a delectable array of salads. Diners can stack their plates heaping high with these and return for as many helpings as they wish. You can eat and eat, far into the night if you will. The only limitation is your capacity.

Complete Desk Sets.

THIS same store has a stunning desk set arrangement which includes everything from blotter to cigarette box. It's made of a smart calfskin finished to look like walnut. Some of the pieces have ivory insets, which adds an appearance of richness to the ensemble. Items include a letter holder, paper cutter, pencil case and a stunning lamp done in the style modern. You can buy them all or separately, and the prices start at $3.50.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 323, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

Women Getting Sensible, Quit Aping Film Gowns

TRAVIS BANTON.

Because an Ensemble Looks Well on Dietrich in a Picture It Doesn't Mean Any Woman Can Wear It, Paramount Stylist Says.

Filmland. Where actresses look like mannequins in clothes men design, and frequently like Gussie Glutch in the ones they choose themselves. Where artists, through flicker fashions, set the style pace of America. This is the third of a series of articles on Hollywood celebrities.

By Hope Ridings Miller.
Post Staff Correspondent.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—Women are getting more sensible about styles.

Just because an ensemble creates a striking effect on an actress is no longer a sign every woman in the country will try to copy it. But when a star wears clothes that combine glamour with simplicity and beauty with comfort, her costumes will often be duplicated in wardrobes throughout the land.

That's why designers here are centering their attention less on dramatic quality than on what will appeal to feminine movie goers, according to Travis Banton, the Paramount fashion designer who does those smooth clothes for Dietrich, Colbert and Lombard; and who can tell you down to the last accessory what women in New York as well as California will be wearing morning, noon and night this winter.

Square-faced and broad shouldered as the proverbial pugilist, Banton looks like almost anything except a fashion designer. But you won't talk to him long until you find out this sturdy Texan who went from college to art school, then to the navy, and from there to creating styles can tell you as much about the forthcoming mode as anybody in Hollywood—or anywhere else, for that matter.

Prefers Designing for Today.

Planning costumes not only for the films, but for private wardrobes of a number of stars, he keeps informed on period as well as modern styles. He prefers planning clothes for modern, rather than period pictures, but considers the latter "good punctuation marks because they offer a certain stimulation. Some of the styles of other years can be translated into the modern mode with charming effect," he said. In this connection he said he became so enthusiastic about doing the costumes for "The Crusades" that he designed a unique "Crusade evening gown" for one star's personal use. "The blouse top is fashioned of metallic mesh that looks like chain mail," he explained, a glow of pride in his eyes, "while the skirt is full black satin."

Forecsting winter fashions he said: "Style will return to the era of elegance, with emphasis on fine fabrics and simplicity of line. Any and all colors will be popular, for the whole spectrum will come into play for both street and evening dresses. You can run wild with your favorite shade, particularly if it happens to be reddish brown, wine, rust or green. In evening clothes you'll see every color of the palette. Navy will come to the fore in rich fabrics. In velvet the Renaissance tones—Raphael red, Veronese green and Boticelli blue will be popular. White, in satin, will continue as a favorite; black will be used for street and evening, but much less frequently than last winter."

He described the daytime silhouette as being "trim and sleek with slightly more flare than last season. The lines are fuller for action," he said, "but with a pleasing restraint. Back-action pleats, gores from the waistline, draped or sheered fullness at the front give a fluidity to the general outline and make dresses more comfortable than they've been in a long time."

Skirts are definitely "inching-up" for street wear, according to Banton. "But they still aren't so short as they once were," he pointed out. "I'm designing morning and afternoon ensembles from 12 to 13½ inches from the ground. Evening clothes for winter will clear the floor and feet will begin peeping out beneath uneven hem-lines and points and scallops."

Wider and fuller lines will be the keynotes of afternoon attire, he said, and also mentioned that the buttoned-up-the-back style would come in for much attention. "Sleeves will be either very tight or very loose at the wrist," he continued, "and necklines will be greatly influenced by the Renaissance trend. Jewel-trimmed or with the twisted torsade of the Middle Ages, they will generally be draped. High necklines will be popular at first, but open throats will be increasingly popular as the season advances."

Hats Can Be Any Shape.

Coats may be either princess or swagger, in two-third or three-quarter lengths, he said. "And capes will come in for a lot of attention, as will the full-length evening wrap."

Hat's? They can be almost any shape, size or style, according to Banton. "Berets, turbans, halos and half hats in velvet, antelope-suede and felt will all be worn. But be sure to suit your personality, mood and costume," he warned. "An unbecoming hat ruins any ensemble."

Costume jewelry will sweep the country, he predicted. "Clips, buckles, bracelets and brooches in silver and gold will be in demand in a big way. Pearls will be worn with everything and anything, and even woven through the coiffure for evening."

This BUSINESS of LIVING

What Can Tuberculosis Invalid Do to Occupy Leisure Time, Woman Asks.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I turn to you in desperation. I have a sister in her early twenties who is ill in a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients in Asheville. She is being cared for, but the treatment keeps her in bed all the time. She is progressing nicely, yet it seems like a long grind.

• • • •

I am confronted with cheering her up. This is particularly difficult because I have a financial problem in keeping her in the sanatorium and it is more than I can do to write cheerful letters.

• • • •

I am wondering if you have any idea of some way to occupy a bed-ridden patient's mind. I have sent her knitting and crocheting, but she is not allowed to do it. Anything you may suggest would certainly be appreciated by me. Very sincerely yours, K. F.

Whom to Consult.

DEAR K. F.: Your sister's attending physician, for one, and the director of occupational theraphy at the sanatorium, where she is convalescing, for another, are the logical persons to advise you in this matter, I believe. In case the sanatorium does not provide occupational therapeutic activities for patients, you might solicit the advice of Mrs. Agnes J. Stewart, director of occupational theraphy for Washington's Tuberculosis Hospital, at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest. Mrs. Stewart's telephone number is Columbia 2529. She is away on vacation just now, but will be back in her office the first week in October, and will be glad to advise you, I'm sure.

• • • •

As a rule, patients of your sister's type are permitted to engage in whatever activities engage their minds without tiring their bodies. It is possible the crocheting and knitting fretted rather than diverted her, and hence was tabooed. What were her avocational interests before she was taken ill? These should provide you with some clew as to what sort of activity would be best suited to her convalescent leisure.

• • • •

Reading is sometimes permitted those patients who find relaxation and diversion in reading; but never for those whom it tires, mentally or physically. Writing, likewise. Others are occasionally permitted to assemble scrapbooks, I understand. Perhaps your sister might be allowed to make sketches to amuse herself and to inclose in her letters, depicting life in a sanatorium as she finds it, if she has any gift for or interest in drawing; or it might be she could do some modeling with plastic clay; or make those odd and fanciful dolls and toy animals of the kind which delight the hearts of nursery-school-age children, and which are so simply constructed.

• • • •

However, these are suggestions which would necessarily have to be passed upon by your sister's attending physician, as I have said; or by the director of occupational theraphy, if there is one, at the sanatorium. M. H.

Ignoring Child Is Best Remedy For Tantrums

Half of Disturbances in Crowds Are Bids for Attention.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

"LOOK AT THAT nice little boy. He doesn't make a row in the street. He does what he's told."

Tommy stops kicking and screaming long enough to give a baleful look at his model, perhaps even to make a face at him, and commences once more to make the welkin ring with his cries. And added to his rage there is now a desire to avenge himself on the unoffending child with whom he has been compared.

Seldom if ever does such treatment avail. No self-respecting child will stop his efforts to get attention for the sake of proving his superiority to some model of deportment. Rather he will try to make more noise and impress even his hated rival. Half the tantrums which children throw in crowds are a bid for attention. They feel small and lost, their nerves are rasped with hurry and confusion, and eventually some last straw upsets their equilibrium and they explode.

At once their self-steem is recovered. They are again important. The rushing, crowding mob which threatened to engulf them stops. The world knows that they exist.

This is not the time for a mother to pour oil on the flames. The more attention she pays to the child, the worse he will get. He is not a bit embarrassed by the staring crowd, though his mother may be ready to sink through the ground with confusion. If she can keep her head and at least feign indifference, while stopping to give the child time to get his breath and quiet his nerves, she probably will be amazed at the promptness with which his cries stop.

No child is going to stand howling in the face of indifference. If his mother simply stands and waits perhaps merely remarking, "When you are through crying we will go on," she will in the long run save herself time and effort, and probably a recurrence of the episode.

Hamburger Recipe Contest Entries Due Tomorrow Morning

DON'T put off entering The Post's recipe contest another day, or it will be too late. Tomorrow the recipes submitted in this week's contest will be judged for the 12 $1 awards and next week these 12 recipes with the other prize-winning recipes from the past seven contests will be judged for the three grand prizes—a Sunbeam Mix Master, and G. E. Hotpoint coffee maker, and a Dominion sandwich grill—offered by The Washington Post and The National Electric Supply Co.

The subject of The Post's contest this week is hamburger recipes. Simply write out your favorite method for preparing hamburger and send it to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. Be sure it is mailed at once, for it must reach this office not later than tomorrow morning.

Names of the 12 prize winners and their recipes will apper in Tuesday's edition of The Post and the date of the announcement of the grand prize winners will also be announced.

Tie Is to Male Ensemble As Mustard to Hot Dog

By John Q. Alexander.

AS MUSTARD IS to the hot dog, as salt is to the stew, as Harlow is to a punk movie and ice to a morning headache, so is the cravat to the gentleman's ensemble. Verily, it is a necessary element for the achievement of sartorial perfection, a power to lift from its surroundings the curse of mediocrity, and a comfort when all else seems to fail.

By far the best of the current offerings in this line are the new Grecian stripes. These are adapted from the good old designs which were tops in the days of Socrates—and they haven't been beaten yet. Their basic colors are rich dark hues, which contrast with and give extra life to the diagonal stripes of bright colors. The ties are well made, wrinkle-resisting and good for both business and sports wear. If you are in need of new recruits for fall, you couldn't do better than to replenish your stock from these.

They cost $1 and $1.50. A few are more expensive.

Gadgets to Make Life Easier.

One downtown men's store has a new gift and gadget department which features dozens of ingenious gadgets to make life easier and pleasanter for the stronger sex. You'll find all sorts of brushes (hair, shoe, clothes, etc.), all sorts of leather goods (from wallets to collar boxes), and plenty of accessories like scissors, nail files and stuff.

What intrigued us most was a comb and brush combination. The brush is the squarish type, with short handle, and the comb—ah, the comb! The comb hides away in the handle of the brush and when you press a tiny button, oops!—it comes popping out like a Jack-in-the-box. Several designs available, at prices from $3.50 to $7.50. A leather case is included.

Another good thing was a tie-rack-mirror affair, consisting of an oblong metal mirror (non-tranishable) and four folding prongs for your ties. Swell idea—choose your tie and knot it then and there in the mirror, $1.50 each.

Shoulder-Action Suspenders.

As for suspenders, you already are familiar with their many merits. For instance, they hold your pants up, which in itselft makes them worth the cost, and in addition they bring sweet relief to a belt-harried waistline and let your trousers hang properly—an important style point. Still, suspender buttons prodding the small of your back can be annoying, and some guys have such funny shapes that their suspenders are forever slipping off their shoulders. All this is over now, though—the perfect suspender has been invented.

It has a shoulder-action arrangement which is rather difficult to describe but is, we assure you, a boon. It is a slide arrangement which lets you adjust the back to your own particular physiognomy and you can snip off those annoying buttons, too. These braces have flat clasps instead of buttonholes. You'll like 'em. Cost, $1 and $1.50 per pair.

Socks are going in circles this year—wide, brazen, horizontal circles. Personally, we wouldn't be caught in them except at a dog fight, in a tennis game or on the main deck of our private yacht. But they are great for those and other rough-and-tumble pastimes, and perfectly all right for collegians at any time. Best ones we've seen have very wide stripes in contrasting colors, in a heavy knit cotton weave. A large assortment available, 35 cents.

Jolly old England has come across with another new shoe pattern which is really a knockout. It is designed like a boot—perfectly plain tip, no trimmings anywhere. Two-eyelet tie, which is so popular now, and of a wonderful mahogany color in cordovan leather. Soft and pliable and fine for business or pleasure wear. The manager of the store told us that this shoe has been crimped over a vamp, which had a mildly lurid sound, but he went further to explain that he meant it was stretched over a vamp (inanimate), then pressed cruelly with a hot iron. Which makes it hold its shape forever and ever. $5.50. Available also in brown bucko.

Care of the Sink.

Plumbers' bills can be saved by proper care of the sink. It is false economy to use a dish cloth that is worn into holes and sheds lint, clogging the drain. When the boiler is steaming hot, it is not an extravagance to let the water run for 5 minutes, for the hot water will dissolve grease that is forming an unseen coating in the drain pipe and auguring future trouble.

Unpeeled Fruit Needs Washing Before Serving

Danger From Bacteria and Poison Sprayed to Kill Pests Cited.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

CAN we purchase fresh fruits from the grocer and eat them skin and all? Yes, we can, but it may be dangerous. Most housewives will wash or peel all fruits before serving. It is a common but careless habit to buy a sack of fruit and eat a portion of it en route home.

Careful bacteriological data are now available with reference to fruits procured at random from dealers located in various cities. Fruit is often displayed for sale where it is accessible to insects, particularly flies. From a group of widely scattered shops apples, pears, plums, peaches, grapes, etc., were collected and taken in clean paper sacks direct to a laboratory. There the fruits were thoroughly washed with salt solution and the bacteria thus removed were cultivated, studied, and identified. Staphylococci and other pus producing organisms—common sources of diarrhea—were found on fruit purchased from every shop, and several types of blood destroying bacilli were recovered from some of the specimens. The majority of bacteria discovered were probably of soil origin, that is, they came from soil dust and were of little significance as causing human disease. However, colon bacilli were found in a high percentage of cases.

Authorities generally agree that the dangerous bacteria harbored by raw fruits come either from flies or from human hands. Furthermore they believe that the bacteria do not remain alive for any great length of time, hence one cannot say positively that consuming raw fruit will be followed by infection. It is evident, however, that uncleanly handling may cover the fruit with organisms, and if it is eaten within a short time trouble may follow. It is wise, therefore, to wash fruit thoroughly or to peel it. Cooking, of course, destroys both bacteria and parasites.

In our war against insects that destroy vegetation—fruits, grains, etc.—many poisonous chemicals are used. Among these lead arsenate is a favorite because it is efficient, and some of this material may remain on the fruit. Thorough washing will remove most of the poison, and that which is retained is probably too small an amount to do serious damage. On the other hand, both arsenic and lead are poisonous and if the compound is used too freely human poisoning may result.

Arsenate of lead is also used in spraying lettuce, spinach, cabbage and occasionally beans, peas, cucumbers and potato vines. Sometimes enough may contaminate the soil to cause absorption by the plant.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

THE JOKES about ladies with a yen for jiggling furniture around only sound fairly funny to me. Because I happen to be a lady like that myself. And if a husband barks his shin once in a while, well, I don't think he minds so much, anyway not so awfully much. This reader belongs to the same club!

G. F. WRITES: We're in the throes of settling down for the fall. That means hanging up the curtains, taking up the summer rugs and bringing out the winter rugs, swooping off the slip covers and buying a few new lamps. Now what I'd like to do is to move the furniture around a little and get a different effect with the same old things. Is that really possible?

• • • •

ANSWER: There are lots of ways to change the furniture around interestingly in most rooms. One is to select a window with a view and group your sofa at right angles to it with the easy chairs gathered around it just as you would do around a fireplace . . . an attractive window makes a perfect center of interest for the room. I'd have especially nice curtains and draperies here in this case. If the outlook isn't particularly good, then have glass shelves built across the window and put pots of flowers and interesting pieces of colored glass along these shelves to catch the light . . . then do without glass curtains and just have draperies. If the window idea isn't practical, you might group the furniture out from the book shelves and treat an interesting book arrangement as the center of interest.

Curried Flounder Is Menu Suggestion

By Dorothea Duncan.

AN ECONOMICAL dinner does not need to be a flat or uninteresting one. Proof of that is submitted today in two of the prize-winning menus of The Post's contest for inexpensive and well-balanced menus. Miss Ruth Hege, 1832 Wisconsin avenue northwest, suggests curried fileted flounder as the piece de resistance, while Mrs. John Porter, Leonardtown, Md., uses scalloped tuna fish and potatoes. Recipes accompany menus.

Miss Hege's Dinner Menu.

Summer canapes
Curried fileted flounder
Plain macaroni 10-minute cabbage
Orange blanc mange
Coffee, tea or milk

Summer Canapes.

6 slices fresh tomato
1½ teaspoons chopped chives
3 hard-cooked eggs
Well-seasoned French dressing

Curried Flounder.

1 small onion
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon curry powder
2 tablespoons flour
½ tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1½ cups milk
1 cup dry bread crumbs
2½ cups cooked, flaked flounder

Make a sauce as follows: Chop onion fine and brown in two tablespoons butter, adding curry powder and flour after a few minutes. Season with salt and lemon juice and gradually add milk. Stir and cook until smooth and thickened. Place in a creased baking dish, alternate layers of fish and curry sauce, covering with dry bread crumbs mixed with the rest of the butter melted. Brown in a hot oven. Any white fish may be used).

Orange Blanc Mange.

2 tablespoons gelatin
3 cups milk
6 tablespoons sugar
Pinch salt
2 navel oranges
½ cup shredded coconut
Whipped evaporated milk

Soak gelatin in ½ cup cold milk 5 minutes. Add sugar and salt to rest of the milk and bring to scalding point. Pour this over the soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Pare the oranges, removing all the white membrane. Cut into cross slices, remove the center pulp, and cut each slice into quarters. Add the oranges and the coconut to the gelatin mixture. Let stand until it begins to set, then stir and pour into individual molds. When firm, turn out and serve with the whipped evaporated milk, flavored with lemon juice. Garnish with segments of orange.

Mrs. Porter's Dinner Menu.

Scalloped tuna fish and potatoes
Buttered spinach Sliced tomatoes
Bread Butter
Toast (children)
Iced tea (adults) Milk (children)
Chocolate cream pudding

Scalloped Tuna Fish and Potatoes.

6 medium white potatoes, pared and sliced (4 cups)

Tuna Fish Selected in Another of Prize Sample Dinners.

1 medium onion, sliced
17-ounces can tuna fish
2 cups well seasoned white sauce.

Arrange the potatoes, onions, and tuna fish in alternate layers in a 1½ quart casserole. Pour the sauce over all and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 1½ hours, or until the potatoes are tender. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe.

Chocolate Cream Pudding.

1½ tablespoons granulated gelatin
6 tablespoons cold water
3 cups bottled milk or 1½ cups evaporated milk and 1½ cups water
½ cup cocoa
12 tablespoons granulated sugar
Pinch of salt
1 egg separated
¾ teaspoon vanilla extract

Sprinkle the gelatin on the water. Scald the milk in a double boiler, then add the cocoa, 10 tablespoons of sugar, and the salt, which have been mixed together, stirring constantly. Cover and cook over hot water for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over the beaten egg yolk slowly; stirring constantly. Add the gelatin, stir until dissolved, then cool. Beat the egg white almost stiff, using a hand beater or an electric beater at high speed. Add the remaining sugar while beating egg white until stiff. Then beat into chocolate mixture. Add the vanilla and chill. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe, using the whole egg.

The Rialto Closes Saturday Night for Remodeling to Accommodate New Policy

Alterations to Increase Stage Area and Scope

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

After two weeks of experimental operation, the Rialto Theater will close for extensive alterations on Saturday night of this week, according to announcement made yesterday afternoon by Tom Moore, builder and owner of the Ninth street "Temple of the Muses."

Architects, engineers and workmen stand ready to take possession of the property considerably earlier than was expected to be the case when Moore and associates reopened the Rialto less than a fortnight ago. With the execution of his new policy of combining opera, drama, radio and screen in such a coalition of the lively arts as has not heretofore been seen in Washington as his main objective, Mr. Moore will concentrate his artisans and his remodeling efforts upon an improvement of stage and productional facilities.

The Rialto always has been deficient in this regard, having been erected as an exclusively picture house, without provision for dressing-room space or the setting or swinging of scenery.

It is not anticipated that the Rialto will emerge from its prospective rehabilitation as a fully equipped theater of the living drama. Tom Moore's plans, however, do call for a sufficient stage equipment and a sufficient stage area to permit a unique welding of stage presentation and picture and to provide adequate studio facilities for broadcast purposes.

Closed Several Weeks.

These, I am assured, are the needs which the proposed reconstruction of the "backstage" Rialto will supply. It is expected that completion of the changes now in contemplation will consume several weeks.

It is the part of wisdom for Mr. Moore to follow the course he has adopted. Having viewed only this week's program since the reopening of the house, I can not elude the thought that it harks back to an ancient day in the "movies," when methods were primitive, the present perfection of motion-picture-theater stagecraft unheard of and the public uneducated to the type of entertainment for which it now looks to the de luxe cathedrals of the cinema rather than to the traditional theater of flesh and blood.

This week's bill at the Rialto is a decade and a half behind the times in the manner of its presentation—the crudely lettered card on the rickety easel, announcing Creatore and the symphony orchestra, the inept and lackadaisical manner of the orchestra's entrance and exit, Miss Lawlor's difficulty with the footlight trough, as well as a complete indifference to effective lighting or any attempt at colorful or spectacular effect, all hark back to the early days of the "presentation" houses that blazed a hazardous trail to the grandeurs of the present.

Tom Moore is as aware of this as any of us who sit out front and pick flaws. So he is going to do something about it.

Is Expert Showman.

I have known Tom Moore a good many years. During several of them our association was intimate. As a matter of fact, I had a small part in the opening of the Rialto, back in December, 1918. Therefore, I feel that I know something firsthand of the ability of the man as a showman. Whatever his shortcomings—if any—may be, there is none to deny that "T. M." knows theater values and has the knack of getting the most out of the least, either on stage or screen.

Mr. Moore is emotional, imaginative and visionary—prime requisites in any successful producer—and in the back of his mind, at the moment, is a scheme which, if brought to fruition, ought to sound a new note in modern picture-house presentations. The remodeling of the theater to make fulfillment of his dream possible is, of course, the first step.

If he goes on from there and carries out the plan he outlined to me several months ago, it will be an interesting and enlightening experiment to watch and perhaps a profitable one for both its sponsors and the public.

If he does not go on from there—but we will take that up when the time comes.

The first of six productions to be offered by the Drama Guild of Washington during the forthcoming winter season will be "You Never Can Tell," one of the most popular of the early Shaw comedies. Tryouts for parts in this production, to be directed by Denis E. Connell, will be held on dates to be announced later.

Of the remaining five plays to be produced, three which have been definitely decided upon are "The High Road," by Frederic Lonsdale; "Tobias and the Angel," by James Bridie, and Elmer Rice's "Street Scene." Two plays, to complete the roster, will be chosen from among "Lady Precious Stream," a Chinese play that has proved a great London success during the past two seasons; "Prelude," a manuscript play by Florence R. Kahn; "Caesar's Wife," by W. Somerset Maugham, and another manuscript play as yet untitled.

Hollywood in High.

With ten different companies now engaged in actual "shooting," the greatest production program in many months is in full swing on the Warner Brothers-First National lots on the West Coast. Every available facility has been pressed into service to accommodate the sudden surge of activity that is setting new high records in Burbank.

The results of all this rushing about will eventually address themselves to the cash customers from the screens of the Earle, Metropolitan and other Warner theaters in and about the National Capital. (Editorial aside: I hope this Frank La Falce fella knows what he's talking about!)

Adventure stories, musicals, comedies and dramas are included in this line-up of films "in work." Tremendous sets and hundreds of extra players are required for many of them, according to all report. Some of this we have hinted at before.

Take "Captain Blood," for example. Under the direction of Michael Curtiz, members of the cast headed by Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland are now at work aboard immense pirate ships aswarm with the swarthy buccaneers from the Spanish Main called for by the Sabatini yarn.

Carrie Nation Stuff.

Then again, 500 Vigilantes spent most of last week wrecking a gambling hell on the Barbary Coast in order to make an exciting sequence for "The Frisco Kid," starring Jimmy Cagney. This week, 1,200 Vililantes are to be used for similar purposes. In the meantime, Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, George E. Stone, Ricardo Cortez and Lili Damita—visible this week with Jack Buchanan in "Brewster's Millions" on the screen at the Rialto—are busily engaged making more tranquil sequences under the direction of Lloyd Bacon.

The promenade deck and saloon of an ocean liner—some 350 feet of "ship"—have been constructed for "I Found Stella Parrish." Against this background, Kay Francis, Paul Lukas, Ian Hunter and Sybil Jason play their roles, directed by Mervyn LeRoy. Hundreds of extras are finding employment in this subject, too.

Two units are at work in "Stars Over Broadway," in which Pat O'Brien, Jean Muir, James Melton, Jane Froman and Frank McHugh are appearing. One unit is making the "story" sequences, another the "production numbers," for which Warren and Dubin contrived the tunes.

Tone Is Borrowed.

Over at the Sunset studio—that would be on Sunset boulevard, I take it—Director Alfred E. Green is at work on "Hard Luck Dame," the new Bette Davis vehicle for which Franchot Tone has been borrowed for the leading male role.

"Broadway Hostess" is another that is being made on the unit plan. Frank McDonald directs Wini Shaw, Genevieve Tobin, Lyle Talbot and Allen Jenkins in the story sequences while on another sound stage Bobby Connelly supervises the ensemble numbers which Miss Shaw will sing with Phil Regan. Remember when they were here in person at the Earle this summer and Eddie Melcher threw a cocktail party for them out at Wardman? Well, I do.

Barton McLane, whom someone has described as the "most villainous discovery" of last season, gets his chance at a real leading role in "Country Boy." The cast includes Mary Astor, Dorothy Peterson and John Qualan, under the direction of William McGann.

"Enemy of Man" has Paul Muni, Josephine Hutchinson, Anita Louise and others performing under the guidance of William Dieterle.

Brendel in Shorts.

Ralph Staub is directing El Brendel, the famous Swede of the celluloids, in a two-reel Vitaphone subject, "Lucky Swede," in which Helen Ericson is playing the foremost feminine role. And so it goes.

Multiply this single studio activity by the total number of major plants engaged in turning out pictures as rapidly as thorough-going artistry will permit and you have a fair mental picture of the present state of things in the industry.

Picture-making and theatergoing have received an inexplicable impetus this late summer which, whatever its cause, promises to make the impending season the best the theater, in all its branches, has enjoyed since the bottom dropped out of the financial and industrial universe in 1929.

It's about time.

Personal aside to old Capt. Francois Philippe Morse, skipper of the S. S. Frantic: Your scurrilous communication duly to hand and filed in the wicker. Try me some time between the hours of 2 and 5 a. m. and you can't miss.

A New Mercutio.

It is the alert and indefatigable Ray Henderson, a father superior among the stentors, who takes the trouble to drop a line saying that Ralph Richardson, who will make his American debut as Mercutio with Katharine Cornell in William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," appearing in the National here the week of Monday, October 14, sailed from England yesterday on the S. S. Aquitania, bound, of course, for these shores.

In the "Old Vic" in London—to play in which at $100 a week for a year Charles Laughton resigned his fabulous Hollywood contracts not so long ago—he was seen with Edith Evans and John Gielgud, his Iago attracting unusual attention. He played the leading male role in W. Somerset Maugham's "Sheppy" and "For Services Rendered," and was Charlotte Bronte's husband in Clemence Dane's "Wild Decembers."

It was, perhaps, Richardson's performance in J. B Priestley's "Eden End" that placed him in the front rank of living English actors. His most recent London engagement was in Priestley's "Cornelius." Though he has acted several Shakespearean characters, he never before has been seen as Mercutio.

Beginning this afternoon at 3 and continuing every day thereafter, a cup of coffee and a cigarette may be enjoyed in the lounge of the Belasco Theater through the courtesy of the management. When the Belasco was in the hands of contractors and decorators last summer, the theater's lounge was accorded generous beautification. It was brightened, and comfortable easy chairs were added to its furnishings. And now comes the finishing touch—the announcement that through the friendly cooperation of a leading coffee firm and a well-known dairy the serving of a stimulating beaker of Java, with each patron the management's guest, becomes possible.

Two lumps, please, and very little cream!

Theaters Offer New Films and Old Next Week

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

Music will dominate the eighth anniversary bill at Loew's Fox Theater, scheduled to begin tomorrow. The screen feature will be "Here Comes the Band," in which the story is built around Ted Lewis and His Band and the fine barytone voice of Harry Stockwell, a comparative newcomer to roles of importance on the screen. The principal stage attraction will be supplied by Glen Gray and his Casa Loma Orchestra, one of the most popular "name" bands of the day. In addition to this organization, Bob Murphy and his son and daughter, Dick and Dorothy, will add their melodious fun to the occasion. In "Here Comes the Band"—his first feature since "Is Everybody Happy?"—Ted Lewis does all of his old tricks, surrounded by such capable players as Virginia Bruce, Ted Healey, Nat Pendleton, Donald Cook, Robert McWade, Robert Gleckner, Henry Kolker and numerous others, in addition to Mr. Stockwell. Paul Nolan, the "jesting Swede," also will occupy a place of prominence on the vaudeville bill. The Fox Movietone News and specially arranged contributions by Phil Lampkin's Orchestra will complete the bill.

* * * *

Claudette Colbert is the pictured star of Columbia's comedy-drama, "She Married Her Boss," which opens tomorrow as chief screen feature of the bill at the Warner Brothers Earle Theater. In this amusing subject, concerning a secretary who married her employer with slightly startling results, Miss Colbert is supported by Melvyn Douglas, Michael Bartlett, who sang opposite Grace Moore in "Love Me Forever"; Raymond Walburn, Katherine Alexander, Clara Kimball Young and little Edith Fellows, who fairly "steals the picture." The stage portion of the entertainment will be supplied by the "king of tango and rumba," Xavier Cugat, and his Waldorf-Astoria Orchestra. With the orchestra the featured specialists are Raul and Eva Reyes, youthful dancers, already well known to the Capital: Georges and Jalna and Carmen Castillo, vocalist. Other acts will be presented by Eddie White and the DuPonts. The bill will be completed by a new issue of the Universal News, with Graham McNamee, and orchestral interludes, under the conductorship of C. Frederick Clark.

Following the current engagement of "The Man Who Knew Too Much," co-starring Peter Lorre and Nova Pilbeam, the attraction on the screen at the Belasco Theater will be "Red Head," the first French production the Lafayette Square house will have offered under its new policy. Julien Duvivier directed this story of a child, nicknamed "Carrot Top" by his mother, whose cruelty drives him to the brink of tragedy. The psychology of the child is said to unfold in this subject with all of the poignancy that was exerted by "Maedchen in Uniform." The bill will be augmented by the customary short subjects.

The shadow images of the late Will Rogers, Irvin S. Cobb, Anne Shirley, Frances Ford, Burton Churchill, Stepin Fetchit and the numerous supporting company that has achieved such an overwhelming success in its first local week, will continue on the screen at Loew's Palace through a second week, beginning tomorrow, in "Steamboat Round the Bend." This is one of the ace pictures in Rogers' entire screen career. Tragedy has left no depressing mark upon it. The short subjects, with a new newsreel substituted for the old, also will be held over.

* * * *

"Accent on Youth," Paramount's picturization of the stage play of the same name, with Sylvia Sidney, Herbert Marshall, Philip Reed, Ernest Cossart, Astrid Allwyn and Holmes Herbert in the principal roles, will revive its downtown popularity as chief feature of the screen bill at the Metropolitan Theater, beginning tomorrow. The first screen subject featuring radio's "Voice of Experience" will be the major auxiliary, along with a full 15-minute newsreel and other short subjects.

For the third week on F street, Greta Garbo and Fredric March will enact the principal characters in Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," on the screen at Loew's Columbia, beginning tomorrow. In this superb production—one of the best in the long Garbo line—important supporting roles are played by Freddie Bartholomew, Reginald Owen, Maureen O'Sullivan, Basil Rathbone, Phoebe Foster, Reginald Denny, May Robson and others of equal standing. Added short reels will supplement the feature.

"Top Hat," that gay comedy with Irving Berlin music, incomparable dancing by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers and excellent comedy performances by Edward Everett Horton and Helen Broderick, will pursue its merry course through still another week at RKO-Keith's, beginning tomorrow. As the top production of its type, this superlative light diversion deserves all the success it is enjoying. The short subjects, of course, go along with the feature, except that tomorrow the sixth issue of "The March of Time" will be added.

* * * *

Ann Corio and her "Girls in Blue" burlesquers will be the offering at Jimmie Lake's Gayety Theater for the week beginning with the usual Sunday matinee. This is about all the billing the attraction needs, just the name of Ann Corio, the most beautiful girl in burlesque. However, she will be surrounded by the cream of the "smoker circuit" crop, led by Herbert Faye, Frank Smith, "tangle talker;" Lew Black, Dudley Douglas, Harry White, Condo & Allen, Marie Grundle, Barbara Bow, Barbara Janis and Rose la Rose.

Stockholders Oppose Insull Reorganization

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—Patrick J. Lucey, former Illinois attorney general and once consul for Samuel Insull, today filed a petition to intervene in reorganization plans of the Middle West Utilities Co., being heard by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Presenting the petition on behalf of 7,151 common and 445 preferred shares of stock which he said were held by him and his family, Lucey said the proposed reorganization was unfair.

Donald McPherson, attorney for preferred stockholders, told the court he would withdraw their support for the plan, in view of passage of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill with its holding company "death clause."

The plan was offered by noteholders and banks.

The Hecht Co. has it

Wonderful for week-enders

Perfect for perpetual travellers

Sports Coats designed for a casual life

Perched in a tree or swinging down Connecticut Avenue, coats like these are first in the hearts of Washington women. Snuggle into a downy Llamadown (left) with its classic mannish plaid and face the wind and weather. Or a Bonniebrook plaid-back (middle)—we "lifted" the herringbone pattern from the men-folks. And if you've fallen in love with the flaring full back, pick the plaid Llamadown (right) with the military collar and wood buttons.

Sports Coats that are meant for travel

Whether you're winging out of the Airport or dashing for Union Station, you need have no doubts about the chic of this trio. On the left, a Stroock deep piled wool with a flaring, flattering collar of lynx. Don't miss the chevron detailed sleeves. In the center, a Stroock classic, checkered wool with military revers of raccoon—it's very new to handle raccoon in this manner. Right, a Worumbo in a plaid that would delight a Britisher. Raccoon collar.

Road to D. C. Under Study, Tabler Says

State Plans to Improve Defense Highway, Melvin Told.

Other Routes to Capital Also Envisaged in State Survey.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 19.—Homer E. Tabler, chairman of the State roads commission, today assured State Senator Ridgely P. Melvin (Democrat), Anne Arundel, that the roads commission is giving "very serious thought" to improvement of the Defense highway and is making an "exhaustive survey" as a means to provide additional traffic facilities between Washington and Annapolis.

The roads chairman, in a letter to Senator Melvin, stated that the commission was formulating a plan of action as soon as the necessary data were compiled.

Senator Melvin, after reading the letter, said that "improved traffic facilities between Annapolis and Washington is now assured, both by safeguarding the Defense highway and utilizing the Davidsonville route to Washington. Whether the survey now being made by the commission will show the feasibility of practically making over again the Defense highway in its present location, or ridding it of its worst curves and also concentrating on some additional route, such as the one through Davidsonville and Central avenue, it is certain that the present unsafe condition will be removed."

Recently the Anne Arundel Senator asked the commission to formulate in advance of the approaching special legislative session a definite program to widen and straighten the Defense highway, making it safe for travel. He pointed out that several years ago such a program was advanced but it had been abandoned. He said the time for "more comment" had passed and special action was required, either by the roads body or by a mandate from the Legislature, if no steps were forthcoming.

200 Back Red Star Line

Baltimore, Sept. 19 (AP).—As a petition bearing more than 200 names and asking that the Red Star bus lines be given a franchise along the old South Shore line of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railway, was received by the pubic service commission, the case was reopened today. The action was taken during a hearing on an application of the Pennsylvania Railroad subsidiary for a bus line. The Red Star line already had asked the franchise which the citizens desired.

Reopening of the Red Star case came as a surprise to a number of persons who had attended the hearing before the public service commission on the Pennsylvania's application. This application for a franchise to run between Odenton and Fort George G. Meade met with no objection at the hearing.

W. A. Pumphrey withdrew his application, also scheduled for a hearing today. He had asked permission to operate between Gambrills, Odenton and Baltimore. He said the Pennsylvania's line would serve the same territory.

After the Pennsylvania case, the hearing room still was jammed with persons who wanted to ask for some form of transportation service along the south shore of the Severn River.

The commission heard a number of them, and then decided to let the Red Star and railroad attorneys argue the case on September 30. One hearing on the Red Star's application has already been held, but no decision was rendered.

Frederick County Schools Crowded

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 19.—Many Frederick County schools have capacity classes, it was announced today by Leslie D. Kline, county superintendent. Miller School, with an enrollment of 251, leads. Other schools, including Middletown, with 251 pupils; Kernstown, 116; Bryarly, 133, and Round Hill, 177, are full.

Work is being rushed on the new consolidated school in Gainesboro district and it is hoped to have this building, which will serve an entire district, in use October 1.

Frederick teachers have organized with Paul H. Behrens, principal at Bryarly, as president, succeeding R. E. Aylor; Fred Braithwaite, vice president; Mrs. Pearl Haldeman Stickley, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Delegates to the State teachers' convention in Richmond include Orville Wake, principal at Middletown, who will represent the high schools; Miss Bessie Thornton, who will represent the grades, and the following alternates: Mrs. Elsie Hovermale, Stephens City, and Mrs. Pauline Hotinger, of Round Hill.

12 Civic Groups Of Winchester Urge Armory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 19.—Petitions from 12 civic organizations, from several of the leading industries and business organizations, including the four banks of the city, from the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars and from Company I and Headquarters Company of the 116th Regiment of Virginia National Guard, were presented to the city council last night asking steps to provide adequate armory facilities in this community.

Spokesmen for a large delegation directed attention of councilmen to the inadequate facilities now in use and stressed the fact that the National Guard units, now largely financed by the Federal Government, are more directly controlled by Federal officials. Fear was expressed that unless steps are taken to correct conditions, the two units which constitute the only trained constabulary in Winchester for protection of the city in emergencies, may be transferred to some other place where facilities will be available.

Predicts Motorization.

Capt. Paul R. Hartman, in a plea for action, declared that the two units will be motorized if the armory is provided and that this will result in a large increase in the maintenance of the companies, most of which will be expended here in addition to the $12,730.40 which is now spent in the community each year by the National Guard.

Lieut. Lawrence Hollis and Lieut. Harry McCann were others who appealed for action. After hearing the delegation, the council voted to hold a special session Friday evening, to which Adjt. Gen. S. Gardner Waller, of Richmond, will be invited to explain the details of an offer whereby it is believed an armory costing $50,000 may be obtained through Federal, State and local funds.

C. of C. Backs Proposal.

Andrew Bell, of the chamber of commerce, urged construction of the armory, which, he said, would provide facilities for a community auditorium.

A vote on the matter was postponed pending further information to be sought from Gen. Waller tomorrow, and details yet to be settled in regard to a site for the proposed building.

Organizations presenting petitions included Robert Y. Conrad Post, American Legion; Veterans of Foreign Wars, the chamber of commerce, the Lions, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, the Men's Athletic Club, the Softball League, the Ministerial Association, the Little Theater, Inc., the military companies and various business and industrial concerns.

Alumni Chapter Scholarships To U. of Virginia Announced

Henry Bates, of Cherrydale, Selected by Washington Group, Free Tuition for Year to Be Renewed if Work Is Satisfactory.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Sept. 19.—The announcement of 15 alumni chapter scholarship awards to new students entering the University of Virginia from Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia was made today by J. Malcolm Luck, secretary of the Alumni Association.

The recommendations of the chapters, the number based on chapter membership, have been approved by the university's scholarship committee, of which Dr. George O. Ferguson, jr., is chairman.

Winners of Charlottesville chapter appointments are Harry Evans Dinwiddie, James Earle Sargeant and Walter Bickers, all of Charlottesville. Sargeant and Bickers are graduates of Lane High School, Charlottesville, while Dinwiddie attended St. Christopher's School in Richmond.

Henry Powers and DeCourcey Wright Orrick, jr., both of Baltimore, received awards from the alumni group in that city, and Roy Stanley Turk, of Wheeling, W. Va., was selected to hold the scholarship allotted to the Wheeling chapter.

William Wyatt Hoback was named from Roanoke. An honor student in high school, Hoback made the highest grades in Latin for three years. He was editor of the student annual, and a member of the football team.

Two Norfolk high school graduates, Louis Felix ReDavid and Edward Eugene Mullen, were chosen by Norfolk alumni, and Willie Gus Booker, of Hurt, was picked by the Altavista chapter.

John White Acree will enter the university on an alumni scholarship from Lynchburg. A graduate of Glass High School, he averaged over 90 in all courses for four years. He was winner of a trophy awarded annually to a student excelling in athletics, scholarship and citizenship.

The Washington chapter named Henry Clark Bates, of Cherrydale, to fill one of its vacancies.

The scholarships, covering tuition charges, are for one year. They may be renewed if the appointee's college work is satisfactory.

Milk Shortage Facing County In Price Fight

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 19.—A shortage of milk in Frederick County after October 1 seems imminent. Distributors reported to County Farm Agent Henry R. Shoemaker today they were unable to meet the increased price asked by the farmer-producers.

Representatives of the producers said they will refuse to sell milk to the local distributors after October 1 on the present scale of 16 cents a gallon.

A majority of the distributors, it is reported, have agreed to increase the price to the producers to 18 cents a gallon, but one of the principal distributors here has refused.

Producers have petitioned the distributors for an increased price for some time. The distributors believe an 18-cent-a-gallon price would satisfy the producers, who might get as much as 20 cents on the Baltimore market. They estimate the increase in price to producers would justify a 1-cent increase a quart in the retail price, which is 10 cents a quart.

A spokesman for the distributors said he believes all of the distributors will approve the 18-cent scale before October 1 and that increased retail prices will go into effect on that date.

Proposal Fought

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 19.—Opposition to adoption of an ordinance providing for the regulation of the sale of milk here arose last night before council, in discussion of a clause providing for a negative blood test for Bang's disease. Herds infected with the disease spread undulant fever, of which there were four cases in Winchester last year. George Kern, dairyman, said he had no faith in the tests and he believes some of the best cows have been taken from herds as a result.

Johnson Heads Noted Speakers At Celebration

Tribute Will Be Paid Maj. Berry in Program at Rogersville.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Bristol, Va., Sept. 19.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson will be the principal speaker at an elaborate celebration to be held at Rogersville, Tenn., near here, next Friday, in honor of Maj. George L. Berry, Hawkins County's most distinguished son. He has definitely agreed to address the gathering, it was said yesterday.

Other notables who will speak are Speaker of the United States House of Representatives Joe Byrns, of Nashville; Senators Kenneth D. McKellar and Nathan L. Bachman, and Representative J. Will Taylor.

The "Maj. Berry appreciation day" program is sponsored by citizens of Hawkins County, with the co-operation of other upper east Tennessee counties. In announcing the program features the committee said there is no political significance to the celebration.

In addition to the addresses, there will be other features of an outstanding nature. Music will be furnished by a 135-piece band, composed of musicians from Kingsport, Morristown, Greenville and Knoxville. A barbecue supper will be held at Maj. Berry's huge farm near Mooresburg.

The program will be held in the large pavilion which will accommodate several thousand. Maj. John O'Connor, of Knoxville, will serve as toastmaster and Senator Bachman will be speaker.

It is expected that the celebration will draw more than 5,000 visitors from east Tennessee cities, southwest Virginia and southeastren Kentucky.

Maj. Berry is a native of Hawkins County. In 1908 he founded the Pressmen's Home near Rogersville, one of the largest institutions of its kind in the world. He also established the International Card & Label Co., a million-dollar concern located in Rogersville. He is a member of President Roosevelt's allotment board, which has charge of the spending of $4,800,000,000 of public works funds.

Nice Sets Up Engineering Department

Director and Two Aids to Have Charge of State Buildings.

Governor Also Signs Commissions for 6 Peace Officers.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Sept. 19.—Organization of the new department of mechanical engineering of Maryland was completed today when Gov. Harry W. Nice announced his appointments to the body.

The Governor also signed commissions for six justices of the peace, for members of the juvenile court committee for Dorchester and Queen Annes counties, and for members of commissions to study prison labor, revise corporation laws and consider advisability of a Fells Point-Locust Point Patapsco River bridge.

The Governor appointed Elmer Hammond, of Baltimore, as State engineer of the new mechanical engineering department. His salary will be $5,000 a year.

Two Assistants Named.

As Hammond's senior assistant, the Governor named W. B. Robe, of Baltimore County, at a salary of $3,000 a year. Harry Doublitz, of Baltimore, was named junior assistant, at $2,500 annually. The three appointments are effective October 1.

Created by the 1935 Legislature, the new department is charged with inspecting and surveying all State buildings and physical properties, with an annual report on their condition. The engineers will have supervision over State-owned buildings.

On the commission to study the question of prison labor the Governor issued commissions to Judge Joseph M. Ulman, of Baltimore; Dr. Heber Votaw, of Montgomery County, and Robert E. Vining, of Baltimore.

Three Republicans and two Democrats were given commissions on the group to revise corporation laws. They are Harry N. Baetjer, of Baltimore, Republican; Samuel J. Fisher, of Baltimore, Republican; William A. Gunter, of Cumberland, Republican; George Weems Williams, of Baltimore, Democrat; E. Dorsey Watkins, of Baltimore, Democrat.

Justice Commissions Signed.

Commissions were signed for the following justices of the peace: Thomas W. Francis, Towson; Robert C. Murphy, Charles County; Robert S. Clingan, Boonsboro, Washington County; William Edwin Macauleyln Bradshaw, Baltimore County; A. R. Weston, Laurel, Prince Georges County; Mrs. Marietta M. Renn, Northeast, Cecil County.

Other commissions signed by the Governor were:

Commission to consider advisability of erecting a bridge over the Patapsco River from Fells Point to Locust Point; W. Frank Roberts, Baltimore; George F. Obrecht, Baltimore; George M. Shriver, Baltimore; James Carey Martien, Baltimore; John A. Novak, Baltimore.

Juvenile court committee for Dorchester County: Earl Richardson, Charles Schaffer and Mrs. Fred Meekins, all of Cambridge. For Queen Anne's County, Mrs. Nellie S. Thompson, Centreville.

Regents May Ask Ritchie to Head State University

Majority Held Favorable to Ex-Governor on Eve of Meeting.

Political Factor Noted in Move

Final Selection Not Due Yet, Insists Board President.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Sept. 19.—Former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland may be asked to assume the presidency of the University of Maryland, and it is said by an authoritative source that the majority of the board of regents of that institution, which meets tomorrow here, would look with favor upon his appointment if he would accept.

Dr. Raymond Pearson resigned several months ago as president of the institution. Soon afterward George M. Shriver, president of the board, also resigned and it was rumored that Dr. Pearson's resignation had been asked by the majority of the board, to make room for the former Governor. That is why, this same source stated, H. C. Byrd was named only as acting president of the university until January 1.

Byrd Reported Seeking Post.

It is also said that the acting president of the university is one of several applicants for the presidency, having divested himself of a number of outside interests, such as the real estate development at College Park and his newspaper writings, that he might be eligible for the presidency if it were tendered him.

The former Governor is not an applicant for the presidency, it was stated by this same source, but there are those on the board who believe he might accept the position if it were proffered by a unanimous vote of the board of regents.

His appointment, it is said, would be welcomed by many Maryland Democratic leaders, who see the Governor, despite his defeat last year, as still a threat for domination of the party in this State. Acceptance of the University presidency, however, would signalize his intention to retire from active politics.

Noted for Executive Ability.

Those who believe that the former governor may be asked and may accept the presidency point to the fact that it was often customary, even in the case of several Presidents of the United States, upon their retirement, to assume the presidency of great educational institutions. The former governor's ability as an executive has never been questioned, even by those of the opposite political faith, and it appears that the University of Maryland, with the reduced appropriation for its maintenance, will need an executive of ability.

Two Richmond Girls to Attend Tobacco Queen

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Two Richmonders have been named as princesses in the court of Miss Westwood Byrd, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Harry Flood Byrd, who is to serve as queen of the national tobacco festival in South Boston on September 25, 26 and 27.

Miss Emma Hinman, secretary to Gov. George C. Peery, will be "Miss Virginia" and is sponsored by the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

Miss Virginia Green Vaughan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Marshall Vaughan, 2826 Monument avenue, will be "Miss Richmond," having been named as the ojfficial representative of the capitol city by Mayor J. Fulmer Bright.

Miss Vaughan, widely known in Halifax County, is a senior at the Thomas Jefferson High School where she is active in many of the school's organizations.

She is 16 years old and is a petite brunette with dark blue eyes. She is well known throughout the city among the younger set. She is an active worker at St. Paul's Episcopal Church where she is connected with the Young People's Service League and the Sunday school teachers' group.

Eleven Is Far Advanced in Training and Shows Much Enthusiasm.

May Be Able to Annex Four or Five Games of Hard Schedule.

(The fifth of a series of articles concerning the possibilities of football teams in Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia.)

By Paul W. Ferris,
Post Sports Editor.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 19.—At first glance it would seem that only four or five players and the personality of Coach Gus Tebell entitle the forty-seventh University of Virginia football team to a pre-season rating higher than that of any good prep school eleven.

A closer scrutiny, however, discloses a picture not quite so gloomy. Now in the final stages of preparation for Saturday's opening game against Willilam and Mary at Williamsburg, the Cavaliers are further advanced in training and displaying more enthusiasm for the gridiron grind than has been the case in many autumns at this delightful Jeffersonian institution.

There is a lamentable lack of tackles, centers and backs for a schedule that, unlike the Nation's business, will be favored by no breathing spells; but it is not impossible that Tebell in his second year as head coach may brew a sufficiently strong potion of thaumaturgy to bring the Orange and Blue in front in four or five of the ten games . . . And not even the most partisan alumnus could decently ask for more.

Weight Is Lacking.

There is, of course, at Charlottesville the familiar lament of all Old Dominion colleges that the reserves are insufficient for the need thereof; but there is also a justifiable complaint that necessary weight and experience are lacking in all except a mere handful of the relatively large squad.

Four of the five starting tackles, guards and center will scale only 173 pounds to the man, and about all that might be said for the replacements are that they undoubtedly are fine lads of good families and creditable figures in the academic scheme. There is considerable question, however, concerning their ability to commit indignities upon the persons of rough-and-ready opponents.

The greatest uncertainty exists at the tackles and center, where various factors have combined to remove no less than eight valued performers, five of whom are lost for reasons other than graduation.

Byrd Among Losses.

Hallett and Montgomery, last year's No. 1 and No. 2 centers, have completed undergraduate work and departed, but prospective Sophomores Byrd, Hotchkiss and Morris, all 6-foot-2 190-pounders, are absent because of illness, injury and accident. Bill Byrd, an Episcopal High lad from Baltimore, had been counted upon especially.

Now at the pivot post is Steve Davenport, a scrappy 170-pounder who played end with the 1934 freshmen. Lacking mainly beef and experience in passing the ball, he may yet develop into a valuable player. Frank Mead, another sophomore, is the understudy.

Ed Andrews and Red Haskell, a pair of rugged veteran tackles, are unexpectedly missing, the former having left school to become an actor and the latter because of academic woes. Their absence places the burden upon Leonard Trell, the only 200-pounder in the entire varsity line-up; Bill Banks, a 175-pounder, and Bill Weeks, husky sophomore. Fred Cramer,

HARRY MARTIN, shown above in process of passing, will be the big threat of Virginia's back field this season. Weighing 190 pounds, he passes, punts and carries the ball to satisfaction.

THE BOARD OF STRATEGY, shown above while planning maneuvers designed to disconcert William and Mary tomorrow, is one reason why the Cavaliers expect to win a few games this year. Coach Gus Tebell is pointing out pertinent facts to Capt. Johnny Leys (center) and Line Coach "Butch" Slaughter.

AL SECCOMBE, former Landon Prep player from Cherrydale, was acclaimed one of the two best guards to appear in Griffith Stadium last season. He is light but fast and alert.

Lee Gives Up Only 6 Hits In Victory

Two Runs in First Prove Sufficient; Streak Is Longest Since '16.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Unstoppable even by the southpaw shots of the great Carl Hubbell, the Chicago Cubs rolled onward and upward today to a "grand slam" over the East by crushing the New York Giants, 6 to 1, for their sixteenth straight conquest.

No sooner had the uproarious throng of 30,237 spectators settled in their seats than the men of Grimm, who haven't been stopped since the second game of Labor Day's doubleheader against Cincinnati, arose to smash the offerings of Hubbell for two runs that sealed the victory before a single batsman had been retired.

They added their other markers in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, but they didn't need them as "General" Bill Lee throttled the Giant guns so effectively that they didn't get a single hit until Manager Bill Terry topped one in front of the plate in the fourth and beat it out. Lee surrendered only six hits, three of them scratch infield safeties.

Greatest Streak Since 1916.

Not since 1916, when the Giants established an all-time record of winning 26 games in succession and added a 17-game winning streak, has any National League club run up such a streak as the Cubs have in turning back the Eastern clubs in successive four-game series.

The four defeats sent the Giants 7½ games behind the Cubs. They came to Wrigley Field fresh from a great three-out-of-four-game conquest of the St. Louis Cardinals that had revived their pennant hopes. A grand total of 123,101 fans, most of them in a frenzy from the first inning of the first game on to the finish, watched the series.

The Cubs engage the Pittsburgh Pirates in a two-game series Saturday and Sunday then move on to St. Louis for their final drive—a five-game series with the tottering Red Birds.

Galan Opens Aattack.

In jarring Hubbell at the outset, the nonstop Cubs started right in where they left off in yesterday's wild jamboree of base hits and errors. Augie Galan, the little outfielder who probably ranks as the greatest hero of the team, opened the sixteenth victory march by smashing a three-and-two ball for a single to left and Bill Herman scored him by exploding his fifty-fourth double of the season against the red-brick wall in left. No sooner had Terry sent in a rush call for a pitcher to warm up in the bullpen than Fred Lindstrom slashed a double down the left field line, scoring Herman. After Hartnett had grounded out, Frank Demaree carried on with a single, but Hubbell tightened, halting what looked like another scoring riot.

Except for a brief flurry occasioned by a walk to Galan and a single by Herman in the second after two were out, Hubbell retired the Cubs in order until the sixth, when Hartnett singled, took second on a sacrifice by Demaree and raced home on Phil Cavaretta's single.

Two More in Seventh.

Hubbell was nicked for three more hits and two runs in the seventh, Galan again touching off the signal with a single to left. Herman sent him to second with a sacrifice and Lindstrom scored him with his second hit, a single.

Hartnett drove Lindstrom in with a double to the right-field corner, a double play cut the Cubs off from doing further damage after Demaree had walked, Cavaretta obliging by hitting into the twin killing, Cuccinello to Bartell to Terry.

New York's only run was pushed over in the eighth when it didn't mean a thing except to spoil a shutout for "General" Lee. Cuccinello

Mrs. Godfrey's 77 Captures Corby Cup

Mrs. Mackenzie Second, Field of Nine Starts; Only 30 Finish.

MRS. FLORENCE GODFREY, of Beaver Dam, won her first important golf championship yesterday. She posted a 90—13—77 to win the Corby Cup in the annual tournament at Columbia Country Club.

Ninety-nine women golfers competed.

Mrs. Godfrey, for seasons an outstanding public links golfer before she joined Beaver Dam less than a year ago, nosed out Mrs. Harvey Cooper, of Manor, and Mrs. J. A. Marr, of the host club, by a single stroke. Mrs. Cooper had a 90—12—78 and Mrs. Marr 89—11—78. In the draw for second prize Mrs. Cooper won.

Fourth prize went to Mrs. H. M. Brundage, of the host club, who scored 93—14—79.

Has Card of 85.

Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, defending Corby Cup champion, carried off the low gross prize with a fine 85.

The course, in tip-top shape, lightning fast, took its toll of women golfers, as only 30 reported scores.

Mrs. Godfrey settled down after starting 6—7—4 to shoot the first 45 and duplicate this score on the back side. Mrs. Mackenzie went out in 41, with a 7 on the fifth hole, and played the back side in 44.

Their cards and other results follow:

La Salle Books Keyser For Thanksgiving Day

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 19.—Continuing a custom that first went into effect in 1928, La Salle Institute will play football here on Thanksgiving Day with Keyser High, of Keyser, W. Va., as its opponent.

Since Penn Avenue and Allegany High School are billed to play at Community Park on the same day, it is understood the teams will toss a coin to decide which game shall be played in the morning and afternoon.

Last year football relations between La Salle and Allegany were severed over eligibility rules.

La Salle expects to book Johnstown Catholic High School in Johnstown, Friday, November 15. If La Salle succeeds in getting a place on the Johnstown schedule, it will have completed a card of nine games for the 1935 season.

September 27, Franklin, W. Va., here.
November 1, Thomas, W. Va., here; 10, Connellsville Catholic, away; 15, Johnstown Catholic, away, pending; 28, Keyser, here.

Correction.

The Post regrets to report an error in its Post Mortem column yesterday concerning the purported marriage of Cliff Keyser, former Central athlete, and Betty Cochrane, local tennis player. Keyser is not married and is not acquainted with the Miss Cochrane mentioned. Information given The Post was erroneous.

Says Fate Is Mean, That's Why Baer Will Defeat Louis

By Paul Gallico,
A Special Correspondent.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Mr. Ed Wynn, the comedian, once went wandering through a couple of hours of musical comedy, murmuring ecstatically, "I love the woods—I love the woods." Mr. Max Adelebert Baer, the prizefighter who has ambitions, however, to be a comic, at present sequestered in a mountain shack at Speculator, spends every waking moment that he is not stewing and worrying over his coming fight with Joe Louis, hating the woods. He hates the trees, the branches and the leaves.

He hates the roots, and the moss that grows over the fine, fragrant, piney, springy ground. He hates the blue lake in which the fish jump at dawn and at twilight, and he hates the fish that jump in the blue lake. He hates the lovely, throaty, birds that carol in the trees, and the little red chipmunks that scamper up and down the trees that he hates.

He occupies a lovely pine-log mountain camp on the lakeside, with deer heads stuck up on the walls, and skins, and big open fireplaces, and he hates that, too. He wishes he were back in New York, sitting in a stuffy hotel suite, listening to the roar of the traffic climbing up from the macadam, where birds are kept in the zoo where they belong, where trees grow in tubs and fish are displayed in ice in restaurant windows. Max is strictly a town guy, and maybe they haven't been so smart in keeping him too long away from pavement and clatter.

He does not love the long, silent cool nights of crisp mountain air, the darkness, and the little prehistoric bats that fly around in the darkness. He not only hates the bats but is scared to death of them. He woke up at 4 o'clock the other morning with a bat in his room, and something moaning dolefully out in the woods. He said he thought it was a coyote, but they don't have coyotes in the Adirondacks, and I said I thought it was an owl. Well, he said he hated that, too. He can't wait to get away from Nature, back to the well-loved artificialities.

WAS ever a man in such a parlous mental state for an important fight? Only a dope would pick him to win. The name of that dope is Paul William Gallico. Don't ask me why. If I weren't a dope, I'd know. Baer is jumpy, nervous and brooding. He shrills a perpetual whistle past an everlasting graveyard. He is conscious of his father and mother who are in camp with him, big homey folks, whom you have met before; he is conscious of Mary Ellen, his bride, and his brother, and all the boxing friends he once attracted as champion, of the money he can make by winning, and the prestige that will come to him.

Last night over the bridge table, he shook his dark head and moved his broad shoulders and long arms under his yellow sweater, and said, "I'm all tightened up." At 9 o'clock with the bridge game hot and funny, what with Pete Reilly playing against him, they took the cards out of his hands, and sent him up to bed.

Mary Ellen left too and he was left alone, this big screw ball who loves the town and the music and the electric signs, probably to lie in bed awake, sleepless, listening to the dreadful bats blundering against the screens and the fish splash in the lake and owls hoot, and wonder in the darkness whether he actually can hit Joe Louis, whether he will be able to take Louis' punch and trying to see himself sitting in the steamy, sweaty dressing room after the fight, with photographers popping their flash lamps at him, muggs crowding around in back, trying to get their faces into the picture with—the victor.

Baer is in the most curious dilemma in which ever a young man

Boston Checks Tigers' Race To Flag

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—Roy Johnson and Babe Dahlgren got together in a late batting attack today to break up a pitching duel between a pair of veterans—Lefty Grove and Al Crowder—and give the Red Sox a 4-to-1 victory over the league-leading Detroit Tigers.

The loss reduced Detroit's lead to 7½ games over the idle New York Yankees, but the Tigers ended their final Eastern tour needing only two victories in their remaining nine games to clinch the pennant.

Pirates Defeat Boston, 7-6, in Last Home Game

Pittsburgh, Sept. 19 (AP).—A thrilling double play started by Outfielder Woody Jensen that cut off the tying run at the plate was the final scene Pittsburgh fans had of their 1935 team at home as the Pirates beat Boston, 7 to 6, today.

One run was in, Thompson was on third and Mallon on first with one out when Fletcher flied to Jensen. The Pirate's perfect peg caught Thompson at the plate.

Baer-Louis Battle May Break All New York Fight Records

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—All records for heavyweight fight attendance in New York, boomtime or otherwise, will be broken if, as now seem likely, Joe Louis and Max Baer fight before a capacity house in the Yankee Stadium next Tuesday night.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, declared today that a complete sellout would mean an attendance of nearly 100,000 and gate receipts approximating $1,200,000, including the taxes.

"We've got $700,000 hat we can count right now," said Jacobs. "The way the advance sale is going, it looks like capacity. In fact, to meet the extraordinary demands we have re-arranged the seating plans to handle a bigger crowd."

Originally the promoter's blueprints called for "tops" of 80,000 tickets and approximately $700,000 in gate receipts. Ten thousand field seats have been added and there will be standing room for close to 10,000 more.

The greatest previous attendance for a fight in New York was 82,000 for the Firpo-Dempsey heavyweight championship of 1923. Jacobs helped Tex Richard roll up gate receipts of $1,188,000 for that memorable flight and again aided the famous promoter in making the Dempsey-Sharkey bout in 1927 a $1,000,000 affair—$1,083,000, to be exact. They are the only previous $1,000,000 flights held in the big town, although Boyle's Thirty Acres, just across the river in Jersey City, was the setting for Rickard's first major extravaganza, the Dempsey-Carpentier match in 1921.

Jacobs' experience in having his ticket wagons mobbed by fans milling around the Polo Grounds on the night of the Dempsey-Firpo fight prompted his decision not to sell any tickets at the stadium next Tuesday night. The entire sale is being conducted through the promoter's offices.

Even the general admission tickets—8,000 of them—will be sold in advance at the Broadway headquarters of the Twentieth Century Club starting at 10 a. m. Saturday. These pasteboards are priced at $3.45 and good for a bird's-eye view from the center-field bleachers.

Ticket brokers along Broadway priced $25 ringside tickets as high as $110, with the supply said to be far short of the demand. Prices were at least double the face value for other tickets, ranging from $5.75 to $16.50.

The main reason for the most extraordinary demonstration of public interest in boxing since boom days in conceded to be Joe Louis, the 21-year-old Negro boy with the knockout punch. Louis has satisfied fight promoters he is the greatest heavyweight drawing card since Jack Dempsey's retirement. His match with Baer is unquestionably the first heavyweight "natural" since the Dempsey-Tunney days.

"Baer money" continued today to dominate the betting situation. The swing to the Californian, despite reports of his erratic workouts, has been pronounced for the past week in New York. A majority of fight critics are convinced Louis will win but the various angles involved have the clans in furious debate. The one point of agreement appears to be that the fight will end in a knockout.

The preliminary card was completed today by Matchmaker Tom McArdle, including the semifinal six-rounder in which Max's brother, Buddy Baer, will fight Ford Smith, Montana heavyweight who recently stopped Art Lasky.

Shenandoah Academy Facing Hard Schedule

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 19.—Although the Shenandoah Valley Academy will not open until next Tuesday, candidates for the football team will hold their first session with Coaches Fraley and Davidson, tomorrow.

It is difficult to get a line on the material because many of the members of the team which last year played though a successful team will be missing. But from the outset, there will be plenty of hard work in preparation for the opening game on October 5.

October 5, Luray, here; 12, pending; 19, Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg, at Charlottesville; 26, St. Paul's, Baltimore, here.

Ford Gives $100,000 To Broadcast Series

Chicago, Sept. 19 (AP).—All games of the 1935 World Series again will be broadcast by radio under the sponsorship of the Ford Motor Co., Baseball Commissioner Kennesaw M. Landis announced today.

The networks for the broadcast will be the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Co.

The Ford Motor Co. paid $100,000 for the broadcasting rights, the same as last year, Commissioner Landis said.

Portsmouth High School Team Has Enviable Gridiron Record

Special Dispatch to The Post.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Sept. 19.—When the Woodrow Wilson High School eleven, of Portsmouth, takes the field against South Norfolk day after tomorrow in the opening game of the local football season, Coach Lester E. Kiberl's boys will be able to boast of one of the best ten-year football records of any scholastic or college team in Virginia.

The team's record, however, is in marked contrast to the dim prospects of its being another rampaging eleven this season. The coach lost all but two lettermen of the entire first-string squad by graduation. Despite green material, the team will probably have a strong passing attack.

Coach Kiberl's coaching record reveals that the "Fighting Presidents" have won 91 out of 108 games since 1925, including 9 straight last year. In the 91 games played, 41 opponents failed to score. In 1926-27, he produced two successive State championship elevens, both unbeaten and unscored upon. In 1928, 1932, and last season, the Presidents were runners-up for the Virginia class "A" title, losing by either a tie game or one loss.

Kilberl is a V. P. I. graduate and recently received his M. A. from N. Y. U., where he is working for his doctor's degree. He came to Wilson in 1925 as head coach and physical director and now coaches varsity football, basket ball and baseball.

The schedule:

September 21, South Norfolk, at Portsmouth; 28, City College of Baltimore, at Portsmouth.
October 4, Petersburg, at Petersburg; 12, Suffolk, at Portsmouth; 18, John Marshall, at Portsmouth; 26, Newport News, at Newport News.
November 2, Hampton, at Portsmouth; 11, Lynchburg, at Portsmouth; 16, Salem at Salem; 23, open.
Thanksgiving Day—Roosevelt High (New York), at Trucker Stadium.

Riskulus, $4 Shot, Defeats Stocks in Duel in Havre Feature

Choice Wins Half Length Decision

Firethorn Runs Third; 8,500 Fans Look On; $10.10 Double.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 19.—As a $2 investment, Riskulus proved a better risk than Stocks here this afternoon. The horses by those names met in the feature race, the Penn A. C. Handicap, over the mile and 70 yards course and Riskulus took the decision by the margin of half a length. Stocks was having a hard time keeping up, at that. Third in the field of five came Firethorn, for which Trainer Preston Burch had some Kentucky Derby hopes last year. Brindle and Legionary were the others to accept the issue.

It was evident that the affair was a two-horse race as early as the back stretch. The two leading riders of the meeting, Les Balaski and Moose Peters, had the star mounts and they were watching each other as Legionary went out to set the pace. At the far turn, Balaski began his move with Riskulus and Peters following suit with Stocks.

Falls in Challenge.

Midway of the stretch, Stocks began to edge up on his rival, but Riskulus always seemed to have something left. In the drive to the wire Peters beat a tune on Stocks' flank, but the gelding could not cut down the leader.

Riskulus was the favorite and, after showing at 9-5 and 7-5 on the opproximate odds board, finally paid $4.

The weather was fair and warm and 8,500 enjoyed or didn't enjoy the program.

The daily double, after paying off in telephone numbers here for several days hit a new low today with the popular twin wager returning only $10.10. Almost every "double" had Judy O'Grady as the first part. She teamed with Lovely Girl to make it a sort of Ladies' Day affair.

The horse that everybody expected to win was the winner of the first race. Judy O'Grady, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' filly, after being backed to almost prohibitive odds, easily took the maiden sprint to pay a $2.70 mutuel. The filly was not extended and galloped to the wire ahead of Gala Dame, the pacesetter, and Buddy Boo. Handled by Jockey Rosengarten, Judy took the lead when ready and it was all over except the pay-off.

Magnanimous Wins.

The horse with the longest name won the second race when Magnanimous came out of the pack in the stretch to score easily over Retired and Argoan in a field of 12 starters. Magnanimous, with Jockey Balaski up, bettered his position during the early running and finished with speed to spare. The pay-off was $6.30.

Lovely Girl, a fast-stepping daughter of Vito, showed a neat effort in winning the third race and the day's third sprint affair. My Colin was second and Speed third. The last named, a Vanderbilt horse, went away winging and had all the earmarks of a winner entering the turn, but quit approaching the wire. Lovely Girl was well liked at a $6.40 mutuel.

The nearest thing to a dead heat at the meeting materialized in the fourth race. Cross Ruff and Silent Shot hooked up in a stretch duel that lasted from the eighth pole to the finish, with the former taking the decision by the narrowest of margins after the lead had see-sawed from one to the other. Flaming Mamie was third, with Mad Frump, the favorite, a well-beaten fourth in the field of seven. Cross Ruff paid $9.40.

Big Gawk won the sixth race at a $10.30 mutuel in a driving finish and the day's finale went to Dearsin, paying a $12 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUDY O'GRADY, $2.70, $2.20, $2.20; GALA DAME, $2.40, $2.20; BUDDY BOO, $3.00.

JUDY O'GRADY, rated along in near pursuit of the pacemaker after being sent into a contending position, came to the outside when moving to the front at the stretch turn, then drew out as if much the best. GALA DAME displayed nice speed while setting the pace, saved ground, but could not stay with the winner when forced to a drive. BUDDY BOO went prominently placed and continued willingly when the real test came. HOT GRIDDLE, away well, but lacking speed to maintain a forward position, closed full of run on the inside and just missed earning third honors.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 2:50. Winner, N. W. Church's blk. c. (2), by Diavolo—Chewink. Trained by E. L. Fitzgerald. Value to winner $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAGNANIMOUS, $6.30, $4.10, $3.60; RETIRED, $4.80, $4.20; ARGOAN, $6.10.

MAGNANIMOUS, steadied in the first flight in the opening three furlongs while racing on the outside, wore RETIRED down to gain a brief lead in the last furlong, then came out steadily when kept under pressure. RETIRED had good speed to dispose of KEYED UP, but was unable to withstand the winner when forced to a hard drive. ARGOAN went strongly while holding a contending position and continued willingly to outstay NARISE. The latter was sent up on the inside midway of the home stretch, but had to be taken back when unable to secure racing room and she failed to rally thereafter. TRUMPS closed with good courage.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Virginian. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:25. Winner, Bomar Stable's b. f. (2), by Vito—Loveliness. Trained by R. E. Potts. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:12 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOVELY GIRL, $6.40, $3.30, $2.60; MY COLIN, $4.40, $3.10; SPEED, $2.80.

LOVELY GIRL, sent into the thick of contention immediately, swung to the outside when reaching the home stretch, responded strongly after displacing SPEED inside the closing furlong and just lasted to stall off MY COLIN. The latter, taken up when leaving the back stretch, secured racing room on the inside when put to a drive at the stretch turn, then closed fastest of all. SPEED had good speed to stall off PROCLIVITY after having saved ground, but stopped suddenly in the last sixteenth. AHRIMAN finished with a rush after making a wide turn into the home stretch. SEVEN STAR showed a good effort.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:59. Winner, Tranquility Farm's ch. c. (3), by Pot Shot—Maximanch. Trained by C. Kirby. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:25, 0:49, 1:14, 1:39 4-5, 1:46 4-5.

†J. B. Belk entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CROSS RUFF, $9.40, $4.40, $3.50; SILENT SHOT, $7.10, $5.50; FLAMING MAMIE, $5.10.

CROSS RUFF, hustled hard to gain command when reaching the back stretch, met persistent efforts from SILENT SHOT in the last half-mile, responded to punishment and barely lasted. SILENT SHOT grabbed the quarter when leaving the paddock, raced in near pursuit of the winner from the beginning, closed in almost even terms with the winner in the last furlong and just missed getting up in time. FLAMING MAMIE, forwardly placed and steadied for the first six furlongs, could not make up any ground during the last quarter-mile. MAD FRUMP bettered his position slowly and could not menace. TEE TOTUM was held perfectly safe.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000. The Penna Athletic Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:33. Winner, N. W. Church's ch. c. (4), by Stimulus—Risky. Trained by E. L. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 4-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:38 4-5, 1:43 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RISKULUS, $4.00, $2.60, $2.20; STOCKS, $2.50, $2.30; FIRETHORN, $2.70.

RISKULUS, rated forwardly and under slight reserve for six furlongs, displaced LEGIONARY when leaving the back stretch, saved ground after gaining command, but was shaken up strongly nearing the end to resist STOCKS. The latter followed along under slight restraint early, then came courageously when placed to a drive in the last five-sixteenths. FIRETHORN, racing close up and saving much ground, came willingly during the closing test. BRINDLE could not threaten during the final drive. LEGIONARY could not stay when put to a drive.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:01. Off at 5:02. Winner, Mrs. L. H. Nimkoff's ch. g. (3), by North Star III—Bed of Roses. Trained by P. Brady. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:15, 1:41 4-5, 1:46 3-5.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG GAWK, $10.30, $5.90, $4.50; CAPSTAN, $13.40, $8.60; CHANCE DAME, $4.60.

BIG GAWK, losing some ground at the first turn, went into a forward position when swinging into the back stretch, wore LOVE LOST down to take command midway of the stretch, withstood a stout drive gamely thereafter and just lasted long enough to stave off CAPSTAN. The latter worked his way up steadily while securing clear racing room, responded strongly and was wearing the winner down steadily approaching the finish. CHANCE DAME went prominently from the beginning, moved into menacing contention entering the home stretch and fought it out stubbornly. BUNTINO, caught in close quarters going to the first turn, bettered his position readily after settling in full stride and closed strong. DUNAIR gained willingly in the last half-mile and finished in tight quarters during the stretch drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates for all but Wishing Star. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:31. Off at once. Winner, L. Du Pont's b. g. (4), by Cudgel—Dear Inez. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:25, 0:50 1-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:42, 1:55 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DEARZIN, $12.00, $6.80, $4.40; POST BRIGADE, $21.10, $8.10; ARAB, $3.00.

DEARZIN moved into a slight lead when reaching the back stretch, opened up a winning lead when straightened out for the stretch drive, but weakened suddenly and had to be hard ridden to stave off POST BRIGADE. The latter improved his position steadily in the last half-mile, came to the outside of the winner and closed determinedly. ARAB, well placed early, failed to rally when placed to a drive.

Oil Industry Taxes Are 81% Of Earnings

Baird D. Markham Says 199 Taxes Are Levied on Products.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 19.—Baird D. Markham, oil executive, asserted today that taxes paid by oil companies last year averaged $5.23 per share of their capital stock, while earnings averaged only $1.02 a share, or 19 per cent of the net income.

The industry's tax problems were reviewed by Markham, chairman of the American Petroleum Industries Committee, before a group of oil men from 15 Eastern States assembled for a three-day conference.

"The fact that a tax muddle exists is more clearly understood when we consider that a total of 199 taxes, licenses and fees are now levied on the property, operations and products of oil companies. There are 38 Federal taxes, 121 State taxes and 40 county or municipal taxes.

"Not all of these taxes are imposed on all companies in all localities, but each is a separate tax, license or fee imposed either in Federal, State or local jurisdictions.

"Of the Federal taxes, there are 6 excise taxes on sales," Mr. Markham said, "11 excise taxes on facilities, 5 stamp taxes, 8 import duties and 8 other levies. The State taxes comprise 21 product taxes, 20 business license or permit fees, 28 corporate taxes, 18 privilege, occupational income and sales taxes, 7 petroleum inspection taxes, 8 marine licenses and taxes, 13 motor vehicle licenses and taxes and 7 miscellaneous taxes.

"Taxes levied by counties, cities, towns, parishes, etc., include 6 petroleum taxes, 19 business license or permit fees and 15 other taxes.

"Despite the fact that there are already 199 taxes now levied upon the petroleum industry, there are continual efforts being made by legislative bodies to increase the industry's burden," he asserted.

"For example, in the first six months of 1935, there were 59 different bills introduced into the State legislatures that would have increased one of these taxes, the State gasoline tax, in 27 States. Most of these measures were defeated, because there is a growing tendency for the public to revolt at attempts to increase their burden of taxation."

Sugar Output Lags Behind '34

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 19.—Deliveries of all United States beet sugar companies are still behind schedule, with but 60.1 per cent of their quota reached during the first eight months of this year, and are 20 per cent behind last year's volume, according to calculations of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Deliveries (January through August) aggregated 871,045 short tons of refined sugar, a decrease of 218,199 tons, or 20 per cent, when compared with deliveries of 1,089,246 tons during the similar 1934 period.

Deliveries during August were 89,052 tons, against 81,226 tons in July and 131,588 tons in August last year.

Distribution, so far, is equivalent to 932,019 short tons (raw value), or 60.1 per cent of the 1,550,000 tons 1935 quota provided for the domestic beet sugar producers under the Jones-Costigan act, leaving a balance of 617,981 tons for distribution "within the quota" during the balance of the year.

As stocks on hand September 1 totaled only about 235,000 tons, it will be necessary for beet companies to use approximately 390,000 tons of the new crop, available for distribution in late September-early October, if the total quota is to be distributed.

Italy Seeks Oil Here; Fears Suez Blockade

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 19.—Dow, Jones & Co. said today inquiries have been made by the Italian government for oil supplies, but so far as can be ascertained no company has made any arrangement for a permanent supply. "Inquiries have been based on deliveries at African points, possibly as a precautionary measure, taking into account the possible closing of the Suez Canal," it said. It was estimated that Italy has bought approximately 1,000,000 barrels of fuel oil for delivery to the end of this year. "Italy, it is understood, has been in the market recently for some tank bottoms with the idea of storing the oil in old tankers no longer fit for economic operation.

"However, this cannot be done on a big scale in view of the fact that it is storage and there are not many such tankers available," the report concluded.

London, Paris Marts Weaken On War Fears

British Government Bonds Close Lower Despite Good Earnings.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 19.—Developments in Rome and Geneva today depressed stock exchange dealings as government securities closed with losses. Old Consols closed one-half down at 82½; war loans weakened five-fifths of a point to 103⅜, and local loans lost seven-eighths of a point to 92.

Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, announced that the six months' profit of the bank prior to August 31, amounted to £675,704 sterling (about $3,337,977) compared with £675,572 sterling for the previous half year.

The bank's usual half-yearly dividend of 6 per cent was declared.

Paris—Anxiety over possible repercussions in the Italo-Ethiopian situation caused nervous selling today, which weakened the bourse.

Suez and Egyptian issues particularly slumped on unconfirmed rumors Great Britain is considering military sanctions if Italy attacks Ethiopia. Suez shares dropped 575 francs to 16,430 francs.

International issues declined along with most French issues, including rentes. The market's closing was heavy.

Washington Bank Debits Lead Nation

Local Gain of 36.8% in Contrast With 20% in U. S.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Washington bank clearings, consistently running ahead of the national gains, chalked up another first place last week when they recorded an increase of 36.8 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934.

This compared with an average gain in the entire United States of 20 per cent. The second-place city, New Orleans, ran 30.7 ahead of its last year's performance.

Clearings here aggregated $19,059,551 during the week that ended on Wednesday. In the 22 leading cities of the Nation the week's total was set at $5,846,314,000. In New York City alone, clearings increased 18.8 per cent for a total of $1,965,774,000, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

The total at all cities reporting for the past week was in excess of the preceding week by $1,159,551,000, whereas, for the same two weeks of last year the increase was held to $503,714,000. Local totals were $1,251,245 above the previous week.

Heavy Settlements.

The heavy settlements appeared at nearly every city reporting, especially at those centers where local business interests are closely identified with internal revenue accounts. At some points in the South clearings, while high, again showed some recession from last year, as they have in recent weeks.

Figures at leading centers, showing increases and decreases, as compared with those of a year ago, follow:

There has been a tremendous increase in the number of women employed in banks in recent years, Miss Mary E. Anderson, director, Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, told the women of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the annual dinner of the women's committee. Between 1910 and 1930 the number of women holding executive positions in banks increased from 1,600 to 6,000, she said.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Sept. 19.—Stocks had a disconcerting time of it, carried in and out by the tide of war news and finally left at lower price levels, near the poorest of the day, which meant losses of 1 to 3 points among leading issues. Government bonds were firmer and commodities were sustained by another jump in wheat. December options closed at 100⅞ cents a bushel, a gain of 2⅝ cents. Except for midday selling, stocks turned dull on the declines. Turnover was around 2,000,000 shares.

Stocks in particular were sensitive to the war rumors. Yesterday's closing fall in prices was laid to a short selling flurry among stock exchange members who trade on the floor of the exchange, and this morning's advance was logically put down to short covering, based on the less reassuring accounts of peace negotiations. In the noon hour the war reports reported by the press and news tickets looked more hopeful of an agreement, and accordingly the sellers jumped in again.

Wheat Spurts.

Midday operations were enough to bring prices down 1 to 2 points from their early tops and to send (as usual) the ticker tape several minutes behind in reporting transactions. That helped a bit in slowing down the trading, and with the drop in activity prices grew steadier. Abroad the war news also was a factor in the markets, and the rise and fall at London, Paris, Amsterdam and other places acted to some extent both directly and indirectly on our own markets, with rather confusing results.

Even the domestic bond market is to some extent und rethe influence of war news. Government issues stiffened with the weakness of stocks. Commodities, on the other hand, were persistently firm. Wheat in particular has the aid of a bullish push from sources other than possible war demand for supplies, namely the short crops in this country and Canada and the damage reported in Argentina. Wheat surged up 2 or 3 cents a bushel in leading markets, giving a fill-up to speculative interest in other sectors.

Gold Currency Falls.

Foreign exchange markets were torn by the war fears, on top of economic uncertainties. Gold currencies were hurt, not only by the growing hazard of war, but by a fresh development of a technical nature, namely, the plan of insurance companies to lift the premium on gold shipment risks. If that be done, the effect will be to require a lower price for the gold currencies before shipments of the metal profitably can be made. Support for the gold currencies, in other words, can come only at lower levels.

French money felt the heaviest shock, and other gold currencies followed it down. Sterling as well was knocked lower. Weakness in European currencies on their own account obscured any tendency the dollar might have had to go lower on the outlook for importation of larger food supplies and the mounting of the public debt. Italian lire were held well unler control, but the situation there looks worse. The government is having to part with gold, and the lack of good creditors aboard is apparently bringing about internal loans which probably are of a forced character, so far as the banks are concerned.

This week's statement of the Bank of France showed a moderate loss of gold, which also was true of the Bank of England. Circulation in both France and England fell sharply, the wiping out of early month expansion. Our Federal Reserve System statement, to be issued this afternoon, but withheld from publication until tomorrow, is expected to show a considerable fall in member bank reserves. That was due to the heavy cash payments on subscriptions to the latest Treasury financing, and by no means indicates a change in the cheap money trend.

Stock Movements.

Most of the gains in stocks were made in the first half hour. At that time the rails were strong, heartened by good car loading reports, but they could not carry on far against the midday selling. Great Northern and New York Central were as usual the most active rails. Oils showed fractional losses, although Jersey opened a point higher. Utilities yielded only small losses. Pressure was put upon Standard Gas and to a lesser extent on Water Works. After reaching a new top in the first few minutes, Chrysler receded a point or so and the motor list turned dull. Studebaker was firm and active. Amusements were active. R-K-O touched a new top. Pullman's early break on dividend news hurt the rail equipment section. Chemicals were set back strongly with what was considered the more favorable nature of news from war and peace centers. Mail order were down a point or two in spite of the further rise in wheat. Coppers were set back, although some of the minor issues had an early rise to new high prices. Silvers were slapped down 1 to 4 points.

Rail Prosperity Seen in Higher Car Loadings

Loads Pass 700,000 Mark for First Time in Four Years, Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 19.—The prosperity point for railroad carloadings —700,000—has been passed for the first time in four years, as shown in current estimates, and economists envisage a possible new forward sweep of business and industrial Activity.

Those who have charted the course of the depression have noted the strange tendency of many indices to remain tightly within the 1931 range of activity, but in recent weeks there has been created a movement which has carried many of the major indicators into higher ground.

Preliminary figures on railroad carloadings for last week point to a total of 710,000 cars, the highest point since the week of November 4, 1931, and the first time since that date that loadings have passed the magic 700,000 line.

At 1931 Level.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity since July of 1933 has gone up and down within the 1931 range, and currently the indicator is midway.

Also at the mid-point is the Associated Press Index for 60 stocks. Since July of 1933 that index, too, has been roughly within the 1931 range, but nearer the bottom than the top point. Industrial stocks Wednesday reached a new high average since 1931.

Such action has been heartening to those who closely follow the course of general business, and they stress the importance of the indicated new high for carloadings.

Equipment Orders.

For some time authorities have believed that if freight traffic should remain above the 700,000 mark for a reasonable period it should be necessary for the carriers to enter the equipment field with heavy orders.

It is pointed out that railroads in the aggregate have not purchased enough rolling stock and other equipment during the depression to handle adequately a sustained high volume of traffic.

Authorities stress, however, that the volume must be maintained before the heavy traffic would become a burden on equipment.

For the first 37 weeks of this year rail traffic totaled some 21,811,000 cars compared with 22,021,000 for the same period of 1934, a decrease of 0.6 of 1 per cent.

But on the bright side, experts cite the impending movement of crops to market, the need for coal during the coming cold weather, the expected general advance of business with introduction of new automobile models in November.

C. H. M'Cormick Resigns Post

International Harvester Dead Since 1902; Brother Named.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Cyrus H. McCormick, chairman of the Board of the International Harvester Co. since 1912, resigned today.

Following acceptance of his resignation the board elected his younger brother, Harold. The elder McCormick is 76 years old. Harold is 63.

The active career of the elder McCormick with the farm implement industry began in 1879 when he was called home from Princeton University to work with his father in the operation and management of the McCormick Harvesting Machine Co.

He became president of the McCormick company upon the death of his father in 1884 and was elected president of the International Harvester Co. when that organization was founded in 1902. He resigned in 1918 and was elected chairman of the board.

Harold, former husband of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick and of Ganna Walska, opera singer, succeeded Cyrus as president when the latter became chairman of the board.

Fear of Cuban Lack Boosts Sugar Mart

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 19.—A firmer spot market and rumors that Cuba may restrict the exportation of new crop sugars led to increased covering and commission buying in the sugar futures market today.

December contracts sold up to 2.53 and March to 2.14, or five to six points net higher. December reacted to 2.51, but new crop positions held the early gains with the general market in the late trading ruling about 3 to 5 points net higher.

At the close refining interests announced an advance of .20 a cent in the price of fine granulated sugar. This lifts the quotation from 5.10 to 5.30 cents a pound. The advance is effective at the close of business tomorrow.

Safety Drive.

Fifty thousand pamphlets, answering 42 questions relating to traffic safety and instructing the motorist in safe-driving methods, will be distributed through the 40 Peoples Drug Stores in Washington Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Distribution of the pamphlets will begin on Sunday, since Washington schools will open the following day.

The pamphlets, explaining the reasons for most traffic fatalities, will help motorists avoid accidents at a time when thousands of school children are on the streets.

Police officials believe the safety advices will be of great service in decreasing the number of deaths resulting from traffic hazards.

Scrap Exports To Italy Rise 450 Per Cent

Used Iron, Steel Shipped in 30 Months Exceeds Past 8 Years.

New York, Sept. 19.—Exports of scrap iron and steel from this country to Japan and Italy in the last 30 months have been nearly twice as large as in the entire eight preceding years, according to figures compiled by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The materials are bought for steelmaking purposes. Scrap is not a product commonly sold by steel mills.

From January, 1933, through the first half of 1935, more than 3,750,000 gross tons of scrap were shipped to foreign countries, compared with 2,223,000 tons shipped in the eight years from 1925 through 1932.

Of the amount sent out in the last 30 months Japan has taken 65 per cent, while Italy has taken 13 per cent, according to the Department of Commerce.

From 1925 through 1932 Japan bought an average of 106,000 tons of scrap annually, and since then she has purchased an average of $976,000 tons a year, an increase of 800 per cent. During the first half of 1935 she bought approximately 725,000 tons, or about 78 per cent more than in the corresponding period of 1934.

Italy during the eight years took annually about 35,000 tons, but since 1933 the average has risen to 194,000 tons, an increase of 450 per cent. Exports for the first half of this year were 55 per cent greater than in the first half of last year, or 146,000 tons.

Shipments to all other nations than Japan and Italy since 1933 have increased to only 2½ times the average for the 1925-32 period.

This increased demand for scrap for export has contributed to the rise in the price that steel companies in this country have to pay for scrap, it is pointed out.

Since 1932 the average price of heavy steel scrap for melting has risen 69 per cent, while the price of basic pig iron has gone up only 29 per cent and the composite price of the major finished steel products has risen only 8½ per cent.

Early Selling Hits Cotton Prices

Gold Surety Rate Boost Is Considered

Transatlantic Shipments Premiums May Be Hoisted.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 19.—Officials of leading local marine insurance companies conferred here today on the question of raising the premium charged for insurance of transatlantic gold shipments.

Up to a late hour no announcement had been made as to when an advance would come and, if so, how much.

Similar conferences were said to be taking place in London, where a large amount of marine underwriting of risks on gold shipments is handled.

Local companies said that the initiative was being taken abroad and that any action which might be taken here would be mainly reflection of the higher premiums demanded abroad.

The immediate effect of the report that marine underwriters were considering insurance rates brought a severe further fall in the gold currencies of nations from which gold lately has been coming in large volume.

French francs fell sharply to around 6.58½, which was five-eighths of a point under the level at which substantial gold shipments were made yesterday. The rise in guilders which has been in progress for two days was interrupted. Sterling turned quite weak also.

Any boost in the marine insurance rate, which is now 4½ cents on $100 gold, would be equivalent to lowering the gold shipping point, because it would at once add materially to the costs of bringing the gold here and gold currencies would have to be purchased at a compensatingly increased discount.

World Grain Prices Soar

Chicago Wheat Rises Nearly Four Cents on Foreign Buying.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Excited over reports of imminent likelihood of war, wheat markets today surpassed in some cases any high price record of the last five years.

Europen demand for shipments of wheat was reported as being so urgent all immediate offerings were taken virtually regardless of cost. Speculative demand in Chicago, assuming stampede character, rushed the market here almost 4 cents a bushel upward and, despite a world of profit taking, held the greater part of the gain.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were flurried, 2⅛@2⅝ above yesterday's finish, December 1.00¾@1.00⅞; corn, ⅝ off to ⅛ up, December 57⅛@58; oats, ⅛@⅜ higher, and provisions varying from 12 cents setback to an advance of 22 cents.

Winnipeg.—For the second time this week, wheat prices shot up the full 3 cents a bushel permitted under exchange regulations as the trading pit of the Winnipeg grain exchange was flooded with buying orders at the opening today.

Soaring prices in outside markets evoked the local buying spree. October futures opened 1¾ to 3 cents above yesterday's close at 94½-95¾ cents a bushel, and December at 95-96⅛ cents was 1⅞-3 cents advanced. The May options opening price was 99¾, 3 cents higher.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

AN Arctic tern, banded by Dr. Oliver H. Austin, jr., on a coastal island just off Labrador, was found dead within two months on the southern tip of Madagascar in the Indian Ocean. It had flown 9,000 miles during that time—150 miles a day average.

An orphan, married young and a deserted wife at 17, Hannah Snell borrowed a suit of clothes from her brother-in-law and set out in search of her missing sailor husband. Unsuccessful, she joined the army. Flogged for infraction of army rules, she soon deserted, but joined the service again not long afterward—this time in the marines.

She sailed with her regiment to the East Indies, went through the siege of Araapong in India, and suffered severe wounds in trench fighting at Pondicherry. She was nursed back to health by a native woman, after which she enlisted again—this time in the navy. She served aboard the Tartar and Eltham for a time, and finally retired to England, where she continued to wear men's clothes, although she did disclose her identity. She was pensioned by the king for her service, and was given annuity for the wounds she received at Pondicherry.

Native Hawaiians have a legend that Pele, goddess of love, lives deep inside the crater of Kilauea, great Hawaiian volcano. A strange wool-like substance, erupted by the volcano, they believed to be the goddess' hair. Scientists discovered that the "Pele's hair" had excellent insulation properties. The wool, they found, was made by action of steam striking molten lava—and today "Pele's hair" is manufactured commercially.

Rotary to Aid Drive Against Tuberculosis

The added starter was the Rotary Club, which had just heard Dr. Ruhland say tuberculosis was the fourth ranking cause of death in the District. In the Nation at large, tuberculosis ranks seventh.

In order of importance, death causes are heart disease, then cancer, pneumonia and tuberculosis.

Milk Bottle Caps to Aid Auto Safety Campaign

Milk bottle caps next week are to bear warnings for motorists. They are to remind drivers that school opens Monday. They are to ask the drivers to drive carefully.

This development in Washington's campaign for traffic safety was announced by the American Automobile Association yesterday.

Simultaneously, the association said it would maintain some 270 schoolboy patrol units, covering every public and parochial school here, embracing some 4,500 patrol members, this winter. The units will protect about 100,000 school children.

Soviet Mines More Gold.

Moscow (U.P.).—The gold mining industry in the Soviet Union has completed before time its seven months' program. Compared with the corresponding period last year, the output increased by 27 per cent.
